U.S. Will Admit 4 Times as Many Hungary Victims

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — President Eisenhower announced today the United States will admit 21,500 Hungarian refugees—more than four times the number planned originally.

WHAT'S YOUR OPINION?

By DINAH KERR and IRVING STRICKLAND

Question: "Do you think Canada was right in its Suez policy?"

Joe Chapp, salesman, Glen Lake, "Definitely. Canada did the only thing possible in voting against Britain. Britain and France had no right to attack Egypt without first consulting with the United Nations. That's exactly what the Russians did in Hungary."

Chapp

Mrs. D. McSparran, 4157 Wilkinson Road: "No. I'm not in favor of Canada taking a stand against Britain. We should back Britain in her decisions. After all, we're still a colony."

Eric Elchhorn, radio-TV technician, 2730 Roseberry: "I back Canada's stand definitely. The bombing of Egypt could have led to a Third World War. I think Britain, France and Israel should regard the decisions of the United Nations."

Elchhorn

Roger Laverdure, contractor, 967 North Park: "No. I don't. I think members of the Commonwealth should stick together. Britain is our mother country and we should abide by her policies."

Mrs. A. Beattie, 860 Dunsmuir: "Canada is wrong and Britain is right as far as the Suez crisis is concerned. The situation in the Middle East poses a serious problem—all the more reason why the nations of the Commonwealth should stand together."

Beattie

Georgianna McSparran, 4157 Wilkinson Road: "No. Canada should have backed Britain. We've been associated with Britain much longer than we have with the United Nations. Canada's action was a slap in the face for Britain."

Manitoba Lawyer Suspended For Two Years

WINNIPEG (CP) — Suspension of Benjamin Arthur Shuckett as a barrister and solicitor in Manitoba for the period of two years was announced Friday by the benchers of the Manitoba Law Society.

The announcement by the law society said Mr. Shuckett was suspended "for conduct unbecoming a barrister and solicitor in that he had been convicted of making or setting to or acquiescing in the making of false or deceptive statements of returns made under the Income War Tax Act."

$250,000 BLAZE IN BON MARCHE SPOKANE STORE

SPOKANE (AP)—Fire which broke out in a sixth floor furniture repair shop caused an estimated $250,000 damage to the Bon Marche department store Friday night.

The first alarm was turned in about three minutes before the 9 p.m. closing, and while throngs of late Christmas shoppers were straggling out of the building.

No one was injured.

The total to be granted asylum is being raised from 5,000, the White House said, because of "an emergency problem" thrust upon Austria with scores of thousands of refugees crowding into that country from Hungary.

And there was a hint there may be another increase later. Referring to the current jump to 21,500, a statement issued at Eisenhower's vacation headquarters here said:

"When these numbers have been exhausted, the situation will be re-examined."

UNDER TWO ACTS

Of the 21,500 to be offered asylum, only about 6,500 can be brought into the U. S. under provisions of the Refugee Relief Act, which expires Dec. 31.

The other 15,000 will be admitted as "parolees" under discretion given to the attorney-general, the White House said, in the General Immigration and Nationality Act.

Persons admitted as parolees have no permanent residence status in the U. S., but it was announced that Eisenhower in January will ask Congress to enact emergency legislation to let Hungarian refugees in that category stay.

The White House statement said Eisenhower feels the expanded U. S. program will "give practical effect to the American people's intense desire to help the victims of Soviet oppression."

U.S. Wants Dollars For Its Oil

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States appeared today to have adopted a cautious attitude toward helping Europe pay for emergency American oil shipments.

Responsible officials said requests for dollar aid would be handled on a country-by-country basis.

The government Friday ordered into effect long-standing emergency plans to ship about 500,000 barrels of oil daily to Europe, but said nothing about special credit terms.

European governments will be expected, officials said, to dig into their own treasuries for scarce dollars to pay for American oil shipments for at least a month—perhaps longer.

Tentative plans drawn up in August, after Egypt seized the Suez Canal, had included provisions for U. S. export-import bank loans to help Europe finance the oil purchases.

Britain, France and Italy, these informants agreed, probably will be hit hardest by the need to divert dollars to buy American fuel.

Book Prizes For Students At Esquimalt

New scholarship plan will be introduced at Esquimalt High School this year, principal Clive Kelly said today.

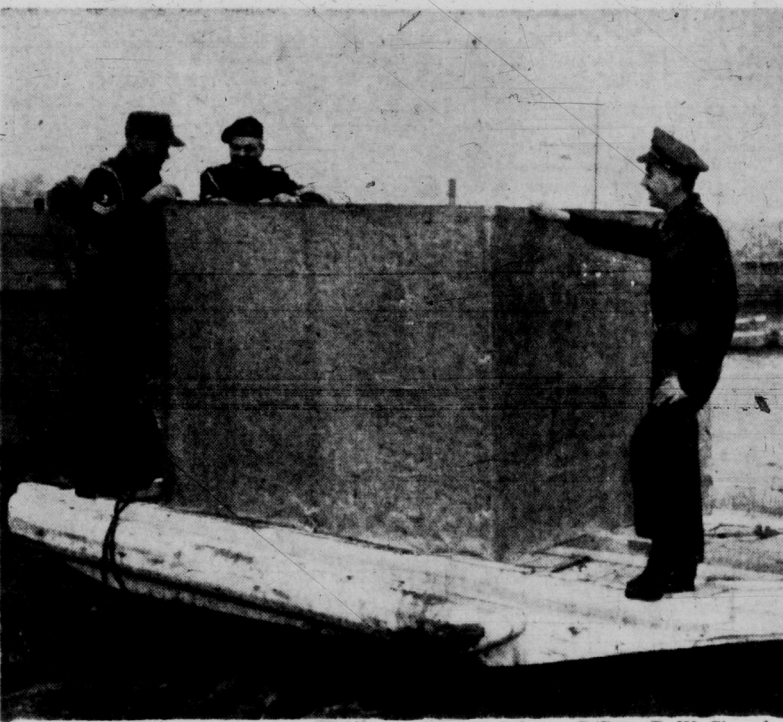

The school's PTA has endorsed his plan to award book prizes to academic leaders in high school and honor certificates to top students in the junior high.

Formerly the PTA awarded $10 to leading students in each grade and honor pins to other students. Honor pin distribution will continue with the book prize awards.

The scholarship fund now stands at $100 and another $100 should be raised to make the plan successful, Mr. Kelly said. "We hope local service clubs and businesses will donate to the fund and that parents will get behind and give their children encouragement."

'WHY WERE DEPARTMENT STORES CONSULTED?'

Council Ignored Expert On Trade Fees, Says VLC

The Victoria Labor Council Friday charged the 1951 city council ignored the recommendations of an expert on municipal financing and called instead on two department stores to help formulate trades licence revision.

The statement was made by VLC president Jack McKenzie at a public hearing arranged by Aldermen Don Smith and Austin-Curtis, council's special trades licence committee.

The VLC claimed the report of Carl Goldenberg, noted Canadian economist, was available to the 1951 council. Mr. Goldenberg had made specific recommendations on business taxes which, the VLC said, the city passed over.

The VLC claimed the 1947 report of Carl Goldenberg, noted Canadian economist, was available to the 1951 council. Mr. Goldenberg had made specific recommendations on business taxes which, the VLC said, the city passed over.

SCURRAH MEMBER

Mr. McKenzie said he had studied a report made by a 1951 trades licence investigating committee of which Mayor Percy Scurrah (then an alderman) was a member.

"He asked the mayor to explain why he had stated Victoria might lose as much as $30,000 annually from a revision of trades licences."

He also asked if it's true the 1951 committee had requested T. Eaton Co. and Hudson's Bay Co. to lend the services of experienced employees to assist the committee in overcoming inequalities in trades licences.

WHY?

Noting the reports of Mr. Goldenberg (and Prof. G. R. Elliot, who advised the committee) were available, Mr. McKenzie asked: "Why were two business firms asked for help?"

He said a Hudson's Bay Co. employee compiled a brief for the 1951 council which was kept confidential until turned over recently to the labor council by Ald. Smith.

This brief concluded: "It is best to continue using the present business licence system, though its inequities are recognized, so long as the charges remain relatively light and those who have to pay do not protest too vigorously."

BUSINESS TAX

Mr. McKenzie said VLC recommend "immediate" implementation of the Goldenberg report by establishing a business tax similar to New Westminster and Vancouver, based on annual rental values.

Council candidate, city lawyer W. J. Moresby, representing Victoria Branch, Vancouver Island Ratepayers' Association, said too much tax burden is placed on the working man and the old age pensioner.

Business is not paying its fair share, he said. He pointed also to the Goldenberg report which called business tax the most common form of taxation apart from real property tax.

He said some cities, according to Goldenberg, received 10 per cent of their revenue from business taxes.

Eric Charman, who is employed by the real estate firm headed by Ald. Smith, said his appearance was on behalf of several trade licence holders.

He recommended the abolition of the present trade licence scale of fees and instead a nominal trade licence charge of $1 per year. He urged imposition of a business tax.

Jet Bomber Crash 'Streak of Fire'

CASTLE AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP)—A giant swept-wing B-52, the U.S. Air Force's biggest A-bomb carrier, crashed in a "streak of fire" Friday night, killing all 10 men aboard.

The eight-jet cigar-nosed airplane was taking off from this central California Strategic Air Command base when it suddenly crashed into a plowed field about 150 miles south of San Francisco.

"We saw one huge flash about a mile away and just before it hit the ground we saw another explosion," said Alfred Stockman, one of two anti-aircraft men from the base who were in a car near the crash site.

"It hit the earth flat and bounced and then it went on over another three-quarters of a mile, over the road, then it hit again and it really exploded."

It was the third and worst fatal B-52 crash in California this year.

Last week eight B-52s completed non-stop flights of 13,700 and 17,000 miles—each approximately twice the distance to Russia. The air force called the flights the longest ever made by its foremost atomic bomb carrier.

A Vote of Confidence

WHEN THE LIBERAL, CCF and Social Credit Parties in Parliament all support the Government in a vote of 171 members to 36 Conservatives these figures may not reflect public opinion mathematically. But such an overwhelming verdict of confidence in the Government's foreign policy must reflect at least a large majority in the nation.

At the last minute the Conservative Party seemed to realize that its almost hysterical attacks on Canada's action in the Suez crisis had been greatly overdone, were not seriously damaging the Government but, on the contrary, were damaging the official Opposition and also the nation. While they could have kept Parliament in session for some days more, the Conservatives suddenly ended this strategy and disengaged. Then they voted unanimously to support the Government's current policies. The spectacle of the opening days was wisely ended.

Mr. Diefenbaker, the prospective Conservative leader, evidently realized that his party's anger and its purely negative no-confidence motion were doing it and the national interest no good. Not yet being their leader he could not control his colleagues, but he could and did show his own attitude. It was the attitude of a man who realizes that the world crisis is too big for vain regrets, too complex for mere recrimination and too dangerous for partisan politics.

His constructive proposal for a conference of Britain, the United States and Canada at Quebec City, the scene of two great Allied conferences in wartime, probably is impractical at the moment. The Allies unfortunately are not yet ready for such a meeting and if it were called without adequate preparation and then failed of agreement, as it probably would, the result would be disastrous.

In any case, the Governments in London, Washington and Ottawa are already working quietly, despite the public clamor on both sides of the ocean, to repair the injury of recent weeks and, we feel sure, will succeed. Nevertheless, if Mr. Diefenbaker's plan is impractical for the present it reveals a Conservative leader of imagination and courage—the imagination to see past the immediate squabbles of politics and the courage to reject the fury of his colleagues.

Whether these qualities have assured his choice as leader at the forthcoming convention or have undermined him remains to be seen. Whatever the convention may decide, the nation at large, we believe, will approve his position.

In some respects, and on both sides of the House, the week's debate was unsatisfactory. Probably it could not have been otherwise when the Government was formally charged with betraying both Canada and Britain, when the deepest passions were aroused and men under an almost intolerable strain were goaded into extreme statements.

Even Mr. St. Laurent, speaking extemporaneously and without notes, said some words that undoubtedly he will regret, that will be misunderstood and misrepresented. Mr. Pearson, however, kept his head as usual. His two speeches were admirable in their restraint and entirely constructive in their intention.

All parties seemed to realize in the end that it was useless and irrelevant to argue events now beyond recall. The important fact is that no one was prepared to oppose the Government's policy as it stands today—full co-operation with the United Nations—and, above all, the Government's attempt to bring our two great friends together after a temporary breach.

A spasm of emotion—doubtless an unavoidable spasm—has ended. The nation is united behind today's policy, whatever it may be. Think about the Government's actions a month ago. With a clear vote of confidence which must indicate the people's general will, Mr. Pearson can now go back to work in New York and Washington. During the next few critical days he will be needed there.

The Challenge to CHEK-TV

VICTORIA'S FIRST TELEVISION station, CHEK-TV, starts broadcasting this evening, climaxing months of negotiation and effort by its principals. A new communication outlet is always a welcome and healthy asset to a city, and Times readers will join us in wishing them well.

The local station goes on the air at a time when the entire structure of broadcasting in this country is being examined by a Royal commission. In the main, private radio broadcasters have argued that they should be allowed to "give the public what it wants"—even if that means hour after hour of Elvis Presley and adolescent cowboys, with noisome commercials injected between the records.

The CBC (meeting expenses out of the public purse) says that Canada can and should do better. To that end, it has concentrated on good music, serious discussion and superior drama, and won widespread acclaim for its performance.

At the same time, there is growing concern in the United States about the future of the infant television industry. In a few lightning strokes, it has demonstrated its power for good in the country, as an educator and entertainer. But—as every TV fan knows—the overwhelming mass of its product to date has been H2PX, which one American commentator defines as "hocus-pocus, double strength."

In short, a steady diet of canned movies, banal quizzes, repetitive "production numbers," dubious faith healers and dancing cassettes is not good enough. People with two or three years' experience of the medium are already exercising their discriminating instincts by using as little as 30 minutes or an hour an evening, to follow programs of undisputed merit.

With all this in mind, and as B.C.'s first private station, CHEK-TV facts both an opportunity and a challenge. Wisely handled, it can use its new power to instruct, to educate, to support worthwhile community projects, to encourage a love of good music, good literature and good debate. It can eschew the shoddy and meretricious.

In brief it will have, through the modern miracle of electronics, a chance to be of vast service to its area. Before very long, it will be in a position to flash the "Victoria story" to the outermost limits of this nation. We hope that it will emerge as a balanced and accurate picture.

Great Victories, Fine Examples

HALF A WORLD APART, TWO great athletes yesterday won two great events.

In Melbourne, Ron Delany, 21, beat a magnificent field of milers to win the Olympic 1,500 metres, the metric mile, for Ireland. In Chicago, Floyd Patterson, also 21, defeated Archie Moore for the world's heavyweight fight championship.

To each goes his own glory, and to Patterson the material rewards assured those who are at the top of his profession.

With this acclaim also goes a responsibility. These are young men who will be idols of a young generation devoted to sport. As they conduct themselves so will their influence extend to countless youngsters. From their deportment to date their examples should be inspirations to good sportsmanship.

There Is Even Something Pleasant About It

From The Times (London).

"SAY, Captain" will apparently be for the future the correct form of address in the South African forces. So at least we gather from the announcement that the rank of the person addressed will be used and that "Sir" will be dropped.

We cannot presume to dictate and other people's soldiers must do as they choose; but we may hope that no exaggerated feeling for the moral dignity of man will abolish "Sir" in this country, whether in military or civilian society.

All of us cannot aspire to its use as, in Sir Osbert Sitwell's words, "the sacrificial monosyllable that is the correct reply to a superior officer in the Brigade of Guards"; but in other spheres there is scarcely a word that can express so much and so variously.

What will a Minister of the Crown do without it? Today he can answer one of those tortuous questions beginning, "Is the minister aware that..." with a simple and unadorned "No, Sir."

We could not love Dr. Johnson as we do but for his constant use of "Sir." He would be a commonplace shadow of himself without it. It adds a formality to his abrupt rudeness and makes it seem almost a courtesy, if an annihilating one. "I have found you an argument; but I am not obliged to find you an understanding" would be merely crude without its essential beginning.

In some ways "Sir" may be dying out, as, for instance, as a rebuke. Neither is it so frequently employed to convey anger.

Observe how Mr. Pickwick protested

As Our Readers See It

Whose Bricks?

The gentleman who wrote under the heading of "Stop throwing bricks" very obviously doesn't practice what he would like to preach.

Does he realize that Britain and France were deluged with "bricks" for their action in Egypt while Messrs. St. Laurent and Pearson were receiving pats on the back and throwing a few bricks themselves?

Now it seems that the Anglo-French movement is being given the recognition that some people were too slow to see originally—that by their promptness they averted more serious trouble and possibly a complete Russian domination.

In days gone by, as far as Britain is concerned it was a case of "too little and too late," this time she was on time.

Good luck to Sir Anthony Eden and his Government.

No Proof

The quotation in your issue of Nov. 27 from the Peterborough Examiner in praise of skeptics and stating "the responsibility of human beings is to use their heads," is undeniable.

But a skeptic can easily become a follower of the noted skeptic philosopher Pyrrho who ended up by doubting everything.

Simply because a thing is beyond one's personal comprehension is no proof that it is untrue.

Schools or Casinos?

A leading article on the subject of ethics in the current issue of the Humanist (U.S.) reads in part: "Practically speaking, the area of ethics and morality is vast and apparently trackless to all but advanced thinkers. Explorers of this dimly lit jungle from Aristotle to Bertrand Russell have tried to map it; but their records are, to the average man, frequently as confusing as the area they have explored."

After reading tonight's Times I am also confused. Wallace Reburn, writing on Britain's Premium Bonds, informs us that "Children under 16 can't buy them (safeguarding the young against gambling) but an adult can make out a form on a youngster's behalf."

Then a few pages further in the article headed "Across B.C." it is stated that two men in Vancouver "were each fined $100 for operating a gambling house. The charges followed a bingo raid in August."

And on the same page there are two advertisements for bingo games that are to be held in two of our own High and Junior High Schools, with cash prizes as high as $500.

I do not consider that gambling is necessarily morally wrong, but I do maintain that if it is morally wrong and detrimental to the youth of the community, as our school trustees have stated, then these same trustees should not permit gambling in our public schools. Are we to vote to raise $5,600,000 for schools so that we can have bigger and better bingo games?

Strength in Unity

There are two vital viewpoints which seem to have been overlooked. In the holler that has been overheard against England by Messrs. Eisenhower and St. Laurent. The first is that in unity lies strength. United we stand, divided we fall. One would have thought that Eisenhower, at least, was soldier enough to remember this elementary principle.

The second is a question of morality. Nasser broke a contract. The Suez Canal is not actually Egyptian property, it belongs to the shareholders whose money built it, and by far the largest shareholder is Great Britain. Next is France.

The contract, which holds good until 1969, permits any ship of any nation, whether armed or not, free use of the Canal (except for tolls, which go to Egypt). Nasser would not allow the ships of Israel to use it.

The contract has a clause which permits Britain or France to land an army on Egyptian soil at any time that the safety of the Canal is threatened. Nasser therefore had no right at all to object. All this talk of "aggression" or "invasion" by the British and French is propaganda, maliciously put forth by their enemies, and it is a mistake born of inexcusable ignorance of world affairs.

So now we have to endure the shocking spectacle of the Canadian delegate to the U.N. trotting along behind the U.S.A. like a well-trained lap-dog, obediently doing as he is told. The representative, we hope, of a minority of Canadians.

We also watch with amazement the U.N. cringing before Nasser, obeying his edicts with alacrity, allowing him to dictate the disposal and activities of the U.N. police force, scolded, bowing their heads before Nasser's obvious intention to make profitable use of this alleged "police force" for his own ends.

LOOSE ENDS

Is There a Candle in Your Window?

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

IN THE middle of November the excellent Chatelaine magazine arrived at my home and I was delighted to find that the eminent American writer, Mrs. Pearl M. Buck was ready for Christmas.

"Each gift," she says, "is wrapped and labeled. . . . Holly wreaths hang at the windows and red candles gleam on the chimney piece. Everything in the house is ready for Christmas."

A magazine distributed in mid-November must have gone to press at least a month before. That would be mid-October. Allowing Mrs. Buck time to write her piece, I calculate that she must have put pen to paper about mid-September. The gifts were evidently wrapped and labeled, the holly wreaths hung and the candles lighted in the last hot days of summer.

THERE is nothing like being ready in plenty of time though I wonder how the holly wreaths lasted throughout the autumn and how the candles could have burned so long—extra large candles, I suppose, and a superior species of holly, unknown in these regions.

Anyway, it is reassuring to find one housewife in North America who tackles the problem of Christmas with that stern efficiency and mass-production system essential these days when Christmas has become a big business proposition.

On the other hand, the well-managed home of Mrs. Buck must humiliate the housewives around here who, a month from the great Christmas festival, have not wrapped a single gift, hung a wreath, lighted a candle or even started to overdraw their husbands' bank accounts. We are gradually learning out here but we are far from mastering the big business proposition of Christmas.

MRS. BUCK could hardly foresee this in mid-September but subsequent events have assured a perfect setting for a Merry Christmas.

For example, what a fine white Christmas it will be for the Hungarians moving across the snow of Siberia not to be sure, in the traditional sleigh to the jingle of bells but in the next best thing, a cattle car to the click of machine-guns.

Again, how timely and appropriate it is that the Jews should be moving out of Egypt back to the scene of the first Christmas with the kindly assistance of Egyptian bayonets and the blessings of a new Santa Claus disguised as Colonel Nasser! Nearby the Suez Canal is certainly gift-wrapped and the candles burning in the world's window are the largest that money can buy. As Mrs. Buck observed back in September, a Merry, Merry Christmas to you all.

BUT, ALAS, there is one traditional rite missing from the Canadian Christmas. Dr. Brock Chisholm, so far as one can see from the press reports, has abandoned his annual attempt to remove Santa Claus. Having failed there, he has turned his attention to God and is doing his best to remove Him.

Probably they were unfair to Dr. Chisholm, but most people gathered, until recently, that the troubles of the world could be traced largely to the presence of Santa Claus in the minds of the young. Now it appears that we are suffering from the presence of God in the minds of the old, though I am bound to say that I had hardly noticed this phenomenon.

NOW, I have no objection to Dr. Chisholm attacking God if he thinks it necessary in the Christmas season. I object only to his apparent assumption that he has made a blinding original discovery and is preaching a brand new doctrine.

More than a hundred years ago Lord Melbourne, Queen Victoria's first prime minister, said the same thing, and said it much better. Religion, he protested, should not be introduced into a man's personal life. But various philosophers were pronouncing similar theories, with the most convincing scientific data, in Roman times, and earlier than that in Greek times and still earlier in ancient Egyptian times. Dr. Chisholm has no copyright on his idea. He is, I regret to say, a very old-fashioned sort of man.

IN A prairie newspaper the other day a mischievous writer chided Dr. Chisholm for saying that there was no Santa Claus and argued, with convincing scientific data, that there might be no Dr. Chisholm.

"The mind," says this authority, "tells us that in the outside world there is a solid, rounded, quite substantial object that corresponds exactly with an image that the mind has labeled 'Dr. Chisholm.' But the mind is limited. For all it knows that seemingly substantial object is a swirling electronic mass made up of one part energy and 99 parts empty space. Its configuration is not stable for two instants in succession. It may, in fact, be nothing but a writhing knot in the space-time continuum and the careful parent will think twice before he tells his child that there really is a Dr. Chisholm."

IN A scientific sense this may be true. Not being a scientist, being only a practical realist without Dr. Chisholm's high idealism and splendid whimsy, I would prefer the verdict of Voltaire. As Voltaire said of Dr. Chisholm, "there were no Dr. Chisholm in the Universe it would be necessary to invent him, if for no other reason, than to assure a Merry Christmas."

WHEN WE WERE VERY YOUNG

By GUS SIVERTZ

Desperate Night-Time Doings in the House

THERE is a carved cupola of native oak over Mr. Speaker's throne in the legislative buildings which is much stronger than it looks. Even though some of the sections which compose it appear to have separated a little from each other the whole wooden canopy is still pretty sturdy.

At least it was early in 1908, when it was put to a test that its architects had never for a moment contemplated for the fragile-looking piece of handicraft.

My boyhood friend and partner in the escapade that tested the cupola was a Wallie Behnen, son of one of Sir Richard McBride's followers in the legislature. He conceived our audacious plan and I was merely the humble follower who trailed in his wake in some trepidation but in a glow of anticipation of what our adventure would bring.

The nub of the plan was simply that we would enter the buildings in the afternoon, stroll around for a while and then hide until the horde of civil servants had disappeared for the night.

Personal Tour

Then we planned to emerge, dodge janitors—which was easy enough—and start an unorthodox and uncondemned tour of our very fine legislative building.

Although I was quite young it seemed to me that in those days there was much more spontaneous gaiety and jollity among members than there is today. Of course some of this may be due to the fact that wines and liquors were served in the members' luncheon room for any who wished them.

Certainly there was a breeziness and boyishness around the rather austere marble halls that is obviously absent today. Well, perhaps it is all for the best and simply marks another milestone in democratic progress; but a lot of color has drained away at the same time.

I know that debates were much longer than today and there was more fulsome oratory and less acrimony than in this more enlightened age. Perhaps the fact that many members who had jousted all afternoon in terrific verbal battles in the House would spend half the night in friendly poker games had something to do with the bonhomie that often existed even between men of opposite political stripe.

There was also in that legislature a man who was probably the most silent member in British Columbia's history. He was J. H. Schofield, of Ymir—a little town about half way between Nelson and Trail—who sat in the legislature for about 20 years.

I think it is a matter of record that he maintained a complete silence on the floor of the House in all that time—a precedent that has not affected his successors. He was a very quiet and gentle soul but an indefatigable worker on committees and in behalf of his constituents.

Another notable member of that legislature was Mr. Speaker, D. M. Eberts, who was the antithesis of Mr. Schofield and a very fearsome man, indeed. At least I stood in complete awe of him. Once he put me in my place properly when I inadvertently referred to a pedigreed dog as a "throughbred."

Horses Only

Mr. Eberts snorted at my abysmal ignorance. A thoroughbred is a horse, he told me, and the term is not applicable to any other member of the animal kingdom.

But this digression has really nothing to do with our little exploratory adventure.

Everything went off according to plan—as the military like to say. We took off our shoes and slipped silently along the smooth hallways and then tiptoed down into the basement which was made of hand-hewn stone for all the world like ancient dungeons.

Our voices made weird echoes in the cold stone passages.

Next we visited the legislative chamber and conceived the brilliant notion of crawling, one after the other, over the carved cupola over the Speaker's throne.

The bone-dry wood creaked and protested and we thought that at any moment it would collapse. But it held until we slid down and dropped to the carpeted floor just as a janitor poked his head in to see what on earth the creaking was all about.

We didn't wait to enlighten him but scooped up our boots and raced for a side door into freedom, bursting with pride in our achievement.

Contempt of Press

SINCE this column is an austere concern which devotes its income to putting first things first, it follows the advice of Dr. Johnson (Sam, not George) and minds its belly: "as the good doctor said, a man who will not mind his belly is not likely to mind anything else, and Silenus is convinced of the truth of this statement."

So much time is accordingly devoted to cooking and eating and drinking and that there is no room for TV in this column's busy life. Such spare moments as it can snatch from the table are devoted to reading those quaint curiosities known as Books. It's surprising what some of them contain.

The other night this column was reclining in its slumbrous couch pursuing a weighty legal work by Sir Carleton Allen, a man who can always be relied on to temper his weight with wit, and was just about to drop off to sleep, perchance to dream of torts and frauds, when Sir Carleton suddenly switched his fire from the Civil Service to the Press. Silenus has been sleepless ever since.

Most lawyers and legal writers at some time have delivered broadsides at the burden of bureaucracy under which we groan, but few take issue with the insubers of the spoken word. When they do, they pull no punches. Listen to this: "It is an extract from a Judge's Charge to the jury in a murder case, which Sir Carleton gleefully quotes verbatim:

"It is most improper to refer to this place as a Court of Justice. It is something far more than that. It is the biggest free entertainment that the State provides for its citizens."

Lone Role for Canada

IT has been said time and again through the years that Canada has a role to play as a bridge between the United Kingdom and the United States.

Never since Canada started having a foreign policy of her own has there been such a split between London and Washington as has stemmed from the events in the Middle East. As they have drifted apart, the bridge found itself loose from its moorings at both ends. It is loose enough to stand on its own pions and is doing so, sounding appropriate warning signals in both directions and waiting for the two sides to come closer together.

Another member of the Commonwealth, Australia, tried to throw an emergency pontoon structure across the gap between the U.S. and the U.K., but she found it tough going.

In Washington's eyes, Australia is tarred with the British brush.

The other day, I stood with a member of the Australian delegation in the delegates' lounge here.

"How serious is the split between London and Washington?" I asked him.

"Ruddy serious indeed," he replied. "If it weren't, do you think we'd be screaming as loudly as we are?"

A member of the United States delegation came by.

The Australian hailed him, and asked in half-jocular fashion: "When are you blokes going to get together with the U.K. people?"

The American replied: "As soon as they get the hell out of Egypt. Once that happens, we'll get together soon enough."

The Australian commented that by that time, it might be too late.

"Listen," said the American, "I only hope you Australians are working as hard on the zens: you must not forget your duty to the thousands—nay, millions—of your fellow citizens who, not having heard the evidence and not having even read it except in frenzied headlines and garbled gobblets, are obviously in a better position to judge than we can be in the deplorably unimpassioned atmosphere of this Court.

"You have other duties, members of the jury, of which the prosecution has made no mention. You have a duty to the press. You are not to forget that this case has supplied the newspaper press of this country with better copy than 10 wars and 50 earthquakes, and has given it more opportunities of debauching the public mind and stimulating the criminal instincts of the community than any other event in the present century."

Phew! If an English judge can say that to a jury, I hope no Canadian occasion for such words ever arises. But as our population grows, so does the circulation of the sensational newspaper, and then the whole press suffers.

No responsible journal in Canada would merit such knife-work from the Bench, I am sure: "trial by newspaper" inevitably seems to occur in the humbler organs called "yellow." Nevertheless, it does no harm for the public to be told every now and then that the judicial process can only take place in court.

BY THE WAY — Last week a well-known daily columnist of this newspaper, a certain M. Rxbxts, ground out a piece on the perils and peccadilloes of Pretty Kitty, and asked assistance from the superior wisdom of this column. Ever ready to oblige, I have taken the matter in hand and stand ready at any time to look after the interest of all Mr. Rxbxts' admiring lady friends. Pretty Kitty, Merry Terry and such others as may have the misfortune to come under his protecting wing. But if he is merely scrounging material for his daily effusion, as this column suspects, I must insist on seeing my client, in person, in the privacy of the police court, and not in the plagiaristic presence of her protector.

SINGERS AID SCOUTS, CUBS IN FINE SHOW

Entertainment of a high order was presented Friday when Victoria's Meistersingers put on a program in support of district Scouts, Guides and Cubs at Gordon Head Elementary School.

The audience was not as large as expected, but those present enjoyed the versatility, control and clarity of the singers.

Assisting the Meistersingers were Betty and Her Buddies, who handled spiritual and barbershop selections with deftness, and Ruth Champion, soloist in the evening, whose voice was pleasing.

Conductor and MC was Dudley Wicklett.

2,810 Forest Fires in B.C. Worst Ever

Last summer 2,810 fires roared through British Columbia's forest wealth—the largest number ever recorded in one year and almost double the average for the last decade.

Total area burned was 471,724 acres or 10 times 1953.

A report issued by the B.C. Forest Service blames the increase on the long, dry summer, plus increased travel and industrial activity in the woods during the six months of the hazy season.

EARLY COMBAT

Final figures on the average fire size are expected to show the trend toward hitting them earlier and harder has been maintained due to the forest service's detection and suppression methods.

The report shows that the $500,000 it cost the forest service to extinguish 2,810 fires this year is only one-third of the cost of putting out 1,923 fires in 1951.

Worst fire area in B.C. was Vancouver Forest District with 1,462 fires.

Worst week during 1956 for fire outbreaks was that of May 25, with 329 new fires.

RAILWAYS BLAMED

"Lightning as a cause of fire was displaced this year by railways," an official of the forest service said. "Our figures show that railways caused 1,090 fires, or 38.79 per cent of the total number, up from 14.89 per cent in 1955."

The official said the 1956 percentages testify that people generally are becoming more fire conscious.

In 1955, 14.09 per cent of fires were caused by campers and travellers. This year only 7.62 per cent were so caused.

Smokers, always a favorite target for fire prevention propaganda, must be taking heed as their percentage dropped from 14.89 per cent in 1955 to 10 per cent this year.

Duncan Acclaims City Symphony

By AUDREY ST.D. JOHNSON, Times Music Critic

On Friday evening the city of Duncan became momentarily, in the words of Mayor Jack Dobson, "the music centre of Vancouver Island." It was the first of three concerts by the Victoria Symphony Orchestra at Cowichan High School in Duncan.

An audience that exceeded all expectations—between 600 and 800—turned out to give an enthusiastic welcome to the orchestra, its conductor, Hans Gruber, and guest artist, violinist Esther Glazer.

BIG RESPONSE

There could be no doubting the complete success of the new venture. With hand, foot and voice, Duncan music lovers responded to some of the best playing the orchestra has done so far this season.

Enthusiastic comments were heard on all sides. Said one man: "We had no idea what we were missing."

And a woman accompanied by a small wide-eyed girl commented: "Linda's never heard a live orchestra before. Now I know I should have bought season tickets."

Most familiar work on the program was the Tchaikovsky Violin Concerto and it had a fine, traditional performance at the gifted hands of charming Esther Glazer.

SYMPATHETIC STYLE

Her tone is opulent, almost masculine, the melodic phrases are beautifully sung in a broad yet sympathetic style. She has a robust, fluent technique that allows her to swarm through involved cadenzas and other virtuosic passages with an easy competence.

On the podium Gruber was in top form, revealing even more authority than usual, particularly in his fine and spirited reading of Elgar's "Enigma" Variations.

While all parts of this work were not uniformly successful, the general effect was imaginative, at times poetic and often immensely stimulating.

The orchestra's response was gratifying. There was excellent attack and a quite splendid diversity of color in the Variations as well as in Aaron Copland's light-hearted "Outdoor Overture."

The program will be repeated in Victoria, Sunday afternoon, and Monday evening, at the Royal Theatre, and should prove one of the more memorable of the current season.

Business arrangements at the Duncan end for Friday's concert were undertaken by the Duncan Business and Professional Women's Club as a community service.

To Perform 'Henry IV'

Thirty-five University School boys will take part in an ambitious presentation of Shakespeare's Henry IV, Part I, at the school, Richmond Road, on Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings.

With the same director, Christopher Berrisford, and four principal players from the cast which made so favorable an impression with their Trial Scene from Bernard Shaw's "Saint Joan" at the last School Drama Festival, this will undoubtedly prove a most interesting performance.

The "Saint Joan" excerpt was a highlight of the honor performance of the 1956 school festival.

An added note of interest is in the fact that a special apron stage designed by Mr. Berrisford, has been built by the boys themselves.

The December 6 performance is specially for students who will be admitted at a reduced price. Intending patrons should note the curtain time of 7:45, which is the same for all three performances.

About 10 billion persons attend movie theatres throughout the world each year.

HANS GRUBER CONDUCTS

Germanic Choir and Soloists Contribute to Musical Culture

Concert Tonight Introduces Stelzner As Choir Leader; New Guest Artists

This evening, at Victoria High School Auditorium, at 8.15 p.m., a concert of unusual interest will be given, by a recently organized musical group which promises to attain a standard deserving of hearing by all who are music minded.

I refer to the Choir of the German-Canadian Club; Hans Stelzner, director. It is on the strength of Stelzner's name that I have blind confidence in the high standard of the choir and tonight's concert, which, along with choral music, will also offer, by way of well-planned variety, instrumental and solo-vocal selections.

Hans Stelzner, as you all know, has been during these past four years, solo horn in the Victoria Symphony Orchestra, having come from Germany after a lifetime of professional music-making.

Influence of a Fine Musician

He is, however, not only a product of that most exacting German horn-playing tradition; he is also a graduate choral director, and a highly able horn, piano, and theory pedagogue.

In concept it is not unlike the "High and the Mighty," a comparison of human behavior under stress. The eleven passengers aboard the beat-up old Aere Pan Latina plane that crashes into the Amazon jungle filled with headhunters included Rod Steiger, a political assassin; gangster Jesse White who is guardian of six-year-old John Provost; hard-drinking cop Fred Clark; bride-to-be Phyllis Kirk; de-virtuted lady Anita Ekberg; a kindly professor and his elderly wife; pilot Robert Ryan and his co-pilot Keith Andes.

Basic Human Instinct Hailed As New, Personal Discovery

TRY GIVING YOURSELF AWAY, by David Dunn, Prentice-Hall Inc., New York.

With an intriguing title and a fanfare of publicity, David Dunn presents as his own discovery something that has been going on since the world began and is becoming more common every day.

"Try Giving Yourself Away" is described as an amazing book. It is.

Few writers could become so self-righteous about so little or proclaim such an age-old instinct as a personal discovery.

The philosophy, however, is sound but not new — give a helping hand whenever you can; don't be slow with a compliment.

In a plethora of words the author describes this as an important discovery he made 20 years ago while lying awake in bed.

Quote—This little adventure-in-giving made the world more exciting for four people that evening; the popcorn vendor, too, enjoyed the episode—unquote.

ONCE VARIED

The author relates that only once in recent years has he varied his giving-away philosophy. Suggesting an idea to a shoe manufacturer he hinted he wouldn't be averse to receiving a pair of shoes in payment.

The manufacturer sent him a gift certificate. With the certificate the author selected a smart pair of shoes of an expensive last.

The shoes didn't fit his feet and it took him months to recover from the damage, he writes. "So now," he adds, "when I give away an idea there isn't even a shoestring attached."

There follows more than a hundred pages of what can fairly be classed as a sermon, well sprinkled with complimentary references from readers who saw "Try Giving Yourself Away" in the form of a smaller book published in 1947.

Few readers will disagree with what the author says as he merely emphasizes the value of well-established principles daily examples of which are so common as to excite no comment. His advocacy of them on a mass production scale, however, could possibly lead to embarrassment or detract from their value.

The book fits a recent trend towards commercializing religion through selling sermons for three or four dollars in thousand lots.

On the other hand you may prefer to take the word of the famous Dr. Norman Vincent Peale who has projected a few million words in similar vein himself.

"It's a wonderful book," he says, "giving yourself away is an old principle, he admits, but adds, 'It equals in importance the discovery of atomic energy.'"

A Diplomat's Personal Vision

A WINDOW ON THE NORTH, by R. A. D. Ford, Ryerson Press.

Out of 15 years in Canada's foreign service, R. A. D. Ford has woven a book of verse in which his Canadian background blends with his observation of life in Russia and South America. In A Window on the North Mr. Ford places translations from Russian and Brazilian poets beside verse written from his own keenly felt experience.

His cool and unimpassioned method is illustrated in the opening lines of his title poem: The whole landscape drifted away to the north, To Moose Factory, hundreds of miles, to the pole And beyond, to the Arctic ends of the earth, Sullen, Siberian, Grey, only the hills and Humps of snow, and the frightening black Of the evergreens before us.

But this is not simply descriptive poetry. Mr. Ford uses landscape to set the tone. The poem ends:

A geranium plant stood on the shelf behind him, Putney in extremis. Suddenly it was all red with flower, Glowing with matic, defiant to the great White bear. I thought of you in the sweet South; and the wind at the windows was only A warm breeze to melt the icicles of sleep.

Obviously Mr. Ford brought great care, sympathy and fellow-feeling to his translations. Perhaps the most moving of these is The Golden Grove by

HUMORIST

Bruce West, popular columnist of the Toronto Globe and Mail before he moved over to the promotion side of the business, has collected a number of his bright, readable pieces in "A Change of Pace" (University of Toronto Press).

Mr. West is an expert with "the human touch," whether it be in his struggles to erect a Christmas tree, to brew a pot of vegetable soup, or the manipulations of a family budget.

A good Christmas gift for that time he was charge d'affaires, friend with a sense of humor.

Archives Bequeathed $1,000 Freak Stamp

By REG NAIRNE

Mr. Willard Ireland, provincial archivist, has announced that his department has just fallen heir to a philatelic windfall of unusual interest and value, in the form of a very fine used specimen of the rare unperfected 5-cent Vancouver Island stamp of 1865.

The stamp was bequeathed to the Archives by the late Ross O'Shaughnessy, pioneer San Francisco stamp dealer, who started business in that city prior to the earthquake.

Ross died two years ago, but owing to protracted legal formalities the estate was only settled the other day.

CITY BOOSTER

Ross had many friends in Victoria, for he was a regular visitor for many years, and was one of our city's most ardent boosters. While in town he always dropped in for a chat with Mr. Ireland, when he would generally look over the beautiful and valuable collection of British Columbia stamps on view in the Archives.

There was just one item in the collection that always bothered him—the rarest stamp of the lot, the 5c imperforate of Vancouver Island, showed signs of having been repaired, though all the other issues were perfect.

GENUINE IMPERFORATE

Now Ross, during his years of trading, had acquired a very fine used specimen of this rarity. It was lightly cancelled, had large even margins, and for good measure, a corner of an adjoining stamp attached to it, proving conclusively that it was a genuine imperforate, and not the cheap perforated variety with its perforations trimmed off.

So, it was a great thrill to the writer when Ross, during his last visit, disclosed that it was his intention to bequeath this rarity to the Archives.

Perhaps, in a later article, the mystery of how a few unperfected sheets of the stamp were mixed in with the ordinary perforated issue will be discussed. Anyhow, this freak variety is one of the rarest of Past, Present and Future Represented in New Books

That massive, controversial and erudite work, Arnold Toynbee's "Historian's Approach to Religion," has appeared this week on the shelves of Victoria Public Library.

A glance over other new titles suggests that it is also possible to do some up-to-the-minute reading as a parallel to the present critical happenings in the world.

Under the sociology head, we can survey our own future with Grace Laugharne, in "Canada Looks Ahead"; while the history shelves present us with "Integrated Europe?", by Michael T. Florinsky, "Gestapo Instrument of Tyranny," by Edward Crankshaw and "Days To Remember," by John Gunther.

The latest look at what we eat, drink and apply externally is contained in Arthur Kallet's "100,000,000 Guinea Pigs." And if that reading gives you a case of jittery nerves, a bit of armchair travel will take the mind off dangers living at home.

Under this head there is "Swiss Spring," by Garry Hogg, "My Boy, Chang," by Hope Danby, "Destination: Barrier Reef," by Arnold C. C. Lock,

GOALS COME TO HIM WHO WAITS

Ray Powell (18) scored Victoria's first goal on this play but had to wait for his chance. Cougar Bill Davidson has fired a shot and watches puck bounce off Calgary goalie Hank Bassen's glove. Doug Macauley (14) blasted rebound back at Bassen and puck dropped where Ray was able to hook it into net. Stampeder defencemen vainly trying to stop play are Sandy Hucul (2) and Mid Houghton (10). Victoria goalie Marcel Pelletier marked up his second shutout in 3-0 win. (Photo by Halkett.)

WHAT'S THE SCORE?

BY

A BIT HERE AND A BIT THERE

It wasn't told in the original stories from Australia but Terry Tobacoff almost blew out the Olympic flame in running the anchor lap for the Canadian team in the 1,600-metre relay heat this week.

When the Cumberland Rocket took the baton for the 400-metre anchor lap, he was in third place, 15 feet behind the Czech anchor man and close to 25 feet behind the United States' Lou Jones.

But with one of those fantastic bursts of speed that Terry can summon when he is behind, he spurred ahead of the Czech, closed on Jones and, with a body-wracking lunge, passed Jones at the tape for a photo finish the judges studied from every angle before giving the nod to Canada.

The most amazing aspect of Terry's performance is that Jones holds the world record of 45.2 for the 400 metres. Terry gave a world champ a 25-foot lead and passed him. One of these years, Terry is going to capture the individual honors that have been eluding him.

It's hard to imagine Lee Fogolin as a lovable type but Johnny Hopkins, of the Calgary Herald, claims that the Calgary Stampeder loves Fogolin and play their hearts out for him.

Calgary's lack of success appears to stem from the same roots as does the Cougars—a sporadic defence and lack of scoring punch from the third line.

Norm Edmonds, former JBAA rowing coach and a tireless student of one of the most grueling sports in the world, has some intriguing observations on the loss Canada's eight-oared crew suffered at the hands of the Yale crew in the Olympics this week.

The University of British Columbia eight, Norm discloses, rows at an almost super-human 42-stroke rate, not just in spurts but for almost the entirety of a race. Most crews will start at a 38-40 stroke to get their boat moving but will drop down to a 32-34 pace.

The high Canadian rate gives the boat more strokes but tends to cut down on the natural "ride" of the shell because of the necessary shortness of the stroke. The Yale crew was able to stay with Canada, using only a 32-stroke for most of the race and in the last 200 metres, accelerated to a 40 stroke that broke the back of the Canadian crew in the closing kick.

Norm says, "I'm certainly not criticizing the crew or Frank Read but it's just that the Yale crew spotted Canada's only weakness and used it to win."

Coach Alfie Pike of the Winnipeg Warriors is close to going around the bend, trying to fathom the idiosyncrasy of Warrior Hughie Bolton. Every time Bolton gets a new set of sticks, he studiously and patiently saws one-eighth of an inch off the butt end of each stick. And he won't tell anyone why he does it.

My two-year-old has developed a new sport—embarrassing her parents. In a loud voice, on a crowded bus on a recent Sunday afternoon, she belted, "Daddy's at the beer parlor."

HIGH SCHOOL SPORTS NOTES

Bays Plan to Write New Soccer Ending

By IAN SMITH

Oak Bay's soccer team will be out to write a different ending to a familiar story when the Bays meet Victoria High in the deciding game of the Inter-High School Senior Soccer League finals at the Vic High pitch Monday.

The Bays were in a similar position at this stage of last year's finale with one win and one loss in the best-of-three series, but they saw victory slip away as Vic High carved out a 2-0 triumph to advance into the provincial final against Vancouver Tech.

Vic High subsequently failed in its bid to wrest the title from the mainland school.

This year, however, coach

DOUBTFUL STARTERS

Injuries may hamper Oak Bay's chances of picking up the title. Inside left Larry Brown, sidelined with a leg injury in last Thursday's second game, is a doubtful starter Monday.

Right winger Brian Cornell was also sidelined Thursday and may not be ready for the deciding tussle. Both were in action when the Bays grabbed a 2-1 decision in the opening match.

But the Bays still expect to upset the defending champions. "We can do it," says Costain. "Our club has the hustle; now all we need are the breaks."

For Vic High, this playing in the soccer final is old stuff. But it is possible to get the Vics to admit they were worried after dropping the opening game.

Coach Keith Long, who was "very happy" after his team came up with a 4-2 victory in the second game, is counting on spirit and team play to give Vic High its third successive championship.

Larivee's shot, with 34 seconds gone in the final period, saved Providence from a shutout.

Stamps Go Thirsty With Marc Pouring

By DENNY BOYD

Victoria Cougars had that "one for the road" they were thirsting for Friday night but Marcel Pelletier tended bar so closely the Calgary Stampeder never once got into the potables.

In their last home game before shoving off on their second prairie tour, Cougars strengthened their option on third place in the coast division by depriving Calgary, 3-0, as Pelletier picked-up his second shutout of the season. Marcel again made teetotalers of Calgary as the horse-collar was his second against the Stamps at Memorial Arena. The last time Calgary were here, Cougars and Pelletier beat them 1-0.

Edmonton Flyers, meanwhile, made it a real rousing party for the Cougars as they defeated Vancouver Canucks on the mainland to lengthen Cougars' third-place lead over Vancouver to three points.

The combination of the two results was exactly what Cougar coach Colin Kilburn was hoping for.

FOUR NEXT WEEK

The Cougars have four tough ones on the prairies next week, meeting Brandon, Winnipeg, Edmonton and Calgary in five nights. But to crack Victoria's three-point barrier, Canucks, who have lost nine in a row since they started their down hill skid, meet Brandon Royals and Seattle Americans, leaders of the coast and prairie divisions respectively, at home and travel to Seattle for their third game of the week.

Strong goaltending by Pelletier, who put the snaffle on 25 Calgary shots for his shutout; heads-up rushing and passing by all three Cougar lines, each of which scored a goal, and an aggressive game by the defence all added up to a sum total of two points for the Cougars.

Ray Powell, who makes that third line look better every night out, opened the Victoria scoring at 11:43 when he was the third man to touch the puck in a wild scramble around the Calgary net. His job shot scoring after Hank Bassen had stopped Bill Davidson and Doug Macauley.

Gordy Haworth scored the second goal and must have delivered a big piece of personal satisfaction from his venture.

Breaking in from the right side, the slender centre was ridden off and crashed into the boards by Stamp defenceman Art Michalik but got his scoring shot away before Michalik pasted him to the boards. In the last meeting between the clubs, Michalik creamed Haworth with a body check that put the Victoria forward out of action for three weeks.

GOAL DISALLOWED

Wayne Brown appeared to have put the Cougars three goals up in the second period as he lifted a high shot off Bruce Carmichael's rebound. Goal judge Doug Bray signalled a goal but referee Scotty Morrison over-ruled him, claiming the puck had hit the cross-bar outside of the net and bounced down short of the goal-line.

There was no doubt, however, about Cougars' final goal as Colin Kilburn followed Macauley on a break in the third period and was in perfect position to rattle home the rebound when Bassen made a fine save from Macauley.

Stampeder, who had referee troubles on their last appearance here, had more of the same Friday night as they were served with two misconduct penalties.

Sandy Hucul got the first for arguing a cross-check penalty to Frank Ashworth while normally mild-mannered Sid Finney drew the second, on haranguing Morrison over an off-side call in which the Stamps appeared to have been victimized.

ROBINSON, APARICO TOP ROOKIES OF '56

NEW YORK (AP) — Frank Robinson, power-hitting outfielder of Cincinnati Redlegs, and Luis Aparico, slick fielding Chicago White Sox shortstop, today were named major league rookies of the year for 1956.

Robinson was a unanimous selection for National League honors. He received all 24 votes in the balloting by members of the Baseball Writers' Association of America.

Aparico got 22 votes in winning the American League award. Tito Francona of Baltimore and Rocky Colavito of Cleveland, both outfielders, each got one vote.

Blackwood, Students Clash in Hoop Game

Brentwood and Chinese Students men's teams will meet in the featured game of a Victoria and District Basketball Association card at Victoria High School Monday night.

Opening the three-game program at 7 will be a girls' game between Victoria B's and Metros. At 8, Brentwood and St. Louis College will tangle in a bantam boys' game.

ROAD, ROSEWALL WIN
ADELAIDE, Australia (AP)—Australians Lew Hoad and Ken Rosewall won the men's doubles final in the South Australian tennis championships Friday by defeating Vic Seixas of Philadelphia and Sam Giammalva of Houston, Tex., 6-2, 6-4, 6-2.

While the Cats are away, the amateurs will play. With the Victoria Cougars off on a four-game Western Hockey League trip to the Prairies next week, amateur hockey will return to Memorial Arena Monday night.

Victoria Navy, which performed in the Vancouver Island Amateur Hockey League last season, will make its second Island-Mainland Intermediate Hockey League start against Vancouver Pileasers.

In their opening game, the Sailors dropped a 9-3 decision to Nanaimo Clippers after holding a 5-4 lead early in the final period. The Pils, who campaigned as Vancouver Bombers last season, played to a 3-3 deadlock in their last meeting with the Clippers.

Pileaser coach John Gorman has assembled a young club sprinkled with a few veterans and the Pils promise to be a big handful for the Tars Monday night.

Expected to play with the mainland club are George Homeniuk, formerly with Vancouver Canucks of the WHL; Tom Maddison, veteran of four seasons in the English professional league; former Spokane Flyer Jack Carlson and youthful Johnny Bates, who is rated by some as the best performer on the club.

Coach Len Paget has added five new players to his holdovers from the Navy club of last season.

Brightest of the newcomers may be diminutive goaltender Pete Cain, who sparkled in the Tars' opening game. Other new players are defencemen Gordie Lundin and Paul LaFortune and forwards Otto Brown and Emil Chobater.

Back for another puck-chasing season are defencemen Stan Christensen, Gus McCarthy and Paul LaPointe and forwards Johnny Bond, John Merryfield, Bruce Cook, Roy Derry, Martin Fraser, Neil Standley and Dave Hill.

Game time Monday is 8:30 p.m.

Floyd Ruins Arch; Anxious to Defend

Lord in My Corner, Says Floyd

By FLOYD PATTERSON
(As Told to The United Press)

CHICAGO (UP) — The Lord was in my corner — I just couldn't miss.

He's the one who put the heavy-weight crown on my head—I sure couldn't have done it without Him. From the minute I stepped in the ring I just knew I was destined to have my hand raised from above. All those nice people who lit candles for me I can't thank enough—their prayers were answered.

Everything seemed to happen just right. Archie really gave me the confidence I'd been lacking when he talked so much. I started to figure that all the digs he was making at me were for a reason and once I realized Arch was a real worried guy it wasn't hard for me to convince myself that I might even be able to outpunch him and I wouldn't have to go the limit to win.

I knew the title was just a few rounds away when I caught Archie with a left in the belly in the third and he let out a real loud groan and backed up as if to say—I sure don't want any more of those.

ARCH REAL CUTE

I don't think Archie figured I'd be as fast as I was, but he fought pretty much the fight I thought he would. Now, don't get me wrong—he's real cute and hits like a mule. I knew I couldn't let my guard down for a second because even his light jabs stung a lot and I knew if he tagged me with one of his real hard ones I'd be in for trouble. He really hit me hard once, I guess that was in the second.

No, this wasn't my toughest fight—that one with Jackson was the hardest on me—that guy's on top of you all the time.

Archie did just what I'd been waiting for him to do in that fifth—he threw a right and sort of leaned away. When he did that the target was in sight and I just let fly with a short left. I could see his eyes go glassy as he fell back and I knew then that if he got up it wouldn't do him any good.

I just hit him again and the Lord did the rest.

SKI HEIL!

Plank Fans Jam Cabin On Weekends

By A. SITZMARK

The Victoria Sno Birds ski cabin on Mt. Brenlon has been thronged with skiers these past three weekends. A foot of early snow on the newly-cleared slope has afforded excellent sport, and the extended rope-tow has already proved its worth to those too tired (or old) to climb the hill on planks.

Last weekend the snow was abandoned in favor of skating on Silver Lake. Bill Spriggs upheld the honor of Montreal with an impressive display of speed, while Pat Tober showed off some tricky figures learned in Switzerland.

Cars were able to park a half mile from the cabin last weekend, so there were no complaints of the hike.

If you intend to sample the joys of Brenton this weekend—and new members are always welcome—contact Betty Brown, 8-3489, or Bud Peetz, 3-3652, for information and transportation.

Moore Badly Hammered By Youngest Champion

(From AP and BUP Dispatches)

CHICAGO—Floyd Patterson made Archie Moore act his age Friday and whether it is 39 or 100 doesn't make much difference anymore. Patterson, at 21 the youngest world's heavyweight boxing champion in history, knocked out Archie in the fifth round at Chicago Stadium.

Patterson announced today, "I'll be ready to defend within three months."

Promoter Jim Norris, who staged the age vs. youth fight before 14,000, said, "I'll try to have this eager youngster make his first defence against an outstanding opponent at Miami Beach in February."

Patterson, almost as elated at becoming a father as at becoming the youngest heavyweight ruler in ring history, flew home to Brooklyn today to greet his six-pound two-ounce daughter, born less than four hours before his fifth-round triumph over 39-year-old Moore.

"They never told me about the baby until after the fight," said poker-faced Floyd with the semblance of a grin. "And it was surely good news."

The rangy, 21-year-old Negro, son of the driver of a Brooklyn garbage disposal truck, said, "I'm going to be a fighting champion."

Looks Like Long-Term Champ

His impressive performance in swarming over light-heavyweight champion Moore and flooring the blood-smeared veteran twice in the fifth round indicated he probably will be a fighting champion for a long time. Also, his stunning triumph revived the heavy division, from which Rocky Marciano retired as champion last April.

His speed and power, featured by lightning left jabs and thundering left hooks—as well as smashing rights—apparently makes him superior to any of the current contenders, headed by Tommy (Hurricane) Jackson, Willie Pastrano, Bob Baker, Harold Carter and Eddie Machen.

Last night he generally forced the fighting. He took the best punches thrown at him by Moore, who had floored the great Marciano in their heavyweight title fight in September, 1955—and he finished Archie much more quickly than Rocky did with a ninth-round kayo in '55.

"I knew I had him in the third," said the former Olympic middleweight titlist. "I hit him with a left to the stomach and he said 'ugh'—or something like that. Then I knew I had hurt him and I knew I could beat him."

Patterson, a kid with tremendous class, punched a ring saga into oblivion as he knocked out Moore, the ancient light-heavyweight champion, at 2:27 of the fifth round in their showdown for Marciano's vacated heavyweight crown.

Not a Fight—Just a Slaughter

This bout was not a fight. It was a quick slaughter. The 39-year-old Moore entered the ring a 9-to-5 favorite, resplendent in a black velvet robe, trimmed in gold. That was the only time he dazzled the crowd of 14,000.

Moore pawed hopefully for four rounds but he had no defence. He was slashed over the bridge of his nose in the third round. This was the first time Moore, a veteran of 157 fights over 20 years, was ever cut.

In the fifth round, Patterson slipped to the floor in what appeared an amateur swipe at Moore. But Floyd quickly righted. Patterson smashed a whistling left hook to the jaw, Moore was dumped, his eyes glazed in an unbelieving stare. Old Arch struggled to his feet at referee Frank Sikora's nine count.

Patterson moved in like a butcher.

A left propped up Moore, then Patterson whammed across a right and down went Archie again. This time he struggled to his feet as referee Sikora counted nine or 10—it never was clear which to ring-side observers. At any rate, Sikora waved a finish to the fight and the bell sounded. For a moment, it wasn't certain whether Patterson had scored a TKO or a knockout. The officials finally said it was a knockout.

Door Slammed in Archie's Face

Moore said in his dressing room: "I came up the long, hard road, but when I got there I found the door slammed shut."

"But I don't think the referee should have stopped it," he added. "I was standing up and I heard the count of eight, then he raised Patterson's hand."

Did the fifth knockout and 21st defeat in Moore's career of 157 fights convince Archie that he should retire—that the years had caught up with him?

"No, I'm not even thinking about retirement," he said. "I'll take a rest and then defend my light-heavyweight title against the top contender."

Floyd, registering his 18th straight victory and his 31st in 32 professional bouts, won the heavy title at a youthful age that beat Joe Louis' previous record of 23 years. Jack Dempsey took it at 24.

Floyd, an underdog at 95 in the late betting last night, was ahead after four rounds on the score cards of two of the ring officials and even on another.

Tolson, Wells Clash For Saanich Crown

Jim Wells and Len Tolson clash at Brentwood Community Hall tonight for the men's singles crown in the annual Saanich open badminton tournament.

Maureen Bray will defend her women's singles crown against the challenge of youthful Judy Mangin.

Wells defeated Reg Hoadley, 15-12, 15-9, Friday to reach final while Tolson ousted Harvey Hurd, 15-9, 15-4, to earn a chance at the title undefeated this year by perennial champion George Lane.

Eric Hubbersson and Tolson, the defending champions, will face Lane and Norm Lambrick in the men's doubles final.

Joyce MacDonald and Muriel Knott continued on the trail of the women's doubles crown they won last year by gaining the final on a 15-11, 15-6 victory over Jill Kelly and Claire King in the semis. Mrs. King and Tolson gained the mixed doubles final by ousting Muriel and Rom Knott, 15-3, 15-10.

All junior events were to be played this afternoon, starting at 2 while finals in the open events get under way at 7:30 tonight.

Viking Views

By ROBIN FARQUHAR

Students at Victoria College have no lack of "Ye Olde College Spirit."

This was demonstrated last Saturday, when there were no less than 60 different students taking part in the various sports during the afternoon and evening.

Not only that, but there were an additional 400 who turned out to watch the games and to attend the dance held that night.

Those who turned out to watch the basketball games on Saturday evening had a generous helping of thrills doled out to them, as the College Vikings downed the Alberni High School Chieftains by a tissue-thin margin of four points, 74-70.

Tops on the Viking score sheet were Bob Tomlinson, lanky centreman who hooped 27 points, and Waldo Skillings and Art Chiko, first string forwards who netted 18 and 16 respectively.

However, none of the locals could equal the accuracy with which diminutive Alvin Iversen sank the long ones.

By means of his phenomenal two-hander and a radar-aimed jump shot, Iversen scored 31 points.

In the preliminary match, the College girls trampled the Victoria High School girls 41-13.

Top College scorers were Nan Lyon with 10 points and Linda Hanson with nine.

In February, when the Vikings hit the tournament trail, they will make a stop at Alberni. They were invited to play in the Totem Tournament up there by Chieftain coach Elmer Matthews.

Meanwhile, back in Victoria, Vikings took their first loss of the season Thursday night as they were beaten by Dickinson and Dunn 69-41.

The Thremen couldn't miss, while the usually accurate College shooters couldn't find the range at all.

In rugby action, the Vikings lost a well-played game to the Oak Bay Wanderers.

Wanderers, led by speedy Rafael Duke and Bob Hutchinson, romped to a 17-8 decision.

College tries were scored by Mike Kaye and Rod Kirkham, both forwards. Stew Smith kicked one of the converts from a 45-degree angle to prove that he still has that "educated" toe.

College's potential has been augmented not only by the powerful kicking of Smith, who has been out since the beginning of the term with a badly cut hand, but also by the running of ace sprint star Joe Haegert, who has decided to don a rugby uniform.

Haegert is expected to add some badly needed spark to the three-quarter line. This spark has been missing since the loss of Tom English, out for most of the season with appendix trouble.

In soccer, College downed HMCS Venture last Saturday, 5-3. Bill Mossie and Bud Shipley accounted for two goals each, while Mike Gerry scored once.

A new activity has been added to the College sports curriculum in the form of a golf club.

Members have secured cut rates at Gorge Vale, and they will play a tournament in the near future from which a representative team will be chosen for competition with other schools.

Turkey Competition
Mrs. B. Price posted a 106-30-70 to win a women's turkey competition played at the Uplands Golf Club Friday.

In second place was Mrs. D. Fletcher with 109-30-73.

ON THE ALLEYS
Gibson's commercial 10-pin league, the biggest in the city with 20 teams rolling every Wednesday night, is adding bowling quality to quantity.

This week, two of those rare 600-plus efforts were turned in by commercial devotees, while the high 500 scores were on a par with the two senior leagues in town.

Bob Lyons led the 10-pinners with a 611 triple to anchor the Watson's Men's Wear team. Bob had single game efforts of 211 and 203, and even then he just huddled out Jack Hobby's 606 (247).

Hobby's triple led the Bel-Air Cabinet team to a league high three-game total of 2,960.

Other noteworthy chores in the commercial league were turned in by R. Hornby, 508 (234, 201); D. Tripp, 578 (210); D. Shaw, 573 (212); and Steve Chamut, 567 (213).

Totems, Dockers Bow Again

Victoria High School Totems and Esquimalt High Dockers each went down to their fourth straight loss Friday night in high school basketball play.

Totems ran afoul of the University of British Columbia Braves and almost pulled the fat out of the Esquimalt before bowing, 60-59. A much-improved Mount View team had little trouble with Esquimalt, winning 57-33.

High man for Mount View's Hornets was Dave Emery, with 11 points. Brian Carver and Dave Black followed with 10 each.

For Vic High, Dave Wilson and Dick Austin combined to hoop 34 points between them as the Totems fought back from a 35-24 half-time deficit.

Still trailing, 47-40, after the third quarter, George Andrews' squad went ahead 57-36 late in the fourth period. Two straight baskets by the Braves put the game out of reach, however, and the Totems could manage only a single basket in the remaining seconds.

High scorers for the UBC squad were Fred Kangas and John Bell, each of whom dropped in 14 points.

Scorers follow:
UBC Braves—Kangas 14, Riversides 2, Field 5, Yusep 6, Havens 2, Bell 14, Cole 4, Hunt 11. Total—80.
Victoria High Dockers—Austin 16, Devin 6, R. Wilson 2, D. Wilson 18, Pedersen 7, Brown 6, Killings 1. Total—59.
Esquimalt—Shaw 5, Leslie 2, M. Mitchell 2, Mitchell 3, McKinney 8, Mose 4, Millard 5, Zouai 33.
Mount View—Carver 18, Emery 11, Harman 4, Wilson 4, Black 10, Campbell 3, May 4, Main 5. Total—57.

Vital Grid Games Scheduled Sunday
NEW YORK (AP)—Four of the National Football League's titans will be firing everything but lethal weapons at each other Sunday with first place in each division hanging on the results.

Washington's fired-up Redskins, in third place in the east with a 5-3-0 record, take on New York's eastern conference leaders, the Giants, with a 6-2-1 record, after a game in front of Chicago Cardinals, who meet Green Bay.

In the west, the league-leading Chicago Bears move into Detroit for a clash with the Lions, only one place back of the Bears. No one else is near the top in the west.

In other games, Los Angeles is at Pittsburgh, Philadelphia visits Cleveland and San Francisco 49ers move into Baltimore.

Ron Delany Wins Mile; U.S. Team Takes Relay

(From CP and UP Dispatches)

MELBOURNE.—The track and field program of the 1956 Olympic Games—spectacular all the way through—wound up today with a roaring finish.

Three world records fell on the last day of a program that saw record after record smashed in just over a week of competition. And Canada picked up its first track points of the 1956 Games when its 1,600-metre relay team placed fifth in today's final.

The Canadians just missed collecting points in field competition when Alice Whitty of Vancouver lost her fifth place spot in the women's high jump after an official change.

Over at Lake Wendouree, meanwhile, Canada's paddlers wound up with a disappointing showing in the two-day Olympic canoe competition with second-last placings in both of the events they qualified for today. They had suffered similar setbacks Friday.

The Canadian basketball team wound up an unbeaten string in the consolation round of the Olympic tournament following their early elimination from top-bracket play. The squad defeated Japan 75-50 to finish in ninth place in the overall standing of the 14 teams.

In other competition today, the Vancouver trapshooting entry of Earl Caldwell and Frank Opsal placed 17th and 32nd respectively in the windup of clay pigeon shooting, a Gerry Ouellette of Windsor, Ont., was 11th in a field of 29—in the free rifle competition won by Vassili Borisov of Russia.

U.S. stars grabbed three more gold medals and shattered two world records while Ron Delany of Ireland whipped three other four-minute milers for the classic 1,500-metre crown.

Delany, 21-year-old student at Villanova College in Philadelphia, ran the equivalent of a 2.38 mile as he clipped four seconds off the Olympic record, but he had to share honors for the day with the Americans who completed an overwhelming victory in the track phase of the games.

By sweeping the 400-metre relay with a world record 39.5 seconds and scoring easily in the 1,600-metre relay, the U.S. bagged its 15th gold medal in men's track and the 23rd of the current games.

Lean Mildred McDaniel of Atlanta, Ga., a 23-year-old student at Tuskegee Institute, topped the listed world record for the women's high jump with a leap of 5 feet 9 1/4 inches, making it 16 gold medals in track for the combined men's and women's teams.

That tied the haul of 16 in the 1932 Olympics at Los Angeles.

In the 400-metre relay, Ira Murchison of Chicago, Leamon King of Delano, Calif., Thane Baker of Elkhart, Kan., and double-winner Bobby Morrow of San Benito, Tex., clipped three-tenths of a second off the world and Olympic record set 20 years ago by Jesse Owens and company.

This repeat meeting of the finalists in the 1952 tournament at Helsinki was "strictly no contest." So complete was the American rout that several Soviet athletes from other sports, who had come to watch the game, left the packed arena in embarrassment at halftime.

Among other things, the Yanks cut seven-foot-four Jan Krumpholtz down to the size of a basketball pygmy. The Soviet giant, dubbed "The Primo Carnera" of basketball, entered the game with four minutes left to play in the first half and his team trailing badly by a 19-40 score.

Krumpholtz sank four free throws before the half ended, but his deficiencies were apparent from his first moves on the court. Despite his overwhelming height, he was outmanoeuvred for rebounds, and as the Yanks took off on their fast breaks, down court, they left the Russian giant far behind them. As a result, he was of little help to the Soviets on the offensive board.

U.S. Wins Hoop Medal With Ease

MELBOURNE (UP) — The United States basketball team gave the Russians a lesson when it handed the Soviets a humiliating 89-55 trouncing to win the Olympic championship.

K. C. Jones and Bill Russell, the two former University of San Francisco all-America stars, were the standouts as the U.S. swept the Olympic title for the fourth straight time since the sport was made part of the program in 1936. Jones scored 17 points and six foot 10 Russell gave the Americans almost perpetual control of the ball with his rebounding and brilliant all-around play.

Can Red Wings Prick Boston Bruin Bubble?

By The Canadian Press

Boston Bruins' stay in the heady atmosphere at the top of the National Hockey League may be short-lived as Detroit Red Wings begin tonight to make up the three games they have in hand, but it will be no less sweet, or puzzling, for all that.

Wings have a chance to tie Bruins as they play the fifth-place Toronto Maple Leafs in Toronto tonight while Chicago Black Hawks meet Canadiens in Montreal Sunday Chicago is at Boston, Toronto at New York against the Rangers and Montreal at Detroit.

Before the season began, Bruins, who finished fifth last year, were called to finish anywhere from fourth to last. But they began to win games in bunches and a 12-out-of-14 stretch put them in first place, two points ahead of Wings.

The general feeling is that this collection of castoffs and has-beens are playing well over their heads, but how they have managed to do so for so long is a mystery.

SCHMIDT MAY BE KEY

Perhaps the answer is coach Milt Schmidt, who seems somehow to have transferred to his formerly mediocre collection some of the knowledge and just as important, the desire that made him one of the NHL's greatest centres during his long career with Bruins.

Schmidt's genius is exemplified in Doug Mohns, Bruins' leading point-getter and tied for sixth in the league with 18 points.

Mohns, a 22-year-old defenceman, had three seasons on the wing for Boston. He never did better than 32 points and last year in 64 games scored as many points as he has this season in 22 contests.

Schmidt moved Mohns back to defencence to see whether his blazing shot would work to better advantage there, and it has. Of his 18 points, 15 are assists, as the forwards have been plunking home the rebounds.

LEADING PERFORMERS

Bruins' big-line performers, Real Chevrefils, Don McKenney and Leo Labine have 15, 16 and eight points respectively and a third of the Bruins' 60-goal production. Other big factors are Vic Stasiuk and Zello Toppazzini with 17 and 15 points. Both are in their first season with Boston.

Netminder Terry Sawchuk may be at the heart of Bruins' success. The former Detroit great has allowed only 47 goals in 22 games, or perhaps it is veterans Johnny Pierson and Cal Gardner, with 20 NHL seasons between them.

Whatever the reason—for Bruins' eminence, rival coaches would do well to learn it.

Some Safety Rules For Christmas Tree

You bring potential tragedy places or other sources of heat, as well as shining beauty into your home when you set up the Christmas tree.

So warns the National Fire Protection Association, which points out that during recent years the nation has averaged 1,000-plus Christmas tree fires each year, over and above other holiday-connected blazes.

The grim fact that trees intended to warm hearts too often cause fires which claim lives needlessly is something to consider now, before you're caught up in the bustle and gaiety of last-minute Christmas preparations.

Based on information supplied by the National Safety Council and the National Fire Protection Association, the suggestions listed below embrace things which the home handy man can do to help make this Christmas a safe one for all the family.

THE TREE ITSELF: Buy a small, freshly-cut tree. A small tree is less hazardous than a large one.

Keep it outdoors, standing in water or snow, until it's needed. Before placing in its stand, saw off the butt end at an angle at least one inch above the original cut. Score some vertical cuts in the bark upward from the cut so that the tree will absorb water from container in tree holder. Keep water level above cuts at all times.

Make sure stand holds tree securely. Place tree away from doorways and radiators, fire

THE LIGHTS: Never use candles. Inspect your tree lights points out that during recent years the nation has averaged 1,000-plus Christmas tree fires each year, over and above other holiday-connected blazes.

Have a responsible adult check the tree several times daily. If needles start to turn brown near a socket, relocate the tree light causing browning. Always turn tree lights off at bedtime or when the family's out of the house. Never leave children alone in a house with a lighted tree. Make sure house circuit on which your tree lights operate has a fuse no larger than the 15-ampere size. If fuse blows when you turn on tree lights, remove other appliances from that circuit during the Christmas season.

AROUND THE TREE: No smoking near the tree. Keep area free of gift-wrapping litter. Set the train away from the tree and never operate toy steam engines or other fuel-activated toys near the tree.

QUIZZING THE GARDENER

By JACK BEASTALL

Q—Some of the skins of gladiolus corms peel easily when being cleaned but others need tearing away. Should these have a longer drying period? Mrs. C. N. Colwood.

A—The term "cleaning" as applied to all bulbs and corms means the removal of soil and foreign matter. The skins, or jackets as they are called, should never be removed because they are nature's protection against dampness and disease. On some bulbs, the older mature layers will shed during storage, but every effort should be made to preserve the jackets intact.

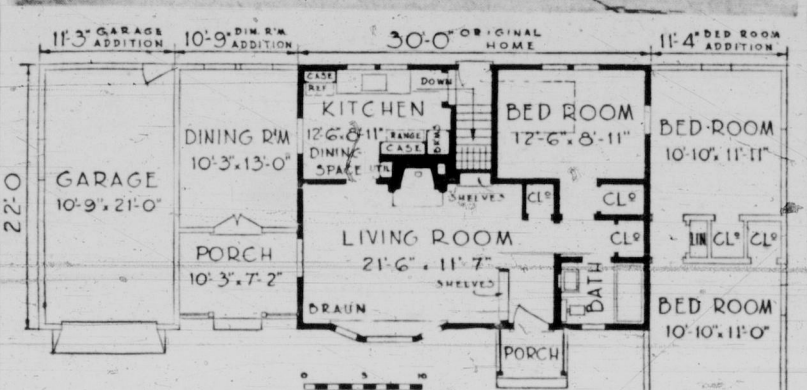

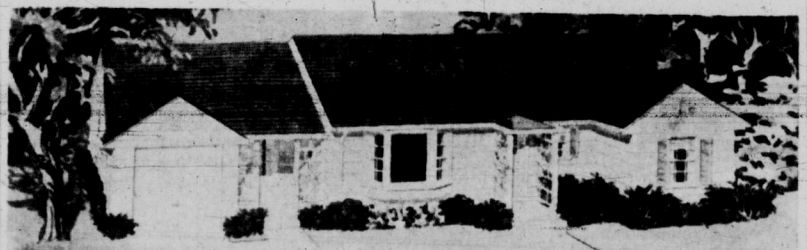

Q—A new lawn, sown in September, has a considerable number of weeds showing. Should it be treated with 2-4-D weed killer now? A. L. T. Marigold.

A—To be effective, weed killers must be applied when the weeds are growing vigorously so that the active ingredient is conveyed to all parts of the plants. According to some manufacturers of herbicides, this condition exists when minimum night temperatures are 45 degrees F. or higher, and day temperatures from 60 to 70 degrees F. The larger weeds could be removed by hand providing the grass is not damaged in the process, otherwise it is better to depend on a 2-4-D spray in late spring.

Plastic Panel Patio Roofing Lets Maximum Light Through

By MR. FIX

The most expensive paved patio serves no useful purpose when storm clouds belch rain and you have to head for cover. If it's to remain useful in inclement weather, obviously your patio needs a roof. Just as obviously, a standard opaque roof would darken rooms adjoining the patio by standing between them and a good bit of daylight. The alternate choice is a roof made of lightweight but strong, translucent plastic.

A plastic roof is rainproof when properly installed, yet admits a diffused 65 to 95 per cent of the sun's light, depending on the color of the plastic you select. Deep blue or green panels of course shut out more light than yellow or white ones.

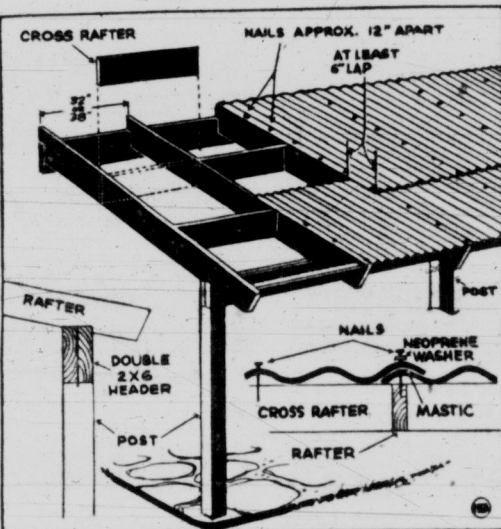

OVERLAPPING Corrugated plastic panels 34 or 40 inches wide and 8, 10 or 12 feet in length are suitable for patio roofing. While panel width is largely a matter of preference, the lengths you select will be governed by the depth of the patio—that is, how far it extends out from the house wall.

If the distance is greater than 12 feet, the extra length is gained by overlapping shorter panels end to end. A six-inch end-lap, sealed with translucent mastic, is sufficient.

For the supporting framework, use either two-by-six or four-by-four rafters, spacing them 32 inches (centre to centre) for the 34-inch panels, and 38 inches for the 40-inch panels.

RAFTER SPACING The correct rafter spacing is important. You'll see why later if you work across the roof nailing the panels in place. Each should overlap one corrugation along the side of the preceding panel, and you must nail through with neoprene washers. Nail only the overlap. If the lap doesn't fall directly over a rafter, you've nothing to nail to.

Additional support and nailing laps. Elsewhere, nail at every second surface for the plastic panels is gained by installing cross rafters in parallel lines no more than four feet apart. The short cross-pieces should be cut to fit between rafters and toenailed in place.

A roof pitch of one inch in every foot is recommended for drainage. For supporting posts use four-by-fours, and for a header beam extending across the top of the posts, use four-by-six or two two-by-sixes nailed together.

PAINT FIRST The completed framework can be given a coat of wood sealer or spar varnish, or can be primed and painted just as any other outdoor surface. But treat or finish before installing the plastic roof.

To fasten the panels to roof rafters and crosspieces, use 1 1/2 inch, nonrusting aluminum nails. Nail only the overlap. If the lap doesn't fall directly over a rafter, you've nothing to nail to.

NEW EDMONTON PLANT MAKES HEAVY PLYWOOD A new plywood plant was opened recently in Edmonton by the Hon. N. A. Willmore, minister of lands and forests for Alberta.

The Zedler Plywood Corporation's mill is a million dollar plant which has a floor area of more than 50,000 square feet. It will be capable of turning out approximately 500 panels of 4' by 8' seven-ply per shift. The product will be known as Zedply.

BEASTALL ADVISES

Tools Suited to Individual Are Precious; Preserve Them

Years ago I was working in a hardware store where loggers formed a high percentage of the clientele, and in my youthful ignorance I could never understand why a logger took so long to choose an axe.

His investment, in those days, was a mere three dollars, but he would have 24 axes spread around, studying carefully—the hang of each head, the grain of each handle, the whip and the heft.

Much later I learned the importance of having tools suited to the individual, whether from the increased pleasure it affords the hobbyist or making a daily job easier and turning out consistently good work.

For this reason I am very choosy when selecting gardening tools because a spade or hoe which is suited to the gardener can be used for ten consecutive hours without fatigue or effort, while an unsuited tool will make the job tiresome after thirty minutes.

After locating a tool with the perfect balance one naturally wishes to keep it as long as possible, and therefore will take extra care to keep it in good condition.

BEST PERIOD With the advent of December there are many tools which will not be used again until next March or April. Cleaned, sharpened, and oiled before being stored, these will be in perfect condition when the spring rush starts.

A wet, chilly December day provides the ideal excuse for retreating to a warm garage or basement and cleaning up the gardening tools.

My routine starts with a pail of soapy water and a scrub brush. Each tool is scrubbed from the tip of the blade or prongs to the far end of the handle. Next, a good wiping with a dry cloth, and then a thorough drying by the heater.

A close examination follows, noting the condition of both metal and wooden parts, and repairs are made where necessary. The edges of cutting tools (spades, hoes, and fork tines) are filed sharp and then honed with an oil stone. Handles are lightly rubbed with steel wool, and blades and tines polished with emery cloth and oil.

Every second year the wooden portions, usually the handles, are given a coat of bright enamel, either yellow or orange. This serves two purposes. It makes a contrast to green foliage so that the tools can be spotted easily in the garden, and it preserves the handles, keeping them smooth and easy on the hands.

Finally, the metal parts are coated with a thin grease or heavy oil. A semi-fluid auto lubricant is excellent for this job. It keeps the air and dampness from reaching the metal and causing a rust film.

Metal portions which come in contact with the soil should never be painted. The rough surface of the paint causes the soil to adhere and makes the tool more difficult to use.

SHARPEN MOWER

While the paint brushes and paint pots are in use, don't forget the wheelbarrow and the lawnmower. If yours is a push-type mower or a power mower, now is a good time to have it sharpened. The service men have more time now than when every gardener is eager to make the first cut of grass in the spring.

Once tools are properly cleaned, sharpened, and painted it is an incentive to keep them that way. A few minutes after work is finished on a summer evening is sufficient to wipe off the soil, rub down a rust spot if necessary, and give a wiping with an oily rag.

This simple procedure will keep tools in good condition until they are worn down beyond use.

WEEK'S WORK

By JACK BEASTALL

Coldframes containing plants being stored for winter must be ventilated whenever the weather is mild or not stormy, especially during rains. Raise the sashes on blocks without permitting rain to reach the plants.

Hoe among perennials, shrubs, and very carefully over bulb beds where weed seedlings are showing. This lessens the number of established weeds to be removed in spring.

Bulbs potted the first week of October will be well rooted and ready for warmer conditions. Temperature should not be above 60 degrees F. until after the flower buds are well advanced.

Water freesias in pots carefully. Keep in as cool a place as possible, 45 to 50 degrees F. with good light. Support the foliage with light twigs.

Dig leeks, Jerusalem artichokes and parsnips as needed for use. Keep the soil firm around spring cabbage, sprouts and broccoli. Plant black currants, fruit and nut trees and cane fruits.

"Colin, Take a Bow!"

Here's a toast that I want to drink. To a fellow that most of us know.

He's the playing coach of our hockey team. But... MORE... than just a pro.

Yes... very much more... is this rugged guy. And it isn't hard to discern. He could win success at anything else.

'Cause Colin has talent to (kill) Burn. He can stand on his skates & talk to the crowd. And never a stutter or stammer.

He not only shoots a wicked shot. But scores too... with his grammar. And, no end of good he does for kids.

In fact this guy intrigues. Freely giving so much of his time. To the lads in the Little Leagues.

Yes... this Kilburn Kid is an inspiration. Forever leading the way. The kind of a man we need in our town.

He turned down Boston to stay. So, what does it matter, if games are lost. And fans do rant and shout. He's proved to all a thousand times.

He's down but never out. So, stand with me, as I raise my glass. Then smash it with unconcern. To this clanking Cougar with tousled mane. I give you...

THE LITTLE PEOPLE'S CHRISTMAS COLORING CONTEST NO. 4

Here's sketch No. 4, children—the last of the drawings to be colored in The Little People's Christmas Coloring Contest. Add it to the other three that you have colored, and either send or bring all four in one batch to the Little People's Christmas Coloring Contest Editor of Victoria Daily Times.

By this time you surely know that the contest is open to all children 10 years old or under. If you missed any of the first three sketches, you can get them by calling at the Victoria Times.

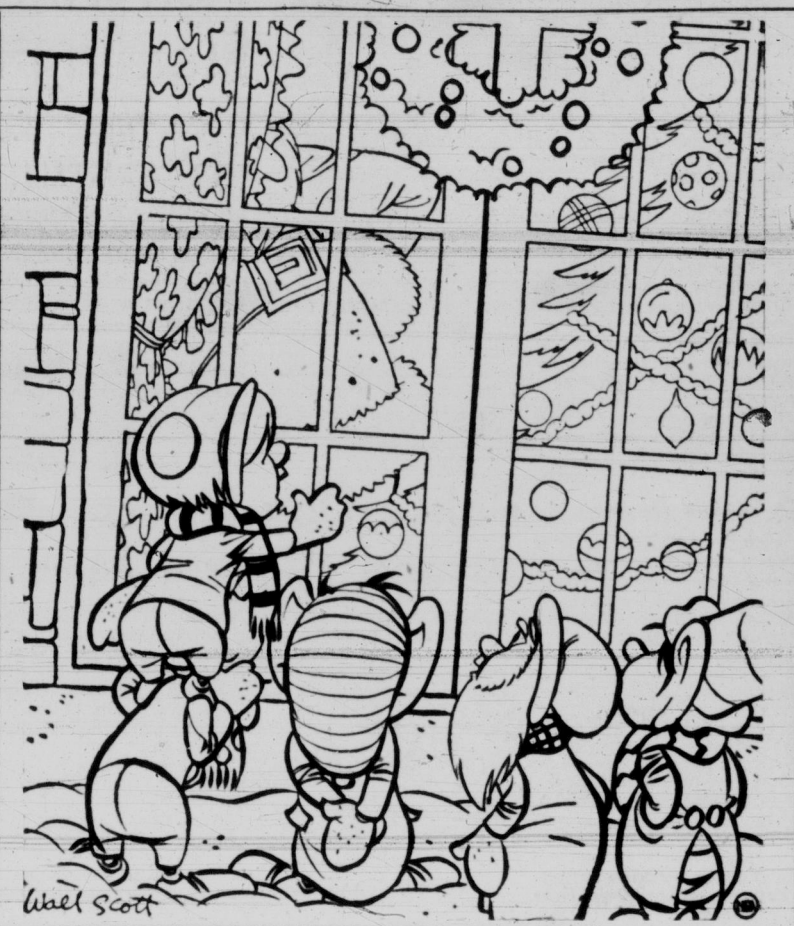

Deadline for entries is 12 noon Saturday, Dec. 8. They must be in our office or postmarked by that time. Each of the four sketches must have your name, age and address signed to it.

Winners in the Vancouver Island area will receive some wonderful local prizes. Then the two sets of drawings judged best will be sent to Cleveland, O., and entered in the national contest. They will share in the grandest list of prizes you've ever heard of. And to top everything off, a grand prize winner will get a three-day trip to New York with mother or dad, all expenses paid, and a television appearance with Steve Allen, star of NBC TV's "The Steve Allen Show," Sunday, Dec. 23.

A last tip: Read the contest rules carefully!

A Suggestion

COWICHAN LEADER—The protest in the unorganized area against a hospital tax on the land, in order to pay for a much-needed new King's Daughters' Hospital, should be put to the test at the coming school trustee elections throughout Cowichan School District 65.

The following simple question could be asked of ratepayers in the suggested ballot:

"Are you willing to assume by means of property taxation that portion of the cost of a new King's Daughters' Hospital above the one-half to be paid by the B.C. government and the amount, at the rate of $1,000 per bed, plus other grants, to be paid by Ottawa?"

If the answer is a flat rejection the ratepayers must either be ready to assume the task of raising the money by voluntary giving or face hospital conditions inferior to those of like centres and the prospect of more home nursing than ever before.

Progress Record

PARKSVILLE - QUALICUM BEACH PROGRESS—Every resident of this area should find something of interest in the annual report of Arrowsmith Agricultural Association.

This year's report indicates that fair board assets now total $7,093, there is a cash balance of $391 and there are no liabilities. These figures are in themselves a tribute to the sound business principles on which this group has operated for many years. Volunteers have provided the labor to improve the association's buildings from year to year, and the board has also benefited from the generosity of a long list of district merchants and individuals who have contributed to the prize list.

Loss of Life

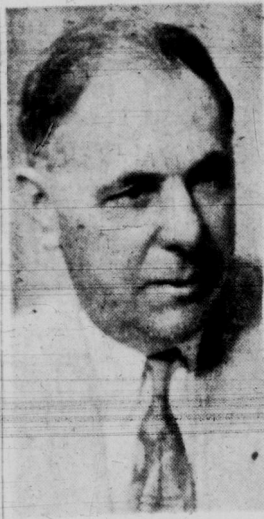

COURTENAY DISTRICT FREE PRESS—According to police reports last week two people in this district had their view of the rail, way track obscured by trees and as a result they did not see the approaching train with which they collided.

We think it is high time that the land at rail and road intersections should be cleared for distance enough to allow the drivers of cars to see approaching trains.

The whistle warnings are not enough.

Police Dog Hunts Armed Alberni Man

ALBERNI—Attempt by an unidentified man to steal a car was foiled by the owner Friday evening, but the man made good his escape after threatening the owner with a gun.

Stephen Oliver Franks, who was working in the Rosebank, a dine and dance cafe on the outskirts of the city that has been closed for some time, checked his car at 6:30 p.m. to find the engine running, parking lights on and a man inside.

Before he could speak to the man, Franks said, he left the car, held him off with a gun, then ran away.

RCMP were notified, and a tracking dog from Parksville was brought in to help, but a search failed to reveal any sign of the man.

CHEMAINUS—A newcomer to municipal politics, Mahlon Vauthrin, Crofton, will seek a seat on North Cowichan council in the Dec. 15 municipal election.

The terms of Councillors A. E. Craig of Chemainus and George Whittaker of Maple Bay expire this year. Coun. Craig has indicated he will run again.

Mr. Vauthrin has been a resident of Crofton for more than a year and was a councillor at Lacombe, Alberta, for four years.

DUNCAN—Total shipment of Christmas trees from this area will be about 15,000.

G. R. Kirk, a Tacoma contractor, has a 200-acre tree farm and a lease on an adjoining 300 acres that has yielded 5,000 trees.

Other cuttings are being made throughout the Shawnigan Lake-Cobble Hill area.

ALBERNI (CP)—A fisherman jumped for his life and swam to shore when his boat caught fire after an explosion in Somass River Friday afternoon.

George Clutesi of Alberni, well known as an artist who also follows the fishing industry, lost his troller Melric when gas fumes in the bilge exploded. Damage was estimated at up to $5,000 in the ensuing fire.

Clutesi escaped being burned when he leaped into the icy water as flames surrounded him. The force of the explosion lifted the deck of the craft.

A full-blooded Indian of the Sechaht band, Clutesi has made a name for himself with his paintings. He has acted as spokesman for the Indians on many occasions and is widely known on the west coast.

Injunction Granted Against Seattle Transit Strikers

SEATTLE (AP)—The city of Seattle obtained an injunction against the striking street carmen's union Friday on the eighth day of a walkout which has affected downtown business severely.

Superior judge James W. Hodson granted the order against Local 587 and three of its officers. It ordered them to refrain from picketing transit system facilities and directed them to "take all measures within their power" to get union members back to work.

Lyle Iversen, union counsel, said an immediate appeal would be taken to the state supreme court.

The village has agreed to the following: Purchase of two acres at Beacon and Seventh Street for $1,000 per acre for development of a village centre; construction of 2,300 feet of road through the property, to be paid for by VLA; installation of 1,800 feet of sewer for $7 per foot, and an additional 300 feet adjoining village property at $3.50 per foot; assessment of two-acre lots on an acreage basis as long as title is held by the VLA director; allowance for extension of Seventh Street to a width of 80 feet; and a sewer rental scheme for 12 two-acre lots adjoining the new road.

I wish I knew what to do about the interrogative salutation.

What I would like to do is have a law passed, outlawing it.

But pending that happy solution to the problem, I would like to know how to answer the interrogative salutation.

Take the interrogative salutation "How are you?"

When somebody ups to me and says "How are you?" I am nonplussed.

I realize the easy solution is to answer "fine, how are you?"

But this is by no means the truth, on two counts, one obvious, the other rather more subtle.

In the first place, if I answered "fine," I would be telling an untruth.

And if I added "how are YOU?" I would be implying an untruth, because I don't really honestly "way down deep CARE how the other person is."

Yet how else can I answer this interrogative salutation? I can't say: "I have a code in the doze, temperature 101.5 degrees at sea level, pulse 55 bid, 75 asked, respiration doubtful, everything looks all funny and blurred around the edges, and my feet hurt."

I am, quite sure the person who asked me how I am doesn't want all these details, yet what else can I tell him?

Another interrogative salutation which has me flummoxed is "How do you do?"

How on earth can I answer "How do you do?"

If the interrogator would amplify, and explain he would like to know how I do what, I might be able to answer.

But I doubt it. I rarely, if ever, know WHAT I am doing, let alone how I am doing it.

But the interrogative salutation which leaves me completely on the canvas is "What do you know?"

My immediate reaction to this greeting is to tell the truth and say "nothing." Although this might not be the whole truth, at that, as there are times when I do not even know nothing.

I have tried a positive approach to the question, without much success. When asked "What do you know," I have answered: "I know the hanging gardens of Babylon were supposed to have been built by King Nebuchadnezzar in the sixth century B.C. to please Queen Amyitis, but most historians believe they were but a figment of the imagination. I know a figment is smaller than a bigment but larger than a littlement. I further know."

But by this time, the person who asked me "what do I know" has slunk away, muttering to himself.

I guess the only solution, after all, is to pass a law against the interrogative salutation.

Man Fined $25; Left Dog Bodies Near Highway

Alfred Hodges, 1386 Rockland, was fined $25 and costs in Coward RCMP court Friday, after pleading guilty to dumping a number of dead animals by the side of the road.

The charge was laid under a section of the provincial Highway Act.

It followed a week-long investigation into discovery of the carcasses of about 20 dogs and 10 cats at the side of Burnside Road near Helmcken.

The dogs had been destroyed by local veterinarians and were to be delivered to the city incinerator.

$35,000 COBALT BOMB ORDERED FOR JUBILEE

A $75,000 addition to the radiotherapy department plus a $35,000 junior cobalt bomb for cancer treatment are planned for the Royal Jubilee Hospital, it was learned today.

Plans for hospital expansion are already in hand and cost will be shared by the B.C. Cancer Foundation, the B.C. government and the hospital itself.

Radiation facilities at Royal Jubilee are no longer adequate, foundation president J. H. Lamprey told the group's annual meeting Friday in Vancouver.

Order for the cobalt bomb has already been placed with the Crown-owned Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd. It is not yet known when delivery can be expected.

Death took place by drowning Thursday in Lac la Hache in the Cariboo area of Reginald Sinclair, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Sinclair, 1320 Monterey Avenue, it was learned today.

The former Oak Bay High School student was skating on the lake with friends, and was going to shore for his camera when he fell through thin ice.

At last report the body had not yet been recovered.

The youth's parents have gone to the scene of the tragedy.

He had been working at a ranch in the area since last June when he graduated from high school.

Besides his parents, survivors include a sister.

CAB ASSAULT ADMITTED BY SOLDIER

A young soldier from Prince Albert, Sask., pleaded guilty in Oak Bay police court Friday to a charge of indecent assault, laid in connection with an attack on a woman taxi driver a week ago.

Leonard Lawrence Harper, a member of the Queen's Own Rifles for the last three years, will be sentenced December 7.

According to police evidence, Harper assaulted Mrs. Vera Rodgers, 42, of 29 Paddon, on a lonely road in the Gordon Head district.

CUT, BRUISED. She suffered extensive cuts, bruises and abrasions all over her body and was too ill to testify in court Friday.

Police said Harper, with another soldier, hired an Island Taxi cab downtown, driven by Mrs. Rodgers, and asked her to drive them to the Gordon Head camp.

On reaching the camp the other soldier got out and Harper said he wanted to go back to town.

About half a mile from the camp, on Finerty Road, he asked Mrs. Rodgers to stop the car because he was going to be sick.

Harper got out of the car and walked around the back. After about two minutes had elapsed he came back to the driver's door and struck Mrs. Rodgers on the jaw.

Then he dragged her from the cab into bushes alongside the road and removed some of her clothing.

Mrs. Rodgers received a number of deep scratches as she struggled and pleaded to be released.

TREE SMASH. Harper then took her back to the cab and took over the wheel himself. Shortly after he piled up the car against a tree at Cedar Hill Crossroad and Reynolds Road in Saanich.

Mrs. Rodgers was found later near the car and Harper was arrested at the army camp.

Harper's superior officer, Capt. Thomas W. MacDonald, testified the young soldier had a good character and reputation in the army.

In his three years' service, Harper had only one offence of being absent without leave, the officer said.

Sailor Stole Cars to Get Navy Discharge. A sailor who told police he stole cars because he wanted to be discharged from the navy was charged in Esquimalt court today with his second offence within four months.

Ronald Lee Heslip, HMCS Naden, pleaded guilty, to the charge of taking the car without the owner's consent and was remanded to Monday for sentence.

Esquimalt Police Chief Gilbert Stancombe said Heslip was convicted of a similar offence in Victoria court Aug. 15 and was fined $200 or two months' imprisonment.

"He stated that he was committing these offences in order to get out of the navy," Chief Stancombe said.

Heslip was arrested at 1:45 a.m. today on Esquimalt Road, minutes after he had taken a car belonging to Corry William Patterson parked on Esquimalt Road.

Bric-a-Brac Collection Lost In Stable Fire

Bric-a-brac collection by a pioneer Victoria family over the last 90 years was destroyed in a fire Friday evening which gutted stables on the O'Reilly estate near Point Ellice Bridge.

Mrs. A. J. O'Reilly today blamed vandals for starting the blaze on the historic property at 2616 Pleasant.

Mrs. O'Reilly lives with her son, John, in the house which has been occupied by three generations of the family.

Articles lost in the fire were of "great value to us but of little value to anyone else," Mrs. O'Reilly said.

The family car, usually kept in the stables, was not there when the fire broke out at 6 p.m. City firemen were on the scene for an hour and a half.

Building and contents were insured.

Pair Fined $25 For 'Defending' Canadian Navy

Fines of $25 each were imposed in city police court today on two sailors who admitted assaulting a 26-year-old man in the Plaza Cafe a week ago, smashing his glasses.

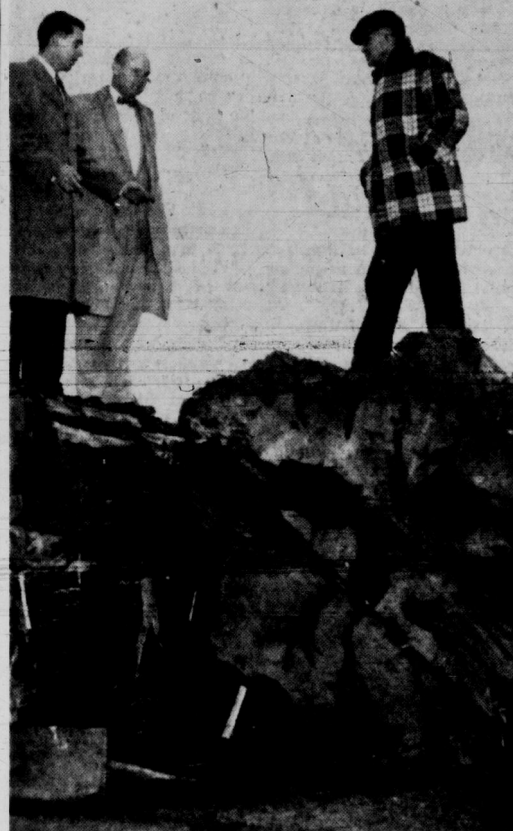

William Caldwell and Arthur Dayton said they were provoked by insults aimed at the navy.

When prosecutor Alan Bigelow suggested that their action defending the navy was "pretty drastic," Dayton replied: "The navy is my life."

Magistrate H. C. Hall noted in passing sentence that both men had already spent seven days in jail.

Queen Accepts B.C. Totem Gift

100-Ft. Pole Will Mark Centennial

Queen Elizabeth has accepted a 100-foot totem pole as a gift from the people of British Columbia to commemorate the province's 100th birthday in 1958.

The Queen's acceptance of the totem—to be carved in Victoria early next year—was announced today by L. J. Wallace, chairman of the B.C. Centennial Committee.

It will be raised in one of the Queen's royal parks, probably in London, as a topical souvenir of B.C.'s 1958 centenary and a permanent memento of the province.

In a letter received by Premier Bennett Friday, it was stated that Queen Elizabeth has been "graciously pleased to accept this gift from the people of British Columbia."

Her Majesty's acceptance took the wraps off a secret that has been closely guarded by the centennial committee for the last six months.

"We did not feel we could announce this gift until it had been formally accepted by the Queen," Mr. Wallace said.

CARVING TEAM

The totem will be carved by Mungo Martin, his son David, and Henry Hunt, who fashioned the World's Tallest Totem in Beacon Hill Park which was sponsored by The Victoria Daily Times last year.

The royal totem is being sponsored jointly by the Centennial committee and the B.C. department of education under the direction of Wilson Duff, curator of anthropology at the provincial museum.

Mungo Martin and his assistants will begin carving the pole early in January in their workshop at Thunderbird Park where they fashioned the World's Tallest Totem, measuring 127 feet, last year.

"I am very eager to start work on the new totem," 76-year-old Mungo Martin said today.

"The 100-foot totem will represent one foot for each year from the founding of the mainland colony of British Columbia in 1858," Mr. Wallace said.

"It will be a specimen of the outstanding craftsmanship of the totem carving tribes of the West Coast, and will help to perpetuate their ancient craft, as The Times did last year."

TO BE DISPLAYED

Mr. Wallace added that after the totem is completed—probably by June of next year—it will be on display in Victoria for some months before being shipped to England.

There it will be officially presented to the Queen by a representative of the B.C. Government.

"The Queen will decide where the totem will be erected but it seems likely she will choose one of the London parks."

Wilson Duff said the totem will be authentic in every respect and will tell stories of several different sub-tribes of the Kwakiutl tribe.

Earlier this year, the Powell River Company held a competition between two lumber camps in the Queen Charlotte Islands to find the tallest and straightest red cedar suitable for carving.

Both camps found suitable trees and the company therefore donated both trees with the idea that the tree not used for the royal totem might be carved later.

Norris Raps Oak Bay On Voting Lethargy

OAK BAY REEVE QUILTS NEXT YEAR

Oak Bay Reeve Fred Norris said today he will quit municipal politics next year.

He is now halfway through his second two-year term of office.

The reeve gave no reason for his announced intention except pressure of business.

again for council. To date construction company executive Kenneth Oliver who ran unsuccessfully last year, lawyer Kenneth Murphy and Victoria Credit Bureau manager Geoffrey Ellis have said they also will run for council.

Mr. Ellis filed nomination papers late Friday.

He was on Oak Bay council in 1947-48 and again in 1952-53, and was also a member of the police commission in 1952. He was a member of the B.C. Provincial Police for 13 years and is now manager of the Victoria Credit Bureau.

AGAINST MERGER

On municipal issues, he said he opposes municipal amalgamation but endorses municipal co-operation, and is "very much opposed" to the current Oak Bay by-law preventing the sale of raw milk.

On the police commission, present commissioner Thomas Vickers has announced he will stand for re-election. There is as yet no other candidate.

W. H. Golby, school board chairman, has said he will also stand for re-election. No other candidates have been announced.

December 15 vote will be for the three council seats, on a $275,000 money-by-law for a new municipal hall and police station, on a referendum enabling sale of raw milk, and for police commission and school board seats.

SCHOOL VOTE

As well, Oak Bay will vote on the $5,600,000 Greater Victoria school construction referendum of which Oak Bay's cost would be about 16 per cent if voted in at the majority of polls.

Non-property holders may vote for council, police commissioner, on the milk question and school building. Property holders only may vote on the money-by-law for the municipal hall.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES

Influx of persons from other parts of the country, more numerous than customary, has swelled unemployed ranks here to 2,870 persons, a jump of 136 compared with last week, the National Employment Office said today.

Claimants for unemployment insurance number 1,869.

There have been small layoffs in various industries, particularly in the construction trades. Another factor increasing numbers of jobless is registrations for Christmas work in the post office and stores.

Two young sailors appeared in city police court today charged with theft of a $150 granite tombstone from Mortimer Monumental Works, 633 David.

Corry William Patterson and Derward Finlay Morrison, both of HMCS Naden, were remanded to Monday without plea.

They were apprehended by Saanich police at 7:45 a.m. today in company with another youth and two girls and turned over to city police.

Two hasty policemen were needed to lug a heavy, polished Swedish granite stone into the courtroom.

A meeting of the Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce will be held at McEwen's Restaurant at 6:15 Wednesday.

Latest winner of a Greater Victoria "courteous driver" award is William J. "Bill" Cove, 552 Paradise, a C & C Taxi Company driver for the last five years.

Bill, whose regular job is at the wheel of the airlines bus, was chosen by city police for his safe driving habits.

No new members will be accepted into St. Luke's 60-Up Club for awhile because of a recent rush of applications.

Prospective members may apply at a later date by contacting the secretary H. Putland, 40 Glebe Terrace.

Annual banquet and concert for members only will be held Dec. 18. Tickets must be obtained before Dec. 11.

Esquimalt Council will meet at the Municipal Hall Monday at 7:30 p.m.

Decorative strings of colored lights turned on last night were still burning after 9 a.m. this morning—adding a festive if unique look to streets.

As well, installation of red, blue, green and yellow lamps in cluster lights was completed Friday, four colored lamps to each of 200 standards which are decorated with frosted holly baskets.

Charles M. MacLeod was re-elected president of the Clan MacLeod at the clan's annual meeting Friday.

Other officers elected were: Dr. Hector J. MacLeod, honorary president; Alex M. MacLeod, vice-president; Mrs. Catherine Blinko, secretary; Kenneth R. MacLeod, treasurer; Mrs. Harold Beckwith, Miss I. Robertson, Alex MacLeod Baird, Dal MacLeod and Donald MacLeod, council members.

Another fake bomb threat was telephoned to a city theatre Friday but no action was taken to evacuate.

Cashier of the Odeon Theatre said a child's voice told her, "There's a bomb in the back stage of your theatre." She heard a baby crying in the background.

Police were notified but it was not felt necessary to empty the theatre.

Members of the Outdoor Club of Victoria will depart from the Veteran Stages depot, 728 Herald, at 10 a.m. Sunday for a compass-map reading hike.

Election of officers will be held at a meeting of the Old Age Pensioners, branch five, at the Knights of Pythias Hall Wednesday at 1:30 p.m.

CHRISTMAS CARNIVAL with a dance and student concert will be attended by S. J. Willis Junior High School PTA and students Tuesday, Dec. 18, at 8 p.m., PTA president W. H. Williams (above), 2912 Quadra, said today.

Honorary president is principal B. C. Gillie; first vice-president, Charles Crockett; second, Mrs. J. A. McKinty; secretary, Mrs. H. B. Goertzen and treasurer, Mrs. J. L. Munroe. (Times photo.)

NEWS OF CITY CHURCHES

Collections Planned For Hungary Relief

Advent Sunday, the church's "New Year," will be marked in all Anglican churches on Vancouver Island at Sunday services.

At the same time collections will be taken for the Hungarian relief fund administered by the World Council of Churches.

Derived from the Latin word "adventus," Advent refers to the "coming" of Christ. The four-Sunday season is a preparation for Christmas, which in the Christian year is second in importance only to Easter.

The occasion will be celebrated at Christ Church Cathedral in the Choral Eucharist at 11 a.m. Dean Brian Whitlow will preach the sermon. The dean will conduct film-strip instruction "No Alternative" at evensong.

Two outstanding laymen of the United Church in Victoria, Hugh Farquhar, professor of education at Victoria College, and lawyer W. A. Buchanan will speak at the evening service in Centennial United Church Sunday. Their theme will be "What Christmas Means to Me."

Rev. Douglas B. Carr will preach at the morning service on "The Expectancy of Christmas."

Seven children will be presented for baptism at First United Church morning service Sunday. Rev. A. I. Higgins has chosen as his sermon topics "The Power of Positive Living" and "Victory Over Suffering."

Namamoto Junior Choir, conducted by Mrs. Mary Newbury, will give four choral anthems.

Special offering for Hungarian relief will be received at First Baptist Church Sunday. The money will be distributed to refugee Hungarians by the Baptist World Alliance.

Rev. G. R. Easter will preach on "Light in the Dark" and "Where Prayer Comes In."

Morning service at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church will be broadcast over CJVI when the subject of the Very Rev. J. Lewis McLean, M.A., D.D., will be "Jesus, the Bridegroom." His evening topic will be "Jesus—a Winebibber."

Subjects of Rev. Emma M. Smiley at Victoria Truth Centre Sunday will be "Spiritual Healing" and "The Church of Grace."

Holy communion services will be celebrated at St. John's Anglican Church Sunday at 8 and 11 a.m. Canon George Biddle will preach at morning and evening services on "The Ar-

READY FOR ADOPTION:
Sparky's people are moving a long way away... too far to take this soft-eyed, gentle black and white spaniel with them. One year old, female.

Big, sad-eyed, droop-jawed Pongo is as good a Newfoundland as you'll ever meet—except in the unfortunate matter of chickens. Two years old, male.

Four plump happy puppies, eight weeks old. Quite a bit of collie in the family.

A sort of Zazu Pitts of dogdom is Trevy—a big, good natured, rather unusual combination of border collie and airedale. One year old, female.

Boots, a rough-coated terrier, is almost a model for the original shaggy dog. He's one year old, apparently has had an unfortunate experience with young children as he doesn't like them—but he's a good house dog.

Och, ay, and here's a bonnie doggle—black and brown Scotch 3½ years, very patient with children and a good watchdog.

Short-haired terrier type, male, three years old. Name's Fatso, but he isn't really.

WORDS OF SIGNIFICANCE

Christian Obligated To Follow Blueprint

(This is another in a series of weekly discussions with local ministers who will be asked to comment on the Biblical passage which holds the most significance for them.)

"Do all things without murmurings and disputing: That ye may be blameless and harmless, the sons of God, without rebuke, in the midst of a crooked and perverse nation, among whom ye shine as lights in the world." Philippians, chapter 2, verses 15-16.

"A contractor is expected to follow an architect's blueprint by which his workmanship is judged," says Dr. J. B. Rowell, well-known religious writer and minister of Central Baptist Church for 29 years.

"Even so a Christian is under obligation to follow the Divine blueprint given in the Word of God."

"People who aren't churchgoers often say 'I can live just as good a life without going to church as those who do,' but they're judging their lives in the light of those who are professors—not possessors—of Christianity."

"The man who merely professes to be a Christian but does not live the Christian life does more harm to the cause of Christ than an infidel."

"Vital Christianity is the result of a new birth as proclaimed by our Lord to Nicodemus."

"The children or sons of God are those who have been born again of God's holy spirit and they must live a Christian life according to the Divine requirements not as lights but as luminaries," said Dr. Rowell.

"The word 'light' implies self-illumination but the word used here speaks of reflecting light just as the moon reflects the light of the sun."

"The light God has shone in the hearts of His children is the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ."

"True Christians will reflect this light in the midst of a crooked and perverse nation," he said.

DR. J. B. ROWELL, Minister of Central Baptist Church

"This is the divine blueprint for those who are the sons or children of God."

Dr. Rowell was ordained in Vancouver in 1919 after serving overseas three years in the First World War as a stretcher bearer in the 11th Field Ambulance, Universities Battalion, Canadian Army Medical Corps. Among his fellow stretcher bearers were Canon S. J. Wickins and Rev. C. W. Downer of Victoria.

He was pastor of the Baptist Church in Kamloops for seven years before coming to Victoria in 1926.

He has written several leaflets and booklets which have been translated into six different languages. Some of his booklets are used in Baptist seminaries in Canada and the United Nations.

Anticipation!...

The fun and the joy that children experience during the Yuletide season is eagerly anticipated by thousands of boys and girls like the ones pictured on this page today.

Dainty little 15-month-old Linda Miller found just the dolly she hopes Santa will bring, and didn't want to part with it. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. Miller, 1012 Chamberlain Street.

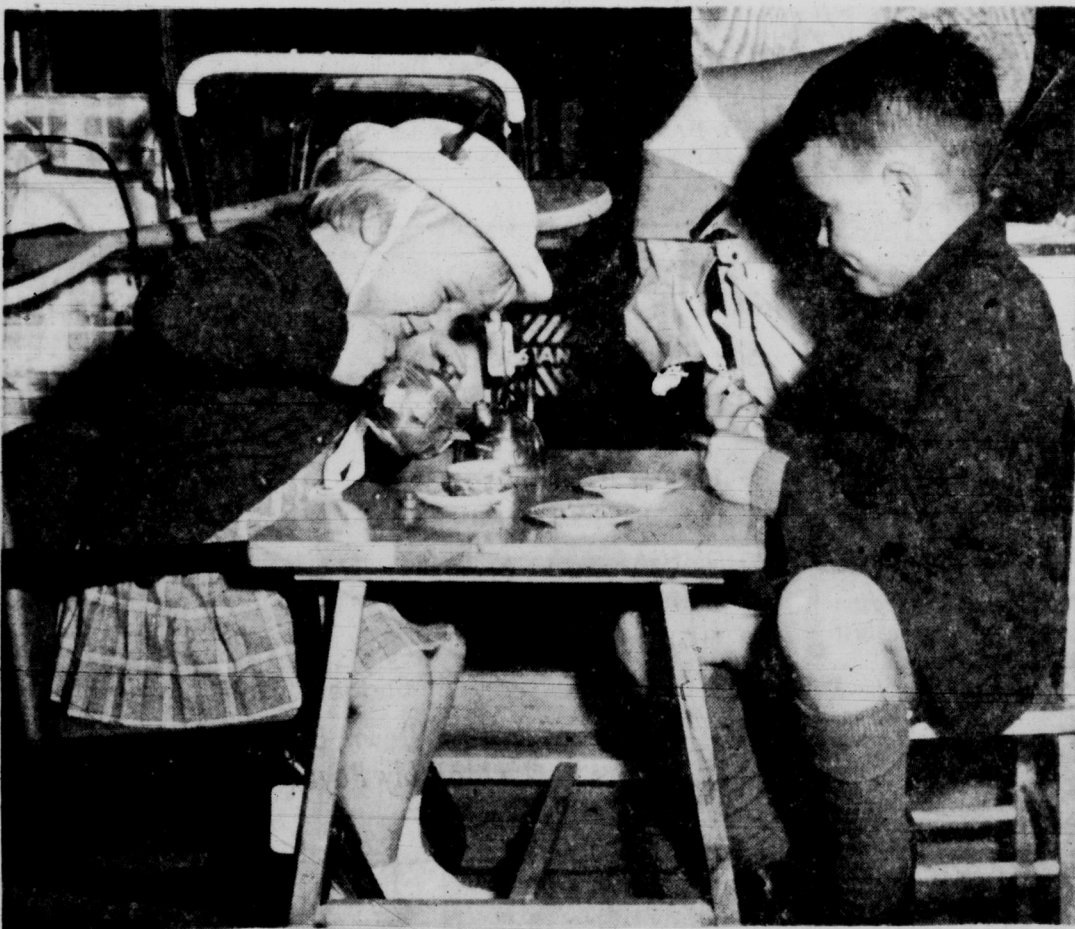

Moment of delight for two-and-a-half-year-old Debbie Taylor was a ride on a big rocking horse from Santa's toyland. Debbie is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald B. Taylor, 2555 Margate Street.

Reaching for the dolly she hopes to find under the Christmas tree is four-year-old Susan Grahame, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Grahame, 225 Lascelles Crescent. Her elder brother, six-year-old Ronnie, wearing his best cowboy outfit, steadies Susan's stepladder.

Only 24 days until Christmas and excitement is mounting in the homes where children wait with starry eyes to see whether their wishes will come true. In the meantime they roam in downtown Toylands with bemused eyes and hopeful thoughts... while each day brings something new to the list of special requests that mothers and fathers, the world around, will try to fulfil.

Debbie and Michael Todd visited Toyland after school one day and had an exciting time trying the rocking horses and tricycles for size. Debbie, four, and Michael, six, children of Mr. and Mrs. Derek Todd, 1586 York Place, attend St. Christopher's School.

Sparkling rhinestones shimmer on this evening bag from Austria. Loop handle slips over wrist and puffy pouch is large enough to hold necessary items Sheila Morgan will need for any evening party. (At left.)

Less formal but very popular is this brown velvet fold over clutch purse. Ariel of Montreal studded the gold frame with topaz shade stones to complement season's striking beige and brown tones. (At right.)

IN STEP WITH STYLE

Evening Bags for Festive Occasions Will Hold More Than Comb, Lipstick

Complement your late day dress with flattering jewels and a small dressy evening bag. For all their fragile beauty, these bags are large enough to hold something beyond a lipstick and comb.

Nona

If your dress is simple, you will want to choose a really elaborate bag and several pieces of jewelry. With a cocktail dress or formal which has its own lavish sparkle choose simple accessories. In our pictures we have matched each evening bag with its own jewelry. Long drop rhinestone earrings by Sherman appear with our Austrian bag.

Sheila Morgan's cocktail sweater is also from Austria and has a few matching rhinestones to trim the scoop neckline.

Pearls shimmer in matching loveliness beside the satin pouch bag from France. The four-strand necklace and tear-drop earrings are by Richelleu and may be matched with a lovely bracelet.

With the intricate tapestry design of the Indian envelope bag we chose rhinestone and crystal drop earrings and necklace by Hattie Carnegie. The beautiful necklace is adjustable and may be worn high or low on the throat.

To carry out the amber tone of the frame of the brown velvet clutch bag Sheila is wearing bronze tone Baroque button earrings and bracelet.

There are many other exquisite bags from which to choose... brocades in gold and cream... black and gold and white with silver. There is black satin with multi-colored embroidery and black velvet with golden tapestry design.

Don't forget... a never-ending choice of jewelry, too... Trifari rhinestone bibs and bracelets... pearls in all shades and the very fashionable jet items, could be the answer.

A Hint—For those who have gift problems these smart evening bags and beautiful jewelry items could be the answer.

HERBS IN THE HOME

Proper Use of Spices Improves Many a Meal

By PATRICIA RAE

I cannot resist telling you a little more of the different uses for spices and seeds. It's such a fascinating study!

GINGER

Apart from old-fashioned coriander seed gingerbread and ginger cookies, try it in apple dishes (particularly stuffed, baked apples), in curry, with stewed pears, peach pie or apricot mousse. Ginger-toffee is always a good "draw" at bazaars, and there are gingerbread men to decorate the table at children's parties. One of my favorite uses for ginger is rhubarb, with a piece of Angelica and brown sugar.

TURMERIC

Leaving aside curry and pickles, which are obvious uses for this spice, savoury rice is one of our favorites (1/4 teaspoon of turmeric to color the steamed rice when ready to serve). Add chopped lovage stalks or celery, chives or onions, parsley, roasted peanuts, sultanas and a little coconut, and you have the basis of fish kedgeree, chicken pilau, or what have you! A little turmeric (1/2 teaspoon) is often added to "Fairy Gingerbread" mixtures, making the finished loaf an attractive light golden brown.

I can't tell you how thrilled I am, to find all these spices available in certain shops in Victoria. Also most of the following aromatic seeds, some of which I used to "harvest" from my New Zealand garden:

POPPY SEED

Used in so many attractive ways in the shops here, poppy seed is delicious added to buttered noodles.

SESAME SEED

How exciting to find this is used on certain types of bread here! As children in China, we used to love the rolled-up Chinese candy called "staircases" by Europeans; and thin peanut brittle with sesame seed on one side. In addition to candy, sesame seed is also used in certain Chinese chow dishes, as it blends well with soybean sauce.

CORIANDER

You can grow this plant in your garden, but it has a strange, rather unpleasant smell when first in leaf. Coriander seed is used in pickles, gingerbread, cookies and stuffings. A little trick!... Grind some coriander seed in a "mill" and rub in on fresh pork before roasting.

ANISEED

Sounds like an old-world cough-drop, doesn't it? I was delighted when someone gave me a plant for my herb collection in New Zealand. Aniseed is still used in modern cough medicines, and in small, boiled candies. Sometimes (a little, ground) goes into coffee cakes.

ANGELICA

I used to collect seed from my own "giant" seven-footer plants and use it in custards. Lovage seed (a little more "peppery") can be used the same way.

Color Films Shown To RSMA Members

Members of the Royal School of Music Association met recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Hamilton, 2515 Beach Drive. During the evening, Malcolm Hamilton, a member of the association, played a recording sung by the Glasgow Orpheus Choir, following which the gathering went to the rumpus room where a showing of color films taken by Mr. Hamilton during a trip to Great Britain and France last summer, were enjoyed. Refreshments were served by Mrs. W. J. Hamilton. Miss Gladys Hewlings expressed thanks of the members to the host and hostess.

Miss Kathy Holmes a Bride Today In Our Lady of Lourdes Church

This morning in Our Lady of Lourdes Church, Oak Bay, Father M. J. McNamara said the nuptial mass during which Miss Kathryn Ruth Holmes and Robert Louis Monaghan were wed.

White chrysanthemums and tapering candelabra were placed on the white altar of the church, and puffs of tulle centred with sprigs of holly marked guest pews.

The lovely, dark-haired bride, was radiant in a gown of faille, fashioned with a simply styled bodice with opalescent sequins and pearl necklace trim and three-quarter sleeves. The skirt featured a sheath front and at the back, tiny buttons to a bustle back extending into a slight train. The petite bride wore an illusion veil of net in fingertip length, held to a dainty pearl coronet. Her colonial bouquet was of pink and white rosebuds, with tulle, and rosebuds were knotted in the ribbon streamers. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Denton Holmes, Royal Oak, she was given in marriage by her father.

Miss Marilyn Smith, maid of honor, and Mrs. Mort Graham, bridesmatron attended the bride. Their gowns, fashioned with bateau necklines and full skirts, were of holly-red velvet, complemented with muffs of pink tinted chrysanthemums on red velvet. Headbands highlighted with rhinestone pins to match, their earrings, were made of velvet, en tone and their shoes were of the same holly red.

The groom, son of Thomas Monaghan, 1224 Dallas Road, had as his best man, Bud French. Ushers were Charles Holmes, brother of the bride, and Mort Graham.

During the communion, soloist, Miss Terry French, sang Caesar Franck's "Panis Angelicus," and during the signing of the register, Charles Gounod's "Adore and Be Still," choice of the bride's mother. Organist was Mrs. Leslie Gill.

Following the ceremony, the newlyweds, assisted by the bride's mother, Mrs. William French, received their guests at a reception party in the Oak Bay Beach Hotel. Mrs. Holmes wore a navy blue ensemble with matching accessories and a feathered hat of lotus blue. Her corsage was a pink camellia with rosebuds. Mrs. Champion chose a wedgwood blue dress accessorized with a black hat trimmed with fur. Her corsage was of red carnations. A three-tier wedding cake decorated with pink rosebuds centred the bride's table, where the pink and red theme of the wedding was repeated. Maj. William Merston, uncle of the bride, proposed the toast to his niece's future happiness.

For her going-away outfit, the bride chose a black French flannel sheath dress with long sleeves and a high neckline. Her accessories were black, and her coat, of Alpaca pile, beige. A corsage of chrysanthemums shaded from yellow to bronze completed her outfit.

Following a honeymoon trip to Carmel, Calif., the newlyweds will make their home in the Shannon Apartments, Fairfield Road.

Wedding Vows in Duncan Church Of Interest to Victoria Friends

Duncan United Church was decked with baskets of chrysanthemums, and rosettes marked the guest pews for the marriage of Jessie Catherine, daughter of Mr. Thomas McQuarrie, Whistler Street, Duncan, to Barry Edward Cassidy, son of Mrs. C. M. Carmichael.

Rev. F. J. Goughly officiated at the ceremony and Mrs. Elsie Carter played wedding music. "O Promise Me" was sung by Jack Jenkinson.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full-length gown of white net over tulle with lace inserts and a fitted bodice. Sleeves were long, tapering into lily points over the hands. Her fingertip veil was held to a tiny coronet of pearls, and her jewelry, pearl earrings, were the groom's gift. Completing her ensemble was a bridal bouquet of red roses and white stephanotis.

ATTENDANTS

Mrs. Donna Evans, matron of honor, wore a dress of yellow nylon net over tulle with matching headress and mits and a bouquet of yellow carnations and red chrysanthemums. Bridesmaid Miss Jean Kerrone wore a turquoise ballerina-length gown of brocade tulle with matching headress and mits and a bouquet of pink carnations and red chrysanthemums.

The groom had James Evans as best man, and ushers were George Minkler and Hugh Williams.

At a reception held in the Moose Home, Mrs. Robert McQuarrie, sister-in-law of the bride, and Mrs. Carmichael, mother of the groom, assisted in receiving guests. Mrs. McQuarrie chose a dress of turquoise brocade tulle with black accessories and a corsage of yellow carnations.

J. S. Lawrence proposed the toast to the bride. For a wedding trip by car to Vancouver and Seattle, the bride wore a dark green tweed suit with copper-colored hat and dark brown shoes, gloves and purse. Her corsage was of yellow rosebuds.

Babbs, Miss Beverley Babbs and Mr. Karl Ostergard, Vancouver; Mr. and Mrs. Robert McQuarrie, Mr. Bruce McQuarrie and Mr. and Mrs. G. Chester, Saturna Island; Mr. and Mrs. V. Laker, Mrs. G. Paisley Shawls Once Served As Milady's Fine Topcoats

An interesting talk on Paisley shawls was a highlight of the last meeting of Victoria Handweavers Guild, held in the Art Gallery.

Mrs. J. Godman was the speaker and she showed some fine examples of the art. She was thanked by Mrs. H. Hodson.

In 1810 whole families were engaged in weaving shawls in Scotland, Mrs. Godson said, and at one time, the city of Paisley, which was the distributing centre, had more than 12,000 employed in the work.

There were many intricate patterns that were first sketched on paper, then turned into graphs and from there were made into designs. Weaving was done from the back in those days, and even then brought a good price.

Until 1870 shawls were popular and cloaks for ladies were hardly known. Mrs. Godman studied the subject in London, delving into various little craft and book shops and going to the Victoria and Albert Museum, where some of the shawls, more than 150 years old, are made in tiny squares and embroidered on top.

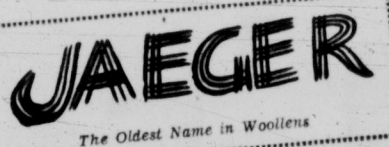

The joints are so fine as to almost be invisible.

Mrs. A. E. Kinnis presided and welcomed three out-of-town members, Mrs. Violet White,

Flashlight and Keychain For Your Purse or Pocket

By PENNY SAVER

"I really must get a little purse flashlight!" How many times have you said that to yourself while fumbling for a door key on your front porch. Every time I forget to leave a porch light on, and have to go through the process of first searching through my purse for the key, and second, trying to find the lock on a very dark door, I make a mental note to "pick up a little light, for sure." There's a possibility, of course, that you'll be searching through your purse for the flashlight as well, but the handy little pocket or purse flashlight and keychain that I saw are easily sorted out by their shape. In a seamless plastic case, the light is easily flicked on, and opening the door is a cinch, 'cause the key is attached to the keychain, which, in turn, is attached to the flashlight. Easy!

It's run with a penlight battery, and comes in black, blue, or maroon with gold touches. They're selling at $1 each. A stocking filler, this flashlight is handy for either men or women.

Imported from France are the gay scarves with matching tailored gloves of bright plaid. Red, brown and yellow or blue plaids in warm wool are seen in the scarves with fringed ends, and snug-fitting gloves that are so smart, and so neatly styled. The set sells at $4.95.

For the children's room, here's a room thermometer that is set in a plastic plate that is a butterfly of many colors. You can also buy clowns, birds and other animals in a variety of colors to go with the room. These are 94 cents each.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Remedial Measures for Defects of Neck Listed

Today let's consider a few of the defects to which the neck sometimes falls heir. Some of these are the Dowager's hump, the bony neck, a double chin and a withered looking neck.

The Dowager's hump, or the hump at the back of the neck, is almost entirely a question of poor posture. Fat also may accumulate in this spot. As a woman grows older this condition will become worse unless she adopts remedial measures. Massage is helpful in getting rid of any fatty deposits. Dig in with your fingertips. Also do the following exercise:

Stand tall. Move the shoulders straight back as you lower your head backward. Slowly move the shoulders forward and lift the head to erect position. Do not lift the shoulders. Continue, doing this exercise slowly.

Watch your posture. Stretch the spine through the region of the neck by keeping the chin parallel to the floor and pushing toward the ceiling with the top of your head.

Naturally, if you are underweight your collar bones will be more prominent than if you are the correct weight. In this instance a gain will be helpful. There also are exercises which will help fill out the neck. Today I will give you two of them.

1. Stand tall. Raise the right arm sideways, shoulder height, move it upward by the right ear and lower it forward to side. The palm should face the front of the room all through this exercise, and the movement should be smooth and continuous. Repeat ten times. Do the same thing with the left arm.

2. Make circles with the head, moving first in one direction and then in the other.

I have given you exercises for the double chin recently. If you are overweight that is part of the problem and a loss will help.

Muscle toning and good lubrication are the corrective measures for the scrawny neck. Pat the cream gently into your neck. Do not massage. Do this daily just as you lubricate your face.

The following exercise is a combination exercise. It is beneficial to the neckline and slimming to the abdomen. Lie on the floor on your back. As you raise your head from the floor bend both knees up and touch the knees to your nose or bring them as close together as possible. Return head and legs to the floor. Continue.

December Log Book Makes Interesting Hobby for All

By NANCY CLEAVER

Why not begin a Christmas family chronicle the first of December? Discuss it in your home and let every member have a part in planning it. The most interesting information for any family is the story of their own life. It is a pity so few households keep a diary or a log book! No two would ever be alike. Here is an inexpensive project any family could enjoy immensely.

For your log book, use a loose leaf book, with plain heavy re-fill paper, and reinforce the holes for the rings. If there is a budding artist in the family, let him draw some sketches on the margins.

Perhaps Mother could make a brief chronicle of how and where she and Dad have spent their Christmases. Write a brief account of any funny little happening in the home or special Christmas expedition which you remember.

If you can, get extra prints of snapshots of your children taken in former Decembers. It will be fun to compare them with action shots of them singing carols, or on Christmas Eve with their stockings, or the next morning with their gifts in front of the tree, one of the youngsters in a pageant or play. The part of "the littlest angel" in white with golden cellophane wings and halo deserves a snapshot! If someone gets a new camera for Christmas, let him take a picture of the outside of your house sometime during the day.

Perhaps a school age child would like to write the record of the events in your home this Dec. 25. During the holidays, before New Year's, another youngster might like to use the new crayons or paints he received as a gift to make a colored picture of the Wise Men or the Shepherds.

FAMILY NOTES

A very useful page would be a "Family Tree." As you write your Christmas letters and purchase your gifts, make a note in brackets after each individual name, of your progress—as Grandma (a plaid knitting bag) Aunt Helen (a color film for her camera).

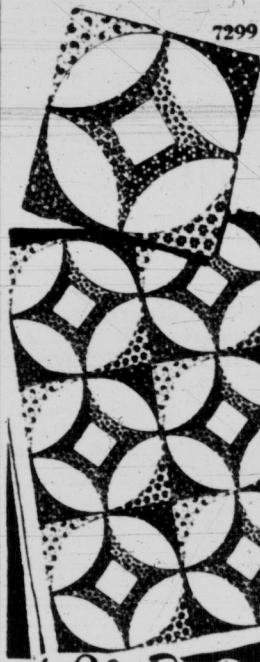

Another page for future reference could be the Christmas Card list. Enlist some help from the older school age youngsters in addressing envelopes. To encourage them to write a little message to the elderly friends of the family who are fond of them. It means so much to older people to be remembered by the younger generation.

There might be a page for favorite Christmas cake recipes of Grandma's which she would like to write out in her own handwriting. Perhaps you have a relative who is famous for her shortbread and sends you a box each year. Write and tell her about your book, enclosing a page for her to write out her recipe, too.

DINNER MENU

A copy of the menu for Christmas dinner could be made in block printing by your boy or girl who has just learned to write. Ask all the clan who gather around to eat Mother's cooking to autograph this page.

Have one section for the titles of your family's favorite carols—and do add some new ones which you have learned this year. If you are fond of reading, perhaps you could ask each member of your home to choose one short quotation of prose or poetry for a Favorite Quote Page, like Tiny Tim's words at the end of Dickens' Christmas Carol, "God Bless Us Every one!" May the events in your family Christmas log book be happy ones!

LONDON (Reuters) — Leicester City's burly Arthur Rowley today equalled the postwar goal-scoring record in English soccer, booting in his 242nd goal of his career in a Second Division game against Rotherham United.

The record had been set by Charlie Wayman of Middlesbrough.

Rowley and his Leicester City teammates defeated Rotherham United 5-2 to remain deadlocked in points with Stoke City for the lead in the Second Division. Each has 28 points, but Stoke City leads on goal average after a 4-1 home victory over Swansea Town.

Manchester United continued to conquer the First Division, downing Luton Town 3-1 on goals by England internationals Duncan Edwards and Tommy Taylor and another by former schoolboy international David Pegg.

City Opens Its Heart For Hungary Refugees

Syria Charges U.K. Ready Aggression

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Syria today announced it is calling on the United Nations assembly to take up "the threat to Syria's safety" arising from preparation for armed aggression against her by Britain, France, Israel and Turkey.

(CP and UP Dispatches) UNITED NATIONS, New York — The United States and Israel were reported drumming up separate resolutions today condemning the Soviet Union for its intervention in the Middle East.

The Israeli government ordered its delegation to bring up in the assembly the reports of a Red arms buildup in Syria.

Diplomats regard the Syrian problem as potentially more dangerous than the Suez crisis. They said it was virtually certain Soviet "volunteers" would go into action if there is war between Syria and Turkey and Iraq.

IMPORTING ARMS Syrian ambassador Farid Zeineddine admitted that Syria has been importing arms from "various nations," including Czechoslovakia.

But he said this was purely a defensive measure in view of an alleged Anglo-French-Israeli buildup. He charged a half division of French troops, some British personnel and some 100 French planes are on Israeli soil.

In Baghdad, King Faisal suspended the Iraq parliament. In London British and Turkish officials met to discuss means of thwarting what the Turks say is a Soviet plot to seize control of Syria.

At Cairo, Maj. Gen. Abdel Hakim Amer, minister of war and head of the Egyptian-Syrian-Jordanian-Saudi Arabian-Yemen defence forces, said the five nations were prepared to fight together to repel aggression.

Interference Range of Local TV Will Get Big Test Over Weekend

The question of how serious the interference from Victoria's new Channel 6 TV station CHEK is with Seattle's popular Channel 5 will get its first major test this weekend.

Channel 5 goes on the air regularly at 5 this afternoon and will do 16 hours of telecasting during the weekend.

First trials of the Channel 6 test pattern late Thursday night and after midnight Friday indicated widespread interference.

PICKERSGILL IN VIENNA

VIENNA, Austria (BUP) — Canadian immigration minister John W. Pickersgill arrived today to cut red tape for Hungarian refugees who want to go to Canada.

The first plane load of 71 refugees will leave for Canada Sunday and Mr. Pickersgill said he planned to see it take off from Vienna's Schwechat Airport.

Local television technicians feel confident that by the addition of a trap or aerial alterations they can adjust sets so both Channel 5 and Channel 6 can be enjoyed.

NEW WORLD CHAMPION

World heavyweight boxing ranks were ruled today by the youngest champion in history, 21-year-old Floyd Patterson of New York. The former Olympic Games titleholder threw too many punches too often Friday night as he registered a fifth-round knockout over Archie Moore, 39-year-old light-heavyweight champion, at Chicago. Patterson, at 21, is two years younger than Joe Louis when he won the crown from Jimmy Braddock. (See Sports Pages.)

Refugee Child Weeps — Tells of Terror

TORONTO (CP) — Marika Maszaros, 12-year-old Hungarian refugee, ran tearfully to her mother's arms Friday night at Toronto's Malton airport, ending a three-year struggle to unite the pair.

Marika, thought to be the first emigrant to leave Hungary legally since the recent revolution, arrived not knowing where her mother, Mrs. Margit Afanasvay, was in Canada.

The pair had not seen one another since 1947, when the mother left Hungary.

Marika's arrival caught Red Cross officials by surprise. Mrs. Afanasvay, whose first husband, Marika's father, was killed in the Second World War, was located in Toronto and taken to the airport.

Marika told her mother, now remarried, that the house in Budapest where she lived with her grandmother was struck by shell fire and that she was fired upon in bread lines by Russian soldiers.

The Soviet officials who granted her visa warned her not to go to Canada which they said was filled with wild people who would eat her, she said.

HUNGARY'S FIGHTING STUDENTS

Wee Donation From 'Lea' Boosts Fund to $1,231

Victorians not only have given generously to the "Hungary's Fighting Students" fund launched by The Times — $1,231 to date — but have showed themselves wholly in accord with its aims.

Object of the fund is to assist former Hungarian university students who rebelled against the Communist regime and who now are refugees in Austria to continue their education on the free side of the Iron Curtain.

"Sincere heart-felt sympathy for 'Hungary's Fighting Students' find enclosed $25," wrote Dr. S. Hackney, 960 Joan Crescent.

An Up-Island donor identified only as "Lea" wrote: "Enclosed wee donation for your very worthwhile fund. Best wishes for a huge success."

This one has been duplicated scores of times: "I enclose a cheque for the above fund, but would prefer to remain anonymous. Good luck!"

Fifty Homes Already Offered

Fifty Victorians have opened their hearts and their homes to Hungarian refugees expected to arrive here Wednesday after flying from their strife-torn homeland aboard a federal government-chartered "Freedom Express" plane.

Several Victorians, in a gesture hailed by officials handling arrangements for the refugees, have offered to adopt Hungarian children.

Others have offered temporary employment for some of the refugees.

"The way Victorians have rallied around to help these unfortunate people is truly heart-warming," said one of the men making plans for the refugees.

They will arrive on the afternoon boat from Vancouver.

The refugees will be welcomed in Vancouver by Fisheries Minister James Sinclair.

The "Freedom Express" plane is a DC6B chartered by Ottawa

from Canadian Pacific Airlines. It will fly over the polar route.

Officials here said even more homes will be needed for Hungarians because four other charter flights, each carrying 70 refugees, will arrive in Vancouver later in December.

Albert de Mezey, who has organized a Central Co-ordinating Committee for Hungarian Relief here, said the number of refugees who will be sent to Victoria will depend on the available jobs in the district.

where jobs are available for them.

The response to an appeal for volunteers to assist the refugees in the city has been terrific," he said.

"Over 20 persons in the matter of a few hours offered their services as clerks and stenographers and to assist in keeping records."

A central depot will be established Monday to receive clothing and funds for the refugees, he said.

"The most valuable help of any kind is to provide at least temporary employment and living accommodations," he said.

"So far the response has been excellent, not only from Victoria but from other centres on Vancouver Island."

Otherwise, he said, they would naturally be sent to centres kind and helpful. As I prepared to leave them I noticed a swarthy fellow with a gentle countenance, who seemed interested in me. I asked him who he was. He said: "Greco." I shook hands one by one with the frontier officials. I came at length to Greco. I said: "English-Greek not good; you-me good." The Yugoslavs roared with laughter, and Greco nearly shook my hand off.

I gave a lift to a Yugoslav customs officer as far as Maribor, 15 kilometres away. It was here that the fog, which had shrouded much of my journey across Germany and Austria, ended at last, and I emerged into delicious sunshine which was to last all the way to Istanbul.

Although hundreds of miles lay between me and Belgrade, where I meant to spend the night, I gave in completely to the temptation to photograph the Yugoslav country people. They are very simple and very poor. But what is wrong with that? There is a great richness in their hearts which can only be measured by their warm friendliness. I never felt more moved than I was that day by the poverty and the simple kindness of those people.

I don't suppose they know or care much about the standard of living with which we seem so concerned. It seemed to me that their standard of living was far less material than spiritual and judged by that standard very high.

In comparison with Austria, the color of the Yugoslav countryside seemed more sombre in tone, matching the darker countenance of the people. I saw two country girls with their hair dyed a garish blonde. Their appearance compared grotesquely with the natural features of their compatriots.

The Yugoslavs' smiles come more slowly, but no less readily. Everyone smiles, everyone waves, they adore being photographed. Once I stopped to photograph two children, and a score more came running down the road to join in. They were simply enchanting. I felt very happy.

The road wound through delicious villages. The Yugoslavs have done nothing to mar the loveliness of their countryside. On the contrary, they lend beauty to it by their bearing and simple way of life.

I reflected: "How different I am to them in speech, manner and thought." Yet God created us, them and me. I often wonder what for, but that is the mys-

Pilot Bailed Out As Bomber Spins

Flaming Crash of U.S. Stratojet Near Lakehead Described; 3 Missing

FORT WILLIAM (CP)—The commander of a USAF B-47 stratojet bomber that crashed on Friday night in the rugged bush country northeast of the Lakehead said today he saw a "tremendous red glow" as his plane hit the ground, but he does not know whether his three companions got out alive.

From his bed in McKellar Hospital here, Maj. Robert Slane of Shreveport, La., said his giant plane went into "an uncontrollable spin" while in formation with other B-47s at approximately 31,000 feet. They were heading home from a trip to the north.

He said after a third spin that there was no alternative but to bail out and had to pull the parachute cord shortly after bailing out. It opens automatically at 12,000 feet because many pilots lose consciousness at high altitude.

REMAINED CONSCIOUS
"I was conscious the whole time and I remember practically everything," Maj. Slane said. "A mass of rushing air hit me when my seat ejected but I didn't black out. I found myself somersaulting and my tery of life which each one of us, in his own way, has to solve. I took dozens of photographs, encouraged by the co-operation I got from the country people. I had one set-back however. I passed a small wagon drawn by two good-looking horses going at a spanking trot. They looked so splendid that I stopped and took them. In the wagon were two soldiers. One, I think was teaching the other to drive, for he suddenly took the reins and drew in the horses. He was evidently far from pleased. He looked at the number-plate of my car and made a note of it.

I looked appraisingly at his horses, but failed to melt his sullen glare. I must remember not to photograph military objectives in future.

At Zabreh I found traffic stopped at a cross-roads. I beckoned to a policeman. He spoke a few words of English and I gathered that the President of Rumania was about to pass. Two minutes later a cortege swept by and we were waved on. A lorry, two cars, and my Land-Rover now brought up the rear of the procession. Suddenly I heard my name called. Two girls were waving from the pavement and I found it difficult not to smile back at the unexpected recognition at the wrong end of the procession.

UNEF TROOPS BEGIN SUEZ 'PEACE PATROL'

EL CAP, Egypt (AP)—United Nations troops launched their historic peace patrol between hostile forces Friday night after hours of bickering over final arrangements.

They took over British forward positions almost without a hitch but were barred from Egypt's entrenchments across the truce line.

By nightfall, UN troops occupied a buffer zone 600 yards wide and 1,000 yards deep.

Danish troops wearing blue helmets moved into sandbagged British foxholes about 24 miles south of the British-French headquarters in Port Said. They carried machine-guns and rifles.

As they moved up across no-man's land, British soldiers moved back northward.

A UN observer told correspondents that while the British and French were ceding their frontline positions, the Egyptians did not reciprocate.

Lone Gunman Gets $2,575 in Cash In Daring Hold-Up of Downtown Branch

VANCOUVER (CP)—Police were still searching today for a gap-toothed gunman who escaped Friday with $2,575 in cash in a holdup of the Marine Building branch of the Bank of Montreal.

Police said the bandit escaped through a side door into the rotunda of the building, then ran down a flight of stairs to the basement. The bandit's discarded raincoat and cap were found in a basement washroom.

They said they believed he either escaped along busy Burrard and Hastings Streets in downtown Vancouver or fled across the CPR railway yard.

A floor-by-floor search of the 24-storey Marine building was carried out by police without success. Two suspects, picked up for questioning by police, were released shortly after.

Mrs. Doreen Kirkley, 20, the bank teller, said the bandit, about 40, was smiling when he approached her wicket.

"He had most of his front teeth missing," she said. "He passed a printed note and an insurance company folder across the counter. As far as I remember it read: 'Put all the large bills in the folder. If you ring the alarm I'll kill you and myself—this gun is loaded'."

VERNON—The price of tea and coffee in most Vernon restaurants was increased to 12 cents a cup today.

In making this announcement, one restaurant proprietor said the increase was due to the rising cost of sugar and cream and the fact that coffee has been higher in price for some time.

Medical research reports on Corn Oil

"... Cholesterol is reduced appreciably"

A group of three doctors with the co-operation of more than 200 Canadian University student volunteers have proved conclusively that by replacing animal fats with corn oil in the human diet the level of plasma cholesterol is reduced appreciably.

Cholesterol is a fatty material which is deposited along with other lipids in the walls of the arteries and high blood levels of this substance are believed to contribute to such widespread human ailments as atherosclerosis (hardening of the arteries) and coronary thrombosis (heart disease).

The established conclusion was that corn oil contains a factor or factors that lead to a lowering of cholesterol levels.

These findings were reported recently before the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons.

Contempt of Press

SINCE this column is an austere concern which devotes its income to putting first things first, it follows the advice of Dr. Johnson (Sam, not George) and minds its belly; as the good doctor said, a man who will not mind his belly is not likely to mind anything else, and Silenus is convinced of the truth of this statement.

So much time is accordingly devoted to cooking and drinking that there is no room for TV in this column's busy life. Such spare moments as it can snatch from the table are devoted to reading those quaint curiosities known as Books. It's surprising what some of them contain.

The other night this column was reclining in its slumbrous couch pursuing a weighty legal work by Sir Carleton Allen, a man who can always be relied on to temper his weight with wit, and was just about to drop off to sleep, perchance to dream of torts and frauds) when Sir Carleton suddenly switched his fire from the Civil Service to the Press. Silenus has been sleepless ever since.

Most lawyers and legal writers at some time have delivered broadsides at the burden of bureaucracy under which we groan, but few take issue with the inscribers of the spoken word. When they do, they pull no punches. Listen to this. It is an extract from a Judge's Charge to the jury in a murder case, which Sir Carleton gleefully quotes verbatim:

"It is most improper to refer to this place as a Court of Justice. It is something for more than that. It is the biggest free entertainment that the State provides for its citizens."

UN CORRESPONDENCE

By CHARLES LYNCH

Lone Role for Canada

IT has been said time and again through the years that Canada has a role to play as a bridge between the United Kingdom and the United States.

Never since Canada started having a foreign policy of her own has there been such a split between London and Washington as has stemmed from the events in the Middle East. As they have drifted apart, the bridge found itself loose from its moorings at both ends. It is strong enough to stand on its own pions, and is doing so, sounding appropriate warning signals in both directions and waiting for the two sides to come closer together.

Another member of the Commonwealth, Australia, tried to throw an emergency pontoon structure across the gap between the U.S. and the U.K., but she found it tough going.

In Washington's eyes, Australia is tarred with the British brush.

The other day, I stood with a member of the Australian delegation in the delegates' lounge here.

"How serious is the split between London and Washington?" I asked him.

"Ruddy serious indeed," he replied. "If it weren't, do you think we'd be screaming as loudly as we are?"

A member of the United States delegation came by.

The Australian hailed him, and asked in half-jocular fashion: "When are you blokes going to get together with the U.K. people?"

The American replied: "As soon as they get the hell out of Egypt. Once that happens, we'll get together soon enough."

The Australian commented that by that time, it might be too late.

"Listen," said the American, "I only hope you Australians are working as hard on the zens . . . you must not forget your duty to the thousands—nay, millions—of your fellow citizens who, not having heard the evidence and not having even read it except in frenzied headlines and garbled goblets, are obviously in a better position to judge than we can be in the deplorably unimpassioned atmosphere of this Court.

"You have other duties, members of the jury, of which the prosecution has made no mention. You have a duty to the press. You are not to forget that this case has supplied the newspaper press of this country with better copy than 10 wars and 50 earthquakes, and has given it more opportunities of debauching the public mind and stimulating the criminal instincts of the community than any other event in the present century."

Phew! If an English judge can say that to a jury, I hope no Canadian occasion for such words ever arises. But as our population grows, so does the circulation of the sensational newspaper, and then the whole press suffers.

No responsible journal in Canada would merit such knife-work from the Bench, I am sure: "trial by newspaper" inevitably seems to occur in the humbler organs called "yellow." Nevertheless, it does no harm for the public to be told every now and then that the judicial process can only take place in court.

BY THE WAY — Last week a well-known daily columnist in this newspaper, a certain M. Rxbxrt, ground out a piece on the perils and peccadilloes of Pretty Kitty, and asked assistance from the superior wisdom of this column. Ever ready to oblige, I have taken the matter in hand and stand ready at any time to look after the interest of all Mr. Rxbxrt's admiring lady friends, Pretty Kitty, Merry Terry and such others as may have the misfortune to come under his protecting wing. But if he is merely scrounging material for his daily effusion, as this column suspects, I must insist on seeing my client, in person, in the privacy of the police court, and not in the plagiaristic presence of her protector.

2,810 Forest Fires in B.C. Worst Ever

Last summer 2,810 fires roared through British Columbia's forest wealth—the largest number ever recorded in one year and almost double the average for the last decade.

Total area burned was 471,724 acres or 10 times 1955.

A report issued by the B.C. Forest Service blames the increase on the long, dry summer, plus increased travel and industrial activity in the woods during the six months of the hazard season.

EARLY COMBAT

Final figures on the average fire size are expected to show the trend toward "hitting them earlier and harder" has been maintained due to the forest service's detection and suppression methods.

The report shows that the $500,000 it cost the forest service to extinguish 2,810 fires this year is only one-third of the cost of putting out 1,923 fires in 1951.

Worst fire area in B.C. was Vancouver Forest District with 1,462 fires.

RAILWAYS BLAMED

"Lightning as a cause of fire was displaced this year by railways," an official of the forest service said. "Our figures show that railways caused 1,090 fires, or 38.79 per cent of the total number, up from 14.89 per cent in 1955."

The official said the 1956 percentages testify that people generally are becoming more fire conscious.

In 1955, 14.09 per cent of fires were caused by campers and travellers. This year only 7.62 per cent were so caused.

Smokers, always a favorite target for fire prevention propaganda, must be taking heed as their percentage dropped from 14.89 per cent in 1955 to 10 per cent this year.

MONTHLY MEETING

Monthly meeting of the Prospect Lake and District Community Association will be held Friday, Dec. 7, at 7:30 p.m. in the Prospect Lake School.

It will be a family social evening featuring films, carol singing and refreshments.

KAMLOOPS—The chairman of the board of directors of Royal Inland Hospital here says the B.C. government is using "double-talk of the worst kind" in warning that hospital costs must be kept at current levels.

The chairman, Ald. Campbell Carroll, made the charge at a board meeting when the warning issued earlier by Health Minister Eric Martin was discussed.

Ald. Carroll said the government explained away the recent big increase in liquor prices by saying it was necessary to meet increased wages of the Liquor Control Board employees but at the same time the government was trying to muzzle the hospital in regard to keep employees' wages down.

The directors' policy calls for fair and careful handling of all problems affecting operational expenses and wage negotiations even though an operating deficit may result, he said.

The health minister had warned that there is no assurance funds will be available for further increases in hospital costs other than for increased beds and patient loads.

Duncan Acclaims City Symphony

By AUDREY ST.D. JOHNSON, Times Music Critic
On Friday evening the city of Duncan became momentarily, in the words of Mayor Jack Dobson, "the music centre of Vancouver Island." It was the first of three concerts by the Victoria Symphony Orchestra at Cowichan High School in Duncan.

An audience that exceeded all expectations—between 600 and 800—turned out to give an enthusiastic welcome to the orchestra, its conductor, Hans Gruber, and guest artist, violinist Esther Glazer.

BIG RESPONSE

There could be no doubting the complete success of the new venture. With hand, foot and voice, Duncan music lovers responded to some of the best playing the orchestra has done so far this season.

Enthusiastic comments were heard on all sides. Said one man: "We had no idea what we were missing."

And a woman accompanied by a small wide-eyed girl commented: "Linda's never heard a live orchestra before. Now I know I should have bought season tickets."

Most familiar work on the program was the Tchaikowski Violin Concerto and it had a fine, traditional performance at the gifted hands of charming Esther Glazer.

SYMPATHETIC STYLE

Her tone is opulent, almost masculine, the melodic phrases are beautifully sung in a broad yet sympathetic style. She has a robust, fluent technique that allows her to swarm through involved cadenzas and other virtuosic passages with an easy competence.

On the podium Gruber was in top form, revealing even more authority than usual, particularly in his fine and spirited reading of Elgar's "Enigma" Variations.

While all parts of this work were not uniformly successful, the general effect was imaginative, at times poetic and often immensely stimulating.

The orchestra's response was gratifying, there was excellent attack and a quite splendid diversity of color in the Variations as well as in Aaron Copland's light-hearted "Outdoor Overture".

The program will be repeated in Victoria, Sunday afternoon and Monday evening, at the Royal Theatre, and should prove one of the more memorable of the current season.

Business arrangements at the Duncan end for Friday's concert were undertaken by the Duncan Business and Professional Women's Club as a community service.

New Cemetery Next Spring

By PETE LOUDON

First section of Victoria district's newest cemetery, Hatley Memorial Gardens will be opened to public burials by early spring. Robert Hagel, president of the cemetery firm, said today.

His organization, which is connected with other Memorial Gardens associations in Manitoba and Alberta, is planning further expansion on the island.

A new 20-acre burial park is to be opened in the Alberni Valley soon, Mr. Hagel stated. It will be known as Alberni Valley Memorial Gardens.

The firm has set up its island headquarters here since taking over the old Colwood Cemetery and operates under the name Colwood Cemetery Co. The old Colwood Cemetery received, as well as a new name, an additional 50 acres of land which is now being cleared and landscaped.

LANDSCAPING
The old cemetery will be landscaped to conform to the new standards and headstones replaced with bronze flush markers (as required throughout) if surviving relatives approve and enter the financial plan. If approval is not obtained, or surviving relatives cannot be reached, the area will be bedged.

If possible, in areas where there are graves so old surviving family cannot be located, the cemetery firm will carry out the surface conversion out of operating costs, Mr. Hagel stated.

The new cemetery will be the only private firm in competition with the two municipally-operated cemeteries, Royal Oak Cemetery and Ross Bay Cemetery.

Unlike the municipal burial organizations, Hatley Memorial Gardens is selling plots through house calls and referred canvassing.

A seven-man sales staff is now employed in the Victoria area with the purpose of making sales in advance of death.

Mr. Hagel explains (while his organization frowns on use of the words "cemetery" or "salesmen" as such), there is a campaign to locate "public relations families" to reserve in advance, half of the 70 acres of plots.

These families may buy at rates reduced from those which will be in effect when the cemetery is half sold, as an incentive to "pre-need buying."

TRUST FUND

The new organization comes under jurisdiction of the B.C. Public Utilities Commission. As at Royal Oak, a trust fund is set up and perpetual care of the graves is assured from earned interest.

Salesmen, says Mr. Hagel, are trained in tactful presentation of their plan. They may only call once on a prospect and no high pressure methods will be permitted. The sales talk discloses an installment plan pay exists.

Development of the cemetery will provide beauty for the living, says Mr. Hagel. There will be a series of religious floral gardens with borders and flagstone paths. (The firm is seeking a source for slate.)

Each garden will depict some phase in the life and teachings of Christ. One will have a huge Italian marble statue of an opened Bible, inscribed with the Lord's prayer. Final phase in the development will be installation of a wired music system for muted playing of religious tunes.

Mr. Hagel reports a wide acceptance already of the Memorial Gardens plan.

QUEBEC HASSLE

Frog Farming For Profit Fruitless

MONTREAL (CP)—A learned exchange of correspondence released Friday by the Quebec government indicates that frog farming isn't commercially successful.

It started when fisheries biologist Richard L. Seguin spotted an article in The Reclamation Era, official organ of the U.S. bureau of reclamation.

Titled "Like to Be a Frog Farmer?" the U.S. article suggested that "artificial frog farming" can be made to pay.

That hit Mr. Seguin hard. He wrote to the U.S. publication that its frog-farm ideas ran counter to a Quebec survey among biologists of every Canadian province and every U.S. state.

The Quebec government released a reprint from Wildlife Review, a U.S. interior department publication, summarizing the exchange. The U.S. agency's foot-note:

"In other words there still is no satisfactory evidence that frogs have been or can be reared artificially for profit in North America. We do not know that frog farming has succeeded anywhere."

ANIMALS AROUND US

True, Ringed Worms Important Family

By DR. G. CLIFFORD CARL

Up until fairly recent times naturalists were not too critical when it came to classifying many of the lower forms of life. For example, all creatures that had long bodies, with or without legs, were called "worms" or "vermes."

These included such unrelated animals as the various worm-like parasites (tape worms, round worms, hook worms, hair worms, etc.), the free-living flatworms, sea worms, earthworms, the grubs of some insects, and other elongated creatures.

However, with the invention of magnifying lenses which permitted closer study of details and as a result of more knowledge of life histories, students began to notice great differences among certain members of the so-called worms and eventually this mixture of unrelated creatures became sorted out into more satisfactory categories. We have already considered some of these groups but there still remain the true worms which form an important division in the animal kingdom.

DRAWN-OUT BODIES

The various kinds of earth worms, sea worms and leeches are the principal members of this group. All are recognizable as worms because they have a drawn-out body but the most important feature they have in common is that the body is divided into a large number of segments, each one more or less like its neighbor. This gives the animal a ringed appearance, as in the common earth worm, and it also gives rise to the name for the group as a whole, the annelids (or Annelata) from the same stem as annulations, which means "with rings."

The fish worm of the garden is probably the most familiar member of the group, yet despite its widespread occurrence

New Overseas Teletypes Start Monday

Customer-Customer Business Service

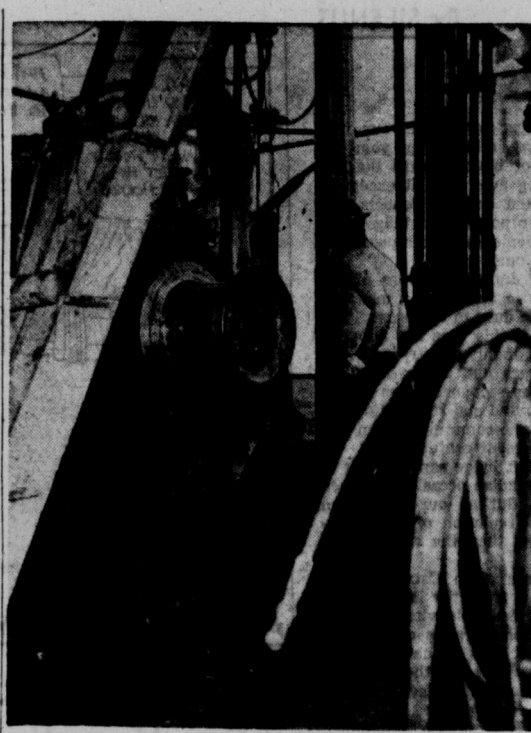

MONTREAL (BUP)—International Telex—a customer-to-customer overseas teletype service—will make its debut Monday from the new Montreal headquarters building of the Canadian Overseas Telecommunications Corporation.

Douglas Bowie, COTC president, said the new teletype service will provide Canadian business with direct teleprinter connection between International Telex subscribers in many parts of the world.

"This new facility enables users to converse in print at less than telephone rates and provides a typewritten record of everything transmitted or received."

The service will be available to subscribers in Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver at the outset through the facilities of Canadian Pacific Communications, Canadian National Telegraphs and Bell Telephone. Service will be extended to other parts of Canada later.

Bowie said the service was made possible through the trans-Atlantic cable which was inaugurated last September.

Todd at work at the foot of one of the big oil derricks that dot the prairie in the Steelman oil field of southeastern Saskatchewan. Didn't Know Enough to Quit, Regina Amateurs Now Rich

By FORBES RHUDE

Canadian Press Business Editor
REGINA (CP)—Ask for a local oil success story around Regina and probably you will be referred to Canadian Devonian Petroleum Ltd.

It is a snug company, operating with a staff of six from smart but compact Regina offices.

In 1953, and several times before, it was near failure and its stock could be bought for 42 cents a share. This year it touched $9.35 and is currently selling around $6.15. It estimates its known oil reserves at 20,000,000 barrels.

Drilled Discovery Well in Manitoba Daly Field

They nearly went under almost right away when a lost tool in a well they were drilling in Alberta cost them $125,000 in a "fishing" job.

In late 1950 and early 1951, however—in contract with California Standard Company—they drilled the discovery well in Manitoba's Daly Field which set off the whole present Manitoba-southeast Saskatchewan "play."

They made some money on that and formed Devonian Petroleum Ltd., a Saskatchewan company.

BIG OIL LEASE

More important for their future, they acquired an oil lease on 100,000 acres in southeast Saskatchewan under crown permit 351. Then, under Dominion charter, they formed the present company.

Southeast Saskatchewan—current oil sensation—spelled the difference.

It all started in 1949 when a small group—mainly young Regina men in their 30s who could put up $10,000 to $15,000 apiece—decided to get into the oil business in some way.

They knew relatively little about oil, and decided on a drilling company. So they bought a rig, got Charles Hawke of Calgary as drilling superintendent and called their venture the Hawke Drilling Company.

There were times when we didn't know enough to quit."

Others in the original or early groups included: Fred W. Hill, real estate and insurance man; W. H. A. Hill, his father; G. E. Ross, a doctor; J. V. King, a lawyer; G. M. Forbes, lawyer—all of Regina; and H. C. Pinder, a pharmacist.

Of the early participants, Messrs. Leishman, Cruickshank, W. H. A. Hill, Ross, Seath, King, Forbes, Pinder and Strickler comprise the directorate, along with Gordon Lawson of Winnipeg. Mr. Pinder is vice-president, Mr. Ross Seath treasurer and Mr. Forbes secretary.

So, in 1953, the company had no oil, no income, and its stock, which had reached $1.95 in 1952, was down to 42 cents.

FARMED OUT PERMIT

Then it farmed out on a 50-50 basis its 100,000-acre permit in southeast Saskatchewan to Canadian Gulf Oil Company—now part of British American Oil Company—in the hope that Gulf's great success in Alberta would hold out in Saskatchewan.

It did. On March 11, 1954, Gulf brought in Quinn No. 9 well at Frohisher—the Southeast's discovery well.

Canadian Devonian stock went to $2.95 and it raised $600,000 by issuing rights to shareholders to buy additional stock.

Since then, 74 producing wells have been drilled on the Saskatchewan acreage. Devonian also has eight producing wells in Manitoba, a small interest in three Alberta wells, and considerable other oil acreage in Saskatchewan and Manitoba. Income is running around $100,000 a month.

Mr. Cruickshank now is general manager and a director. His first employee, Clifford Feisel, at 21, is

Sixth Extension Granted Gas Line

OTTAWA (CP)—The board of transport commissioners Friday gave Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Ltd., a two-month extension in its Dec. 1 deadline for showing satisfactory financing of its $370,000,000 natural gas pipeline.

It was the sixth deferment in two years for the company, which proposes to build a 2,200-mile line from the Alberta border to the East.

TORONTO STOCKS

Tide Turned On Friday?

By RON ANDREWS, Canadian Press Staff Writer

The Canadian stock markets bogged down again this week but the first decisive break of the decline for more than a month occurred on the final day of trading.

Whether the strong rally, which began late Thursday and swung into full force Friday, is the beginning of a recovering advance isn't known. The crisis in the Middle East has been the main market influence for some time.

Friday's sharp reversal coincided with the news that Anglo-French troops are to be withdrawn from Egypt by Christmas. Brokers said the rally "could be only the usual wave of buying which eventually follows a sharp decline. We'll have to wait and see."

MARGIN SELLING SPREE

Marginal selling pounded prices down Thursday, particularly among lower-priced mining and western oil issues many of which are traded on margin—the system whereby investors can purchase stocks on a down-payment plan.

Margin-buying can only be done with stocks selling at $1 or more. Many of the mines and western oils had been reduced to near the $1 level during the steady "week-end decline and, as a result, there was a buildup of sales orders when the markets opened Thursday.

Since Israel invaded Egypt Oct. 29 the stock markets have undergone their worst drubbing since the outbreak of the Korean War.

The industrial index at Toronto lost more than 20 points during October and base metals dropped 17 points on their index. Western Oils, despite a few good rallies during the month, were off four index points.

On the week at Toronto, the industrial index lost 10 points, base metals almost eight and western oils 3%. There were 824 issues traded and 556 of those declined while only 159 advanced. Another 109 were unchanged.

Prices at Toronto didn't show too drastic a drop, mainly because of the late rally. Algoma Steel dropped $6.50. Gains were few and limited $1 in most cases.

Senior base metals recorded losses as great as $4—by Hudson Bay—but most were confined to $2. Falconbridge gained $1.75.

WEEK'S STATISTICS

The week's volume at Toronto was a big 20,678,000 shares against 14,371,000 the previous week.

Index changes at Toronto: Industrials off 10.16 to 440.17; golds off 2.77 to 71.31; base metals off 7.88 to 210.62; western oils off 3.7 to 146.25.

Week's index changes at Montreal: Banks off 1.13 to 50.28; utilities off 1.4 to 132.4; industrials off 9.2 to 276.9; combined off 6.6 to 228.7; papers off 11.54 to 132.06; golds off 0.11 to 70.49.

Week's volumes at Montreal: 690,513 industrials and 3,567,985 mines against 538,817 industrials and 2,691,281 mines the previous week. Of 373 issues traded, 31 advanced, 271 declined and 71 were unchanged.

Mid-East Compromise Triggers U.S. Upswing

By WALTER BREEDE Jr.

NEW YORK (AP)—Prospects of an early improvement in the tangled international situation of a tonic effect this week on the United States economy.

For some time, businessmen had been uncertain about the government's next move in the Middle East crisis. Europe, cut off from Middle East oil, was in danger of collapse. As long as British and French troops remained in Egypt, there was a danger of Arab retaliation if Uncle Sam went to Europe's aid.

First hints of a compromise solution came around the middle of the week when reports filtered through that the administration's oil-for-Europe program was finally ready to roll. On Friday President Eisenhower gave a go-ahead for an emergency plan that would deliver 500,000 barrels of oil a day to Western Europe. This was welcome news for U.S. farmers and manufacturers who had found in postwar Europe a thriving market for their goods.

SHARP RISE FRIDAY

Coupled with news of Bethlehem Steel Company's plan for a stock split, word of the oil emergency / plan Friday afternoon triggered a sharp rise in stock prices.

Among U.S. industries most likely to benefit were petroleum, shipbuilding, chemicals, steel and coal.

For consumers, price increases loomed for a wide variety of petroleum products ranging from heavy industrial fuels to home heating oils.

Meanwhile the U.S. government said its cost-of-living index set a record high in October and would probably go still higher.

Eaton's of Canada

When Eaton's opens a million doors...

This is what Eaton's of Canada does every year when it distributes its mail order catalogue to Canadian homes. By the ton, Eaton catalogues are shipped across the land, and the demand goes up and up. More and more customers in rural areas rely on their Eaton catalogue for dependable and economical shopping. And — a recent development in mail order retailing — more and more customers who are living in suburban areas, use the catalogue to maintain their ties with Eaton's of Canada.

This is a convincing tribute to Eaton's merchandising policies — it's a profitable one too.

Accurate check on circulation, intelligent analysis and classification of customers' purchases are important factors in selective distribution. Business machines and electronic printers furnish the tools to speed up and control catalogue mailing.

Electronic printers produce catalogue address labels at the rate of 9,000 per hour; yet the entire system is so flexible that the mail order department can control the volume of any catalogue issued.

All this eliminates catalogue waste; and it safeguards the big investment in catalogue production.

BETWEEN TIMES By MONTE ROBERTS

I wish I knew what to do about the interrogative salutation. What I would like to do is have a law passed, outlawing it. But pending that happy solution to the problem, I would like to know how to answer the interrogative salutation.

Take the interrogative salutation "How are you?" When somebody ups to me and says "How are you?" I am nonplussed. I realize the easy solution is to answer "fine, how are you?" But this is by no means the truth, on two counts, one obvious, the other rather more subtle.

In the first place, if I answered "fine," I would be telling an untruth.

And if I added "how are YOU?" I would be implying an untruth, because I don't really honestly "way down deep CARE how the other person is."

Yet how else can I answer this interrogative salutation? I can't say: "I have a code in the doze, temperature 101.5 degrees at sea level, pulse 35 bid, 75 asked, respiration doubtful, everything looks all funny and blurred around the edges, and my feet hurt."

I am quite sure the person who asked me how I am doesn't want all these details, yet what else can I tell him?

Another interrogative salutation which has me flummoxed is "How do you do?"

How on earth can I answer "How do you do?" If the interrogator would amplify, and explain he would like to know how I do what, I might be able to answer. But I doubt it. I rarely, if ever, know WHAT I am doing, let alone how I am doing it.

But the interrogative salutation which leaves me completely on the canvas is "What do you know?"

My immediate reaction to this greeting is to tell the truth and say "nothing." Although this might not be the whole truth, at that, as there are times when I do not even know nothing.

I have tried a positive approach to the question, without much success. When asked "What do you know," I have answered: "I know the hanging gardens of Babylon were supposed to have been built by King Nebuchadnezzar in the sixth century B.C. to please Queen Amyitis, but most historians believe they were but a figment of the imagination. I know a figment is smaller than a bigment but larger than a littlement. I further know."

But by this time, the person who asked me "what do I know" has slunk away, muttering to himself.

I guess the only solution, after all, is to pass a law against the interrogative salutation.

What do you say?

No new members will be accepted into St. Luke's 60-Up Club for awhile because of a recent rush of applications.

Prospective members may apply at a later date by contacting the secretary H. Putland, 40 Glebe Terrace.

Annual banquet and concert for members only will be held Dec. 18. Tickets must be obtained before Dec. 11.

Esquimalt Council will meet at the Municipal Hall Monday at 7.30 p.m.

Decorative strings of colored lights turned on last night still burning after 9 a.m. this morning—adding a festive if unique look to streets.

As well, installation of red, blue, green and yellow lamps in cluster lights was completed Friday, four colored lamps to each of 200 standards which are decorated with frosted holly baskets.

Charles M. MacLeod was re-elected president of the Clan MacLeod at the clan's annual meeting Friday.

Another fake bomb threat was telephoned to a city theatre Friday but no action was taken to evacuate.

Cashier of the Odeon Theatre said a child's voice told her, "There's a bomb in the backstage of your theatre." She heard a baby crying in the background.

Police were notified but it was not felt necessary to empty the theatre.

$35,000 COBALT BOMB ORDERED FOR JUBILEE

A $75,000 addition to the radiotherapy department plus a $35,000 junior cobalt bomb for cancer treatment are planned for the Royal Jubilee Hospital, it was learned today.

Plans for hospital expansion are already in hand and cost will be shared by the B.C. Cancer Foundation, the B.C. government and the hospital itself.

Radiation facilities at Royal Jubilee are no longer adequate, foundation president J. H. Lamprey told the group's annual meeting Friday in Vancouver.

Order for the cobalt bomb has already been placed with the Crown-owned Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd. It is not yet known when delivery can be expected.

Oak Bay Youth Drowning Victim

Body of Reginald Sinclair Sought After Cariboo Skating Accident

Death took place by drowning Thursday in Lac la Hache in the Cariboo area of Reginald Sinclair, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Sinclair, 1320 Monterey Avenue, it was learned today.

The former Oak Bay High School student was skating on the lake with friends, and was going to shore for his camera when he fell through thin ice. At last report the body had not yet been recovered.

The youth's parents have gone to the scene of the tragedy.

He had been working at a ranch in the area since last June when he graduated from high school.

Besides his parents, survivors include a sister.

CAB ASSAULT ADMITTED BY SOLDIER

A young soldier from Prince Albert, Sask., pleaded guilty in Oak Bay police court Friday to a charge of indecent assault, laid in connection with an attack on a woman taxi driver a week ago.

Leonard Lawrence Harper, a member of the Queen's Own Rifles for the last three years, will be sentenced December 7.

According to police evidence, Harper assaulted Mrs. Vera Rodgers, 42, of 29 Paddon, on a lonely road in the Gordon Head district.

On reaching the camp the other soldier got out and Harper said he wanted to go back to town.

About half a mile from the camp on Finney Road, he asked Mrs. Rodgers to stop the car because he was going to be sick.

Harper got out of the car and walked around the back. After about two minutes had elapsed he came back to the driver's door and struck Mrs. Rodgers on the jaw.

Then he dragged her from the cab into bushes alongside the road and removed some of her clothing.

Mrs. Rodgers received a number of deep scratches as she struggled and pleaded to be released.

Harper then took her back to the cab and took over the wheel himself. Shortly after he piled up the car against a tree at Cedar Hill Crossroad and Reynolds Road in Saanich.

Mrs. Rodgers was found later near the car and Harper was arrested at the army camp.

Harper's superior officer, Capt. Thomas W. MacDonald, testified the young soldier had a good character and reputation in the army.

In his three years' service, Harper had only one offence of being absent without leave, the officer said.

active participation," said the reeve, now in mid-term in his second two years of office.

The reeve made a point often overlooked in voting: if property or homes are registered in the names of husband and wife, dual registration, both may vote.

THREE SEATS

There are three vacancies on municipal council this year, one for police commissioner and one for school board chairman.

Coun. C. H. G. Mann will run

E. P. Cummins, shipwright, is planning a campaign to return him as Saanich councillor. He resigned his seat in 1953 after a six-year term.

He will be the 13th candidate to enter the Dec. 15 race for three vacancies.

Mr. Cummins said a major point in his program will be settlement of the sewage problem, the same platform on which he was defeated in a bid for the reeveship against Joseph Casey three years ago.

The candidate, a shipwright, has lived in Saanich 39 years.

Queen Accepts B.C. Totem Gift

100-Ft. Pole Will Mark Centennial

Queen Elizabeth has accepted a 100-foot totem pole as a gift from the people of British Columbia to commemorate the province's 100th birthday in 1958.

The Queen's acceptance of the totem—to be carved in Victoria early next year—was announced today by L. J. Wallace, chairman of the B.C. Centennial Committee.

It will be raised in one of the Queen's royal parks, probably in London, as a topical souvenir of B.C.'s 1958 centenary and a permanent memento of the province.

In a letter received by Premier Bennett Friday, it was stated that Queen Elizabeth has been "graciously pleased to accept this gift from the people of British Columbia."

Her Majesty's acceptance took the wraps off a secret that has been closely guarded by the centennial committee for the last six months.

"We did not feel we could announce this gift until it had been formally accepted by the Queen," Mr. Wallace said.

CARVING TEAM

The totem will be carved by Mungo Martin, his son David, and Henry Hunt, who fashioned the World's Tallest Totem in Beacon Hill Park which was sponsored by The Victoria Daily Times last year.

The royal totem is being sponsored jointly by the Centennial committee and the B.C. department of education under the direction of Wilson Duff, curator of anthropology at the provincial museum.

Mungo Martin and his assistants will begin carving the pole early in January in their workshop at Thunderbird Park where they fashioned the World's Tallest Totem, measuring 127 feet, last year.

"I am very eager to start work on the new totem," 76-year-old Mungo Martin said today. "The 100-foot totem will represent one foot for each year from the founding of the mainland colony of British Columbia in 1858," Mr. Wallace said.

"It will be a specimen of the outstanding craftsmanship of the totem carving tribes of the West Coast, and will help to perpetuate their ancient craft, as The Times did last year."

TO BE DISPLAYED

Mr. Wallace added that after the totem is completed—probably by June of next year—it will be on display in Victoria for some months before being shipped to England.

There it will be officially presented to the Queen by a representative of the B.C. Government.

"The Queen will decide where the totem will be erected but it seems likely she will choose one of the London parks."

Wilson Duff said the totem will be authentic in every respect and will tell stories of several different sub-tribes of the Kwakwaka'wakw.

Earlier this year, the Powell River Company held a competition between two lumber camps in the Queen Charlotte Islands to find the tallest and straightest red cedar suitable for carving.

Both camps found suitable trees and the company therefore donated both trees with the idea that the tree not used for the royal totem might be carved later.

ASK THE TIMES

Q. Will you kindly tell me the address of The Farm Journal? It is published in the United States, F.V.

A. Philadelphia is the city of publication of Farm Journal. The address of Farm Journal Inc., publisher of the periodical, is Washington Square, Philadelphia, Penn., U.S.A.

Q. What was the origin of the name Comox? A.R.D.

A. Walbran says the original name of the district was Comuck-thway. This was cumbersome in English and he deduces it was abbreviated to Comox. The Indian name meant abundance or plenty. The district was known to early-day Indians as a place of abundance of berries and game. Thus it is one of the interesting place-names in B.C.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to The Times, addressed to "Ask The Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily. All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums.

Norris Raps Oak Bay On Voting Lethargy

Oak Bay ratepayers' traditional lethargy at the election polls was scored today by Reeve Fred Norris.

"Past performances have been shocking," he said. "At the last election, about one-quarter of eligible voters cast ballots."

again for council. To date construction company executive Kenneth Oliver who ran unsuccessfully last year, lawyer Kenneth Murphy and Victoria Credit Bureau manager Geoffrey Ellis have said they also will run for council.

Mr. Ellis filed nomination papers late Friday.

He was on Oak Bay council in 1947-48 and again in 1952-53, and was also a member of the police commission in 1952. He was a member of the B.C. Provincial Police for 13 years and is now manager of the Victoria Credit Bureau.

AGAINST MERGER

On municipal issues, he said he opposes municipal amalgamation but endorses municipal co-operation, and is "very much opposed" to the current Oak Bay by-law preventing the sale of raw milk.

On the police commission, present commissioner Thomas Vickers has announced he will stand for re-election. There is as yet no other candidate.

W. H. Golby, school board chairman, has said he will also stand for re-election. No other candidates have been announced.

December 15 vote will be for the three council seats on a $275,000 money-by-law for a new municipal hall and police station, on a referendum enabling sale of raw milk, and for police commission and school board seats.

SCHOOL VOTE

As well, Oak Bay will vote on the $5,600,000 Greater Victoria school construction referendum of which Oak Bay's cost would be about 16 per cent if voted in at the majority of polls.

Non-property holders may vote for council, police commissioner, on the milk question and school building. Property holders only may vote on the money-by-law for the municipal hall.

NEWS OF CITY CHURCHES

Collections Planned For Hungary Relief

Advent Sunday, the church's "New Year," will be marked in all Anglican churches on Vancouver Island at Sunday services.

At the same time collections will be taken for the Hungarian relief fund administered by the World Council of Churches.

Derived from the Latin word "adventus," Advent refers to the "coming" of Christ. The four-Sunday season is a preparation for Christmas, which in the Christian year is second in importance only to Easter.

The occasion will be celebrated at Christ Church Cathedral in the Choral Eucharist at 11 a.m. Dean Brian Whitlow will preach the sermon. The dean will conduct film-strip instruction "No Alternative" at evensong.

Two outstanding laymen of the United Church in Victoria, Hugh Farquhar, professor of education at Victoria College, and lawyer W. A. Buchanan will speak at the evening service in Centennial United Church Sunday. Their theme will be "What Christmas Means to Me."

Rev. Douglas B. Carr will preach at the morning service on "The Expectancy of Christmas."

Seven children will be presented for baptism at First United Church morning service Sunday. Rev. A. I. Higgins has chosen as his sermon topics "The Power of Positive Living" and "Victory Over Suffering."

Nanaimo Junior Choir, conducted by Mrs. Mary Newbury, will give four choral anthems.

Special offering for Hungarian relief will be received at First Baptist Church Sunday. The money will be distributed to refugee Hungarians by the Baptist World Alliance.

Rev. G. R. Easter will preach on "Light in the Dark" and "Where Prayer Comes In."

Morning service at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church will be broadcast over CJVI by Rev. J. Lewis McLean, M.A. DD, will be "Jesus, the Bridegroom." His evening topic will be "Jesus—a Winebibber."

Subjects of Rev. Emma M. Smiley at Victoria Truth Centre Sunday will be "Spiritual Healing" and "The Church of Grace."

Holy communion services will be celebrated at St. John's Anglican Church Sunday at 8 and 11 a.m. Canon George Biddle will preach at morning and evening services on "The Ar-

READY FOR ADOPTION: Sparky's people are moving a long way away... too far to take this soft-eyed, gentle black and white spaniel with them. One year old, female.

Big, sad-eyed, droop-jowled Pongo is as good a Newfoundland as you'll ever meet—except in the unfortunate matter of chickens. Two years old, male.

Four plump happy puppies, eight weeks old. Quite a bit of collie in the family.

A sort of Zazu Pitts of dogdom is Trevy... a big, good natured, rather unusual combination of border collie and airedale. One year old, female.

Boots, a rough-coated terrier, is almost a model for the original shaggy dog. He's one year old, apparently has had an unfortunate experience with young children as he doesn't like them—but he's a good house dog.

Oh, ay, and here's a bonnie doggle—black and brown Scotch 3½ years, very patient with children and a good watchdog.

Short-haired terrier type, male, three years old. Name's Fatsy, but he isn't really.

Christian Obligated To Follow Blueprint

(This is another in a series of weekly discussions with local ministers who will be asked to comment on the biblical passage which holds the most significance for them.)

"Do all things without murmurings and disputing: That ye may be blameless and harmless, the sons of God, without rebuke, in the midst of a crooked and perverse nation, among whom ye shine as lights in the world." Philippians, chapter 2, verses 15-16.

"A contractor is expected to follow an architect's blueprint by which his workmanship is judged," says Dr. J. B. Rowell, well-known religious writer and minister of Central Baptist Church for 29 years.

"Even so a Christian is under obligation to follow the Divine blueprint given in the Word of God.

"People who aren't church-goers often say I can live just as good a life without going to church as those who do, but they're judging their lives in the light of those who are professors—not possessors—of Christianity.

The man who merely professes to be a Christian but does not live the Christian life does more harm to the cause of Christ than an infidel.

"Vital Christianity is the result of a new birth as proclaimed by our Lord to Nicodemus.

"The children or sons of God are those who have been born again of God's holy spirit and they must live a Christian life according to the Divine requirements not as lights but as luminaries," said Dr. Rowell.

"The word 'light' implies self-contained illumination but the word used here speaks of reflecting light just as the moon reflects the light of the sun.

"The light God has shown in the hearts of His children is the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ."

"True Christians will reflect this light in the midst of a crooked and perverse nation," he said.

NEW BOXING CHAMP CHALLENGES ROCKY

ROUND WORLD WITH PETER TOWNSEND

Must Pass Up
Iron Curtain

This is the first of a series of reports by Group Captain Peter Townsend on his solo trip around the world by automobile. The second will be published next Saturday and future reports at periods dictated by the availability of communications as Group Captain Townsend makes his way through remote, primitive lands.

FIRST ARTICLE

This is Teheran. Europe is far behind. Now I am deep in Asia and soon I move on towards Pakistan, Afghanistan, India, and the East.

Yet, as I subconsciously expected all along, things have not gone according to schedule.

I have bumped against the Iron Curtain but failed to get through.

I have had to scrap all my plans for the Arab countries because of the Middle East crisis.

I have sweated over quite a few punctures. I've worried over the dust in my Land-Rover's engine.

I've had a lot of fun. And I've felt terribly lonely.

I've dined at the most luxurious hotel in Asia Minor. I've also eaten alongside a gentleman who insisted on taking large bites out of his glass and finding a bed for the night. Metal cutlery and swallowing them with apparent enjoyment.

All this, I suppose, is part of driving alone round the world. But the fact is, of course, that I have been learning. There has, indeed, been lots to learn.

Driving alone hundreds of miles day after day over strange country, much of it rough, can be exhausting.

Then I must keep a log. There are still and movie cameras to be worked. Car checks. Food. Up before dawn.

Visa worries. And so on and so forth.

Attack of 'Flu Even Proved Fun

I have been resting a few days in Teheran from the journey and from a sharp attack of flu. But even that has been fun.

I spent a delightful afternoon looking at the Shah of Persia's horses. I particularly liked a fine Arab stallion called Ekbar. There were stallions, too, from Pakistan, Turkey, Saudi Arabia, Iraq, Jordan and other neighboring States.

I also saw the Shah's lion, a gift from the Emperor of Ethiopia. It nuzzled up to the railing and when it was pinched in the ribs it turned round then roared about as angrily as the MGM trademark.

It's been a pleasant rest. Soon I'll be off on the road to Pakistan, then to Afghanistan, and down the Kyber Pass to India.

But first let's go back to the beginning.

I remember that back in Brussels I was horrified to see how much stuff I had to take with me. There were seven suitcases, two containing my papers and maps in, and another for my books.

I had a case for hardwood cooking things and tools, and another in which I had packed hundreds of films.

Finally there was a case for my provisions and a bottle or two of wine. I have opened this case daily.

Apart from the suitcases, I had a medicine chest, and spare parts which seemed to weigh a ton.

Gumboots Refused to Stay Put

On top of all this I bundled in a sleeping-bag, a camp bed, cameras, and an assortment of other things, including a pair of gumboots. They irritated me incessantly by refusing to LONDON (Reuters)—Leicester City's burly Arthur Rowley today equalled the English goal-scoring record in his 242nd goal of his career in a Second Division game against Rotherham United.

The record had been set by Charlie Wayman of Middlesbrough.

Rowley and his Leicester City teammates defeated Rotherham United 5-2 to remain deadlocked in points with Stoke City for the lead in the Second Division. Each has 28 points, but Stoke City leads on goal average after a 4-1 home victory over Swansea Town.

Manchester United continued to conquer the First Division, downing Luton Town 3-1 on goals by England internationals Duncan Edwards and Tommy Taylor and another by former schoolboy international David Pegg.

NEW WORLD CHAMPION

World heavyweight boxing ranks were ruled today by the youngest champion in history, 21-year-old Floyd Patterson of New York. The former Olympic Games titleholder threw too many punches too often Friday night as he registered a fifth-round knockout over Archie Moore, 39-year-old light-heavyweight champion, at Chicago. Patterson, at 21, is two years younger than Joe Louis when he won the crown from Jimmy Braddock. (See Sports Pages.)

50 HOMES OFFERED

City Opens Heart
To Hungarian Refugees

Fifty Victorians have opened their hearts and their homes to Hungarian refugees expected to arrive here Wednesday after flying from their strife-torn homeland aboard a federal government-chartered "Freedom Express" plane.

Several Victorians, in a gesture hailed by officials handling arrangements for the refugees, have offered to adopt Hungarian children.

Others have offered temporary employment for some of the refugees.

"The way Victorians have rallied around to help these unfortunate people is truly heart-warming," said one of the men making plans for the refugees.

Seventy refugees will arrive in Vancouver Monday, and 30 of them will come to Victoria Wednesday after spending Tuesday in the Immigration Building at Vancouver being documented and examined by doctors.

They will arrive on the afternoon boat from Vancouver.

The refugees will be welcomed in Vancouver by Fisheries Minister James Sinclair.

The "Freedom Express" plane is a DC6B chartered by Ottawa

'For Biggest Gate
In Boxing History'

CHICAGO (UP)—Newly-crowned Floyd Patterson today invited Rocky Marciano to return to the ring and engage in a heavyweight title fight for "probably the biggest gate in the history of boxing."

Patterson's manager Gus d'Amato said "Floyd and I would like to have Rocky return to the ring not only because of the rich gate a Patterson-Marciano fight would attract but also because it would prove to the world that Floyd is one of the all-time great champions if he could beat Rocky."

When Marciano retired last April 27, he was the only undefeated champion in heavyweight history. As a professional he had won 49 straight victories, including 43 knockouts.

CASHES IN

The 21-year-old Patterson, youngest champion ever to rule the division, will receive a purse of $114,257 for Friday night's fight. And he will immediately begin cashing in on his fame by making a $2,500 appearance Sunday night on Steve Allen's television show.

Floyd and two companions surprised many of their friends by driving from Chicago to his new home in Mount Vernon, N.Y. He wanted to go there quickly to see his new baby daughter, who was born less than four hours before he entered the ring against Moore at Chicago Stadium before 16,248 spectators.

Marciano, who reiterated after the fight Friday night that he was not planning a comeback, was not available for comment today on the challenge.

BIG RUMOR

He told companions after Patterson scored a fifth round technical knockout over Archie Moore Friday night that any report he would resume fighting was only "a big rumor."

"There's not a thing in it—no chance," he said. "My plans for the future are still the same. I took a long time making a decision and I just don't do things that way. When I made up my mind it was final. I thought my bond was my word. Boxing's been good to me, but I have no change in plans. I'm retired."

Revolt Flares Again

HAVANA (UP)—Sniper fire broke out again today in Santiago, centre of rebel opposition to the government of President Fulgencio Batista. Normal activity, which had resumed after Friday's outbreak, was suspended again.

Syria Charges
U.K. Readying
Aggression

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP)—Syria today announced it is calling on the United Nations assembly to take up "the threat to Syria's safety" arising from preparation for armed aggression against her by Britain, France, Israel and Turkey.

(CP and UP Dispatches) UNITED NATIONS, New York—The United States and Israel were reported drumming up separate resolutions today condemning the Soviet Union for its intervention in the Middle East.

The Israeli government ordered its delegation to bring up in the assembly the reports of a Red arms buildup in Syria.

Diplomats regard the Syrian problem as potentially more dangerous than the Suez crisis. They said it was virtually certain Soviet "volunteers" would go into action if there is war between Syria and Turkey and Iraq.

IMPORTING ARMS

Syrian ambassador Farid Zeinedine declared that Syria has been importing arms from "various nations," including Czechoslovakia.

But he said this was purely a defensive measure in view of an alleged Anglo-French-Israeli buildup. He charged a half division of French troops, some British personnel and some 100 French planes are on Israeli soil.

In Baghdad, King Faisal suspended the Iraq Parliament.

In London British and Turkish officials met to discuss means of thwarting what the Turks say is a Soviet plot to seize control of Syria. At Cairo, Maj.-Gen. Abdel Hakim Amer, minister of war and head of the Egyptian-Syrian-Jordanian-Saudi Arabian-Yemen defence forces, said the five nations were prepared to fight together to repel aggression.

Interference Range of Local TV
Will Get Big Test Over Weekend

The question of how serious the interference from Victoria's new Channel 6 TV station CHEK is with Seattle's popular Channel 5 will get its first major test this weekend.

Channel 6 goes on the air regularly at 5 this afternoon and will do 16 hours of telecasting during the weekend.

First trials of the Channel 6 test pattern late Thursday night and after midnight Friday indicated widespread interference.

However CHEK engineers are still making adjustments on the station.

On the other hand relatively few viewers had their sets turned on Thursday night. The main test will come when CHEK is on the air during the popular viewing hours.

CHEK management said they will have spotters tonight all over the city to find out how serious the interference is.

Already there are indications that CHEK engineers have managed to "tune out" some of the interference felt during Thursday night's test. The strong clear pattern of the local station affects the next channel.

First reports showed that interference was more widespread than expected, hitting the city proper, Saanich, where the transmitter is located at Epsom Drive, Langford, Oak Bay and other areas. However, CHEK officials asked the public to be patient until they had fair opportunity to make necessary amendments and corrections in their signals.

kind and helpful. As I prepared to leave them I noticed a swarthy fellow with a gentle countenance, who seemed interested in me. I asked him who he was. He said: "Greco." I shook hands one by one with the frontier officials. I came at length to Greco. I said: "English-Greek not good; you-me good." The Yugoslavs roared with laughter, and Greco nearly shook my hand off.

I gave a lift to a Yugoslav customs officer as far as Mari-bor, 15 kilometres away. It was here that the fog, which had shrouded much of my journey across Germany and Austria, ended at last, and I emerged into delicious sunshine which was to last all the way to Istanbul.

Although hundreds of miles lay between me and Belgrade, where I meant to spend the night, I gave in completely to the temptation to photograph the Yugoslav country people. They are very simple and very poor. But what is wrong with that? There is a great richness in their hearts which can only be measured by their warm friendliness. I never felt more moved than I was that day by the poverty and the simple kindness of those people.

I don't suppose they know or care much about the standard of living with which we seem so concerned. It seemed to me that their standard of living was far less material than spiritual and judged by that standard very high.

In comparison with Austria, the color of the Yugoslav countryside seemed more sombre in tone, matching the darker countenance of the people. I saw two country girls with their hair dyed a garish blonde. Their appearance compared grotesquely with the natural features of their compatriots.

The Yugoslavs' smiles come more slowly, but no less readily. Everyone smiles, everyone waves, they adore being photographed. Once I stopped to photograph two children, and a score more came running down the road to join in. They were simply enchanting. I felt very happy.

The road wound through delicious villages. The Yugoslavs have done nothing to mar the loveliness of their countryside. On the contrary, they lend beauty to it by their bearing and simple way of life.

I reflected: "How different I am to them in speech, manner and thought." Yet God created us, them and me. I often wonder what for, but that is the mys-

Pilot Bailed Out As Bomber Spins

Flaming Crash of U.S. Stratojet Near Lakehead Described; 3 Missing

FORT WILLIAM (CP)—The commander of a USAF B-47 stratojet bomber that crashed on Friday night in the rugged bush country northeast of the Lakehead said today he saw a "tremendous red glow" as his plane hit the ground, but he does not know whether his three companions got out alive.

From his bed in McKellar Hospital here, Maj. Robert Slane of Shreveport, La., said his giant plane went into "an uncontrollable spin" while in formation with other B-47s at approximately 31,000 feet. They were heading home from a trip to the north.

He said after a third spin that there was no alternative but to bail out and had to pull the parachute cord shortly after bailing out. It opens automatically at 12,000 feet because many pilots lose consciousness at high altitude.

REMAINED CONSCIOUS
"I was conscious the whole time and I remember practically everything," Maj. Slane said. "A mass of rushing air hit me when my seat ejected but I didn't black out. I found myself somersaulting and my-

tery of life which each one of us, in his own way, has to solve. I took dozens of photographs, encouraged by the co-operation I got from the country people. I had one set-back however. I passed a small wagon drawn by two good-looking horses going at a spanking trot. They looked so splendid that I stopped and took them. In the wagon were two soldiers. One, I think was teaching the other to drive, for he suddenly took the reins and drew in the horses. He was evidently far from pleased. He looked at the number-plate of my car and made a note of it.

I looked appraisingly at his horses, but failed to melt his sudden glare. I must remember not to photograph military objectives in future. At Zabreh I found traffic stopped at a cross-roads. I beckoned to a policeman. He spoke a few words of English and I gathered that the President of Rumania was about to pass. Two minutes later a cortege swept by and we were waved on. A lorry, two cars, and my Land-Rover now brought up the rear of the procession. Suddenly I heard my name called. Two girls were waving from the pavement and I found it difficult not to smile back at the unexpected recognition at the wrong end of the procession.

UNEF TROOPS BEGIN SUEZ 'PEACE PATROL'

EL CAP, Egypt (AP)—United Nations troops launched their historic peace patrol between hostile forces Friday night after hours of bickering over final arrangements.

They took over British forward positions almost without a hitch but were barred from Egypt's entrenchments across the truce line.

By nightfall, UN troops occupied a buffer zone 600 yards wide and 1,000 yards deep.

Danish troops wearing blue helmets moved into sandbagged British foxholes about 24 miles south of the British-French headquarters in Port Said. They carried machine-guns and rifles.

As they moved up across no-man's land, British soldiers moved back northward.

A UN observer told correspondents that while the British and French were ceding their frontline positions, the Egyptians did not reciprocate.

Vancouver Police Hunt Bank Robber

Lone Gunman Gets $2,575 in Cash In Daring Hold-Up of Downtown Branch

VANCOUVER (CP)—Police were still searching today for a gap-toothed gunman who escaped Friday with $2,575 in cash in a holdup of the Marine Building branch of the Bank of Montreal.

Police said the bandit escaped through a side door into the rotunda of the building, then ran down a flight of stairs to the basement. The bandit's discarded raincoat and cap were found in a basement washroom.

They said they believed he either escaped along busy Burrard and Hastings Streets in downtown Vancouver or fled across the CPR railway yard.

A floor-by-floor search of the 24-storey Marine building was carried out by police without success. Two suspects, picked up for questioning by police, were released shortly after.

Mrs. Doreen Kirkley, 20, the bank teller, said the bandit, about 40, was smiling when he approached her wicket.

"He had most of his front teeth missing," she said. "He passed a printed note and an insurance company folder across the counter. As far as I remember it read: 'Put all the large bills in the folder. If you ring the alarm I'll kill you and myself—this gun is loaded.'"

12-CENT CUP OF COFFEE
VERNON—The price of tea and coffee in most Vernon restaurants was increased to 12 cents a cup today.

In making this announcement, one restaurant proprietor said the increase was due to the rising cost of sugar and cream and the fact that coffee has been higher in price for some time.

Medical research reports on Corn Oil

"... Cholesterol is reduced appreciably"

A group of three doctors with the co-operation of more than 200 Canadian University student volunteers have proved conclusively that by replacing animal fats with corn oil in the human diet the level of plasma cholesterol is reduced appreciably.

Cholesterol is a fatty material which is deposited along with other lipids in the walls of the arteries and high blood levels of this substance are believed to contribute to such widespread human ailments as atherosclerosis (hardening of the arteries) and coronary thrombosis (heart disease).

The established conclusion was that corn oil contains a factor or factors that lead to a lowering of cholesterol levels.

These findings were reported recently before the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons.

MAING CLAIMS:

Bonner Knows Liquor Cheaper In Ontario

VANCOUVER (CP) — Liberal leader Arthur Laing charged here the British Columbia government raised liquor prices because "it needs every penny it can lay its hands on and it thinks the man who drinks has no friends."

He told a meeting of the Point Grey Liberal Association: "The attorney-general said liquor is cheaper here than in Ontario. That is not true and he knows it. "Liquor costs 50 cents less per bottle in Ontario, yet the Ontario government made more than 40 per cent net profit last year on liquor sales and British Columbia only made 29.9 per cent."

Year's Suspension After Smashing Stolen Auto

A Victoria youth lost his right to drive for one year when he admitted in Oak Bay police court Friday smashing up a stolen car at Oak Bay Avenue and St. Patrick a week ago.

Raymond Joseph Carriere, 524 Michigan, also was fined $75 or 30 days in jail on the charge of criminally negligent driving.

Carriere was the driver of a car taken from the Empress Hotel parking lot which crashed into a power pole while being pursued at 70 miles an hour by a police car.

Carriere previously was fined $150 or 45 days in city court for taking the car without the owner's consent.

A companion, Robert John Bowen, 121 Menzies, was fined $100 on the same charge.

New Releases of Brahms First Symphony Has Fine Qualities

By HUMPHRY DAVY

The music of Johannes Brahms continues to hold its popularity despite stiff competition from numerous classical, romantic and modern composers. This is shown by the large number of records of his works released every year by record companies.

Now, Columbia has released Brahms' Symphony No. 1, performed by the Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Bruno Walter, which has been recorded 20 times by various recording companies, but not always with the success of this new disc.

Without a doubt, Walter's performance is marvelous. He achieves with profound feeling in his interpretation of the work.

Quality of the recording is also first class, equal to the best of competing discs.

This symphony, which seemed to have evolved from a state of psychological conflict, contains some of Brahms' greatest moments.

La Boutique Fantasque (The Fantastic Toyshop), Rhapsody, performed by the Philharmonic Orchestra, with Alicia Gaudier conducting (Angel 55324). This is a brilliant music, and one of the best discs of its kind to be released in recent months.

Apart from Galliera's clever interpretation of this work the melodies are attractive and the sound near perfect. The music was written by Rossini, and adapted by Respighi for the famous ballet.

On the reverse side is Ildebrando Pizzetti's "Suite From La Pisanella" (The Woman of Pisa or The Perfumed Death). It's a work which I had never heard before.

The music written as incidental to a drama concerns a woman who ends up by being smothered to death in roses. Why roses, I don't know, but I can think of worse endings. The story matters little. The music, however, conveys a sense of tragedy. It is intensely descriptive.

Other new releases: "A Treasury of Famous Bruno Walter Performances" (Columbia); "Budapest Quartet Encores" (Columbia); "Strawinsky's Oedipus Rex (London); "David Oistrakh Plays Tchaikovsky" (Angel).

POPS LIBRARY: NEW YORK (UP)—Pia Beck is a Dutch girl who looks not unlike Queen Juliana until she starts to play the piano and sing.

Then her voice takes on a husky incendiary quality that makes people listen.

Pia was almost a child prodigy. She started taking piano lessons at eight and quickly became superior to her teachers.

She played in Amsterdam night clubs and traveled with a quartet, but it was not until she toured Germany near the end of World War II that she won international fame.

Epic Records has released 12 of Pia's numbers on an LP, "Dutch Treat". In all but two of her numbers she is accompanied by a trio that sometimes sounds like a full orchestra. She is at her best when she sings solo, however, on "So This Is Love" and "Two Loves Have I".

Album of the Week—"Gisela MacKenzie" (Vik), presenting the TV star on 12 numbers of varying tempos, with good backing by bands led by Neal Hefti, George Siravo and Sid Bass.

Selected Singles—"I'll Always Be in Love With You" by Jack Pleis and his orchestra (Decca); "Be Mine Tonight" by Duke Mitchell (Liberty); "Grasshopper Baby" by Marie Knight (Mercury); "Baby Doll" by Leroy Holmes and orchestra (M-G-M).

10-Year Plan For Saanich Advocated

Saanich needs a 10-year plan of municipal development embracing sewerage, waterworks, drains, roads, subdivisions and other works, Reeve Arthur Ash said today.

He outlined four classes of projects which will take their places in the municipality sooner or later, but which he feels ought to be planned now:

1. Absolutely essential and vital (like sewers and waterworks).
2. Essential but of second priority (like roads).
3. Desirable but to be deferred until more vital undertakings are completed (parks, for example).
4. Desirable and "nice" if they can be assured in time and funds, apart from requisite and pressing needs of 1, 2 and 3.

ANSWER QUESTIONS: The reeve said he would reply to any questions regarding his plans for Saanich during the next year of his office at any public meeting of candidates for this month's election, even though his own term lasts until December, 1957.

First meeting will be Monday at 8 p.m. in Gordon Head Community Hall, which will be attended by all candidates and the reeve as chairman.

"I won't hide behind the fact I've been asked to act as chairman," he said. "I'll answer any questions."

Referring to his plan, Mr. Ash said, "The only sensible way this can be carried out is to project our programs at least 10 years ahead."

"The tragedy of the past has been the lack of planning for the future."

He pointed to the task "crowding" upon urban governments, especially in Saanich. Control of development must include new attitudes, objectives and powers, and planning itself will have to be on regional, not local, basis.

To make orderly, planned development possible, the senior governments must make a more realistic approach to municipalities, offering more money for big projects.

A 10-year plan would mean strict control of the annual budget, and elected representatives would need courage to resist pressure groups, said the reeve.

He recommended the taxpayers elect men who "make things happen to them," not men who "let things happen to them."

FIRED ON IN BREAD LINE

Refugee Child Weeps—Tells of Terror

TORONTO (CP)—Marika Maszaros, 12-year-old Hungarian refugee, ran tearfully to her mother's arms Friday night at Toronto's Malton airport, ending a three-year struggle to unite the pair.

Marika, thought to be the first emigrant to leave Hungary legally since the recent revolution, arrived not knowing where her mother, Mrs. Margit Afanasiev, was in Canada. The pair had not seen one another since 1947, when the mother left Hungary.

Marika's arrival caught Red Cross officials by surprise. Mrs. Afanasiev, whose first husband, Marika's father, was killed in the Second World War, was located in Toronto and taken to the airport.

Marika told her mother, now remarried, that the house in Budapest where she lived with her grandmother was struck by shell fire and that she was fired upon in bread lines by Russian soldiers.

The Soviet officials who granted her visa warned her not to go to Canada which they said was filled with wild people who would eat her, she said.

Beaten to Death: VANCOUVER (CP)—The body of an elderly Chinese grocer was found today in a pool of blood at the back of his Kitsilano district store. Police said he appeared to have been beaten to death during a holdup of his store, which was "in a shambles."

The slaying occurred in the same area in which two holdups occurred under cover of fog Friday night.

BABY'S CAFE SOCIETY DEBUT BRINGS 'DRINKS ON HOUSE'

MONTREAL (CP)—A baby made an unexpected debut into Montreal's cafe society Friday night.

A healthy boy was born at the Top Hat Cafe, where his parents were watching the evening's floor show. An army medical corpsman and an airline stewardess assisted in the delivery and then called an ambulance.

Bartender Robert Dupont, still shaken by the episode, shouted "drinks on the house."

Royal Victoria Hospital reported mother and son in good condition but declined to disclose the mother's name.

AT CENTRAL JUNIOR

Bingo Tonight To Aid Needy

Vic Van Isle Kinsmen Club bingo will be played tonight starting at 8 in Central Junior High School gym, with $200 or 25 per cent of profit destined for needy families.

Players may enter 16 games for their $2 admission, standing chances of winning an outdoor, clothes dryer, TV set, $500 cash, turkeys and consolation prizes.

Plans to help the needy will ensure a Christmas celebration for persons in Greater Victoria who might otherwise be without.

Total value of prizes offered tonight is $2,000, including a sewing machine, electric fryer, TV lamps and an electric train.

Victoria Kinsmen Club has voted $400 to providing Christmas dinner for 275 members of Old Age Pensioners No. 3, Dec. 20 at 1:30 p.m. in Crystal Garden.

The club's small appeals fund, consisting of 20 per cent of net receipts from big bingo games, will be used for the dinner.

Continued from Page 1: matter of a few hours offered their services as clerks and stenographers and to assist in keeping records.

A central depot will be established Monday to receive clothing and funds for the refugees, he said.

"The most valuable help of any kind is to provide at least temporary employment and living accommodations," he said. "So far the response has been excellent, not only from Victoria but from other centres on Vancouver Island."

Mr. de Mezey did not expect there would be any professional or highly skilled technicians in the group coming to Victoria.

"These people are snapped up by the larger centres in Europe, Canada and the United States," he said. "On the whole they have no difficulty in finding employment."

He advised firms in need of specialists to ask for the type of skilled craftsmen they wanted so that they could be assigned to the city.

Otherwise, he said, they would naturally be sent to centres where jobs are available for them.

The response to an appeal for volunteers to assist the refugees in the city has been terrific," he said. "Over 20 persons in the first emigrant to leave Hungary legally since the recent revolution, arrived not knowing where her mother, Mrs. Margit Afanasiev, was in Canada. The pair had not seen one another since 1947, when the mother left Hungary.

Marika's arrival caught Red Cross officials by surprise. Mrs. Afanasiev, whose first husband, Marika's father, was killed in the Second World War, was located in Toronto and taken to the airport.

Marika told her mother, now remarried, that the house in Budapest where she lived with her grandmother was struck by shell fire and that she was fired upon in bread lines by Russian soldiers.

The Soviet officials who granted her visa warned her not to go to Canada which they said was filled with wild people who would eat her, she said.

AT ART GALLERY

Vitality Keynote In U.S. Drawings

By GWLADYS DOWNES

How many people I wonder, ever stop to consider the terrific power wielded by little squiggles of black pencil or ink on white paper. These purely arbitrary shapes, these letters you are reading automatically, have to carry the whole burden of human communication between people who cannot actually buttonhole each other and say, "Now, just listen to this, Mike . . ."

And if you experience some emotion as you read anything at all, it is only thanks to the little black shapes whose arrangement moves you to anger or to tears.

As I looked at some of the powerful and effective American drawings which are on display at the Greater Victoria Art Gallery now, it occurred to me that the artist stands halfway between the man who can shout at you and the man who has only words to use on paper.

For he is a man who wants to tell you what he has seen, and sometimes the meaning of what he has seen. What is his medium? Lines, colors, and shapes arranged in some significant pattern. How do we understand him? Only by reading his symbols, his language.

These artists are among the best that the United States can send us—Koerner, Rasmussen, Callahan, Tchelitchev, Pozzatti—and I can heartily recommend the exhibition with a clear critical conscience.

The gallery is also showing a few canvases by Ronald Bladen, a former Victoria student who has been working in California, and whose work shows the influence of the modern abstractionists there.

STYLES VARY: The keynote of these American drawings is vitality. The styles vary from the calm classicism of Leonid's "La Pointe de Chasseron" to the surrealism of Seligman's "Noctambulation," but each drawing (there are some in colored chalks as well as black-and-white) conveys its special mood. These emotional tones are not always serious. For example, Chi Kwan Chen has a very witty piece called "Touchdown," which is football seen from above by a Chinese calligrapher.

POWERFUL: Rico Lebrun seems to me particularly adept at conveying a vivid apprehension of the thing seen, and seen with feeling.
